INDUSTRIAL LEADERS MEET HOOVER

PROSPERITY IN OHIO ASSURED AT DINNER OF BUSINESS HEADS

Verity Says Market Crash Has Not Hurt Sound Business

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—The commonwealth of Onio should stand reassured today that the recent stock market crash will have no effect upon the basic economic conditions of the country.

Five hundred and fifty captains of finance and industry sat down to one of the biggest banquets in the history of Columbus last night and in turn gave their reassurances that business is sound.

It was the first Ohio management conference. The delegates represented the three factors of the nation's economis life—production, distribution and finance.

Governor Myers Y. Cooper in addressing the huge gathering, said:

"In the state of Ohio we are just entering upon the greatest building program undertaken by our state in many, many years. We shall erect a new state office building wherein there will be housed nineteen departments and divisions of the state government, now scattered all over the city of Columbus.

"This enterprise alone will mean an expenditure of some $5,000,000 for the erection of a stately structure. It will give employment to hundreds of men and will mean the purchase of enormous quantities of materials and supplies."

W. T. Grant, head of one of the largest chain store groups in the country, declared:

"We are on the threshold of an upward swing in business prosperity."

Further reassurance was given by George M. Verity, president of the American Rolling Mill Company, of Middletown, Ohio.

"Every business and industry that was sound three weeks ago is just as sound today, despite the shrinkage in the market prices of its securities. Basic business conditions were never more sound than now," stated the steel magnate.

"While buying of luxuries undoubtedly will slow up, essentials are properly priced and industries in this division are not over-expanded," was the opinion of James T. Tew, president of the B. F. Goodrich Company of Akron. "Interest rates have declined and the capital released will find its way into constructive developments, thereby providing additional employment and continued prosperity."

John G. Lonsdale, president of the American Bankers' Association, said it was apparent that conditions are fundamentally sound.

"The banking situation," he continued, "is good, with credit ample for all needs and money more plentiful than for some time. Further ease has been added to credit by the recent lowering of the New York rediscount rate."

James L. Madden, third vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, declared there is no reason why business should not go ahead on a very even keel.

"Business was fundamentally sound before the market crash," he spoke, "and I see no reason why that situation should differ now."

From the tenure of the speeches it could be seen that unemployment presented the real "bug-bear" to the nation's prosperity, and that if the unemployment situation can be cleared up, the country's prosperity will be assured.

Reassurances were given that unemployment would be held at the minimum and hope was seen in the promises which President Herbert Hoover elicited from railroad magnates that they would begin a building program.

STOCK MARKET IS FIRM AT OPENING

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Stocks exhibited a firm and confident tone at the opening of the market today. Price changes of the speculative leaders were narrow, with moderate movements in both directions. United States Steel lost a point at 107, but General Electric was up 1 1-2 at 215; Westinghouse up 7-8 at 132 7-8; Bethlehem Steel up 1-4 at 90 3-4; Sears Roebuck up 1 1-8 at 94 1-4.

Chesapeake and Ohio led the rails, with a gain of 2 1-2 points at 198 1-2. New Haven was up 3-4 at 111 1-2; Allegheny Corporation up 1-8 at 25 3-8; Erie down 1-4 at 53 1-8; Western Maryland down 3-8 at 20 1-8.

Harter, Jr., announced today

CHEST DRIVE PASSES QUARTER MARK HERE IN PARTIAL REPORTS

Team Captains Have Reported $2,782.16; Five Days To Go

A golden flood poured into Community Fund headquarters at City Hall Wednesday afternoon.

When the tabulators had finished the 1929 Xenia chest fund campaign was more than a quarter of the way toward its goal of $10,000.

After two days of intensive campaigning, the total received to date is $2,782.16.

The flood was the result of a suggestion by Edwin Galloway, general chairman of the campaign, for a definite report from every team. Not all of the teams have complied, however, although regional chairmen have been reporting voluntarily.

Wednesday's collections amounted to $1,533.81. The suspicion exists among chest officials that a few of the teams are holding out for a grand slam at the finish.

Under the admonition to "shell out" seven teams reported Wednesday and the day's report exceeded collections for the opening day by nearly $300.

Iowa Pays Tribute To J. W. Good, Its Native Son

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Nov. 21.—Final arrangements for a military funeral which will be accorded James W. Good, secretary of war, were being completed here today as the cabinet member's native state prepared to pay its son a last tribute.

Services at the First Presbyterian Church have been planned for tomorrow at 11 a. m. In adition to the military escort which is accompanying the body westward the cortege will be met by a dismounted squadron of the fourteenth cavalry from Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

The local National Guard troop will join in the escort which will take the body from the church to Oak Hill Cemetery for burial. Following the last services an army firing squad will fire volleys over the grave and a bugler will sound taps.

All business will be suspended between 11 and 12 o'clock in the morning. The schools of Cedar Rapids are to be closed for a half day.

In a country graveyard not far away the body of Harry B. Lutz, Secretary Good's boyhood friend, will be buried a few hours later. Lutz, well-to-do farmer, dropped dead Tuesday. The two attended the same country school together a half century ago.

ROAD EMPLOYE PADS COUNTY'S PAYROLL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 21.—Accused of having presented a false pay roll, William Platt, 62, resigned veteran employe of the Mahoning County road department, was held under heavy bond today for arraignment tomorrow morning.

Platt is alleged to have made away with approximately $2,000 in funds of the engineering department, accordnig to County Surveyor George Montgomery. For more than a year, Montgomery testified before the grand jury here, Platt has been making out pay roll checks in small amounts to fictitious person and cashing them himself.

Platt resigned Saturday as superintendent of the county road maintenance department. He had been employed in the county surveyor's office for more than sixteen years.

PILGRIMS PRAY AT SHRINE IN STORM

MALDEN MASS, Nov. 21—Faith-inspired pilgrims prayed at the grave of Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Power, in Holy Cross Cemetery, in a driving snow storm.

Despite announcement by cemetery officials that all-night vigils would be forbidden after Monday, more than 300 men and women prayed all night at Father Power's grave. And when the gates were opened today, they were joined by nearly 5,000 others. Lines were again formed under police supervision.

FIRST WINTER WEATHER HERE

The cold wave, according to the meteorologists, is advancing eastward across the country.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—"Old King Winter" blew his hoary breath on parts of New England today, and a heavy snow storm swept Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, the first of this year.

Although reports from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont indicated partly cloudy weather, the local weather man said the snow fall would become general throughout New England later in the day.

HEAVY FIGHTING ON BORDER REPORTED

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Extremely heavy casualties in the fighting between Soviet and Chinese troops on the Manchurian frontier were reported today in a Mukden dispatch to the Times.

The dispatch reports Soviets surrounded the troops of General Lian-Chunchai at Manchuli, both sides suffering heavy casualties. The Chinese general, according to latest reports, was holding out but at a disadvantage.

Chang-Hsueh Liang, governor of Manchuli, declared in an interview China's adherence to the Kellogg pact led the Soviets to attack without a formal declaration of war, the dispatch continues. Chang asked the pact signatories appoint a commission to investigate the conflict.

COSTE, BELLONTE RETURN TO FRANCE

LE BOURGET AIR FIELD, France, Nov. 21.—Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, two of France's greatest airmen, returned to Le Bourget at 11:40 a. m. today (6:40 a. m. Eastern standard time), following an epochal flight over Europe and Asia in which they set a new non-stop endurance record.

Coste and Bellonte were greeted by a crowd of more than 1,000 when they arrived from Rome, their last previous stop on their flight back from Asia in easy stages.

The airmen set the new record in flying from Paris to Tsitsihar, Manchuria, a distance of approximately 5,500 miles.

PLANE PASSENGER KILLED WHEN SHIP CAPSIZES; PILOT IS KILLED

LONDON, Nov. 21.—One passenger was killed and seven others injured when an Italian airplane enroute from Ostia to Cagliara capsized off Port Terranova, Sardinia, according to a Central News dispatch from Rome today.

The dead passenger was Count Henri Piercy. The plane carried eight passengers and a crew of four.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—A twisted mass of wreckage on the roof of a mid-town building today furnished mute evidence of Manhattan's first aerial tragedy as police and department of commerce officials launched investigations into the crash which cost the life of Charles I. Reid, amateur pilot and concern manager.

Robert J. Bailie, former lion tamer, Reid's passenger on the fatal flight, escaped death by a parachute jump.

Large crowds gathered in front of the building seeking a glimpse of the wrecked plane, one crumpled wing of which was visible.

Many saw the two-seated biplane, its motor dead, skim desperately over the tops of buildings in an effort to reach Central Park, only to crash against the side of a building, burying its pilot beneath the wreckage.

AMERICAN STOCKS BUOYANT IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Accompanied by a lowering of the Bank of England discount rate to 5 1-2 per cent, American securities were buoyant on the London stock exchange this morning. United States Steel opened at 173 1-2 as compared with its closing price in New York of 168. Radio sold at 39, against its final New York quotation of 37 5-8. International Nickel changed hands at 33 1-2 against a closing figure of 32 1-4 in New York and Canadian Pacific opened at 206 1-2, as compared with its New York closing sale at 199 1-2.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Bank of Norway today reduced its discount rate from 6 to 5 1-2 per cent. The rate had been increased coincident with the English increase.

BANDIT SHOOTS MAN DURING ROBBERY

FINDLAY, O., Nov. 21.—Roy Tish is near death in a hospital here today and another man is believed seriously wounded as a result of a gun battle which occurred on the streets of Fostoria, when a bandit attempted to hold up an oil station attendant late last night. No money was taken.

Tish, the attendant who was shot by the bandit as he reached for his gun, told authorities that he shot the robber as he fell after being wounded. The wounded bandit's companion carried his accomplice to a car and drove away with him.

Tish was shot over the heart and in the leg. He is in a critical condition.

EQUINE COP DIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Familiar to hundreds of motorists because of his clever trick of stopping traffic with an upraised front hoof, "Pete," handsome chestnut ridden by Mounted Patrolman William C. Wood for twelve years, was dead today. "Pete" was destroyed after he was hit by an automobile.

RUM RUNNER CAUGHT WITH LIQUOR CARGO

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 21.—A Canadian rum runner and his cargo of 400 cases of alleged whiskey were captured under a rain of rifle bullet fire in the mouth of the Cuyahoga River early today.

The haul was one of the largest made by Cleveland coastguardsmen this year. Authorities estimated the value of the cargo aboard the craft, which bore the name "Idle Hour," at more than $28,000.

The pilot of the boat gave his name as Harry Wilson of Amherst, Ont.

Coastguardsmen sighted the runner slipping along the breakwater early today and gave chase. When the runner fled, the guardsmen opened rifle fire which brought the liquor-laden craft to a halt.

TRACE MISSING MAN LAST TO CLEVELAND

HAMILTON, O., Nov. 21.—With mystery still enveloping the movements of Albert D. Stuckey, 55, automobile dealer and bank director, today after disappearing from his home here Tuesday, further word was awaited from him.

He was last traced to Cleveland, O., through a bus ticket purchased at Covington, Ky., where he left his car and then mailed a letter to his wife which she received yesterday stating that he was sorry for what he had done and mentioned financial troubles which he had discussed with her.

It is believed that imaginary financial troubles caused his depression and flight.

HOLIDAY DINNER TO COST $10

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Housewife of Cleveland, who budgets and buys, has just figured that somewhere in the neighborhood of $10 will probably feed her family of five for Thanksgiving. Half of that sum will go for a ten-pound turkey at the current poundage rate. Cranberries, pumpkin, potatoes, celery and the rest of the trimmings for the dinner will eat up the remaining $5 at the rate of a dime here and a quarter there. Approximately 50,000 turkeys are reported on their way here for the Thanksgiving slaughter.

NEW DISCLOSURES IN TEMPLE PROBE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—That new and sensational discoveries have been made in the investigation of Angelus Temple financial affairs, now being carried on by the district attorney's office, was widely reported today.

While deputy district attorney Daniel Beecher, in charge of the investigation, would neither confirm nor deny these reports, he declared the inquiry is being pushed.

EDGE NAMED U. S. ENVOY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Senator Walter E. Edge (R) of New Jersey was confirmed by the senate today as American ambassador to France, two minutes after receiving his nomination from President Hoover.

SENATE TO ADJOURN FRIDAY; SEE PEACE OVER TARIFF FIGHT

Expect President To Intervene In Dispute Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—All factions engaged in the congressional fight over tariff revision today breathed a sigh of relief with adjournment set for Friday night and the way cleared for a renewal of efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement of the bitter senate quarrel over the Hawley-Smoot bill.

Congressional leaders again turned their eyes toward the White House in the hope that President Hoover may intervene in the tariff dispute before the bill is finally passed by the senate.

Their hopes were based largely upon the prospect that Mr. Hoover may canvass the tariff situation in his annual message to be delivered with the opening of the regular session December 2. Thus far the president has declined to interfere in the dispute over rates.

The end of the special session will see the Democratic-Insurgent Republican coalition's power intact and its leaders predicting they will continue to dominate tariff legislation.

The assurance of Sen. Borah (R) of Idaho, a coalition leader, that no effort will be made to break down the protective tariff system was viewed by "Hoover Republicans" as an opportunity for further negotiations on the bill in the next two weeks.

"There has been no threat made and no intention manifested to attack the protective system," said Borah. "There has been no purpose expressed, directly or by implication, that the vast interests now over-protected are to be destroyed."

CLEMENCEAU AGAIN IS CRITICALLY ILL

PARIS, Nov. 21.—M. Georges Clemenceau, veteran French statesman and war-time premier, was in a critical condition again today, following an attack of an abdominal ailment.

The "Tiger" has been ailing for many weeks and several times his physicians all but despaired of saving his life.

Heretofore, however, he has suffered from ailments of the heart and lungs and the attack in the abdominal region was considered by his physician, Dr. DeGennes, as a serious complication.

TUNNEYS TO RETURN TO AMERICA SOON

Tunney will be accompanied on the return trip by his wife, the former Polly Lauder. The couple has been on an extended honeymoon in Europe.

Representative Edward E. Denison, above, of Marion, Ill., has been indicted by a District of Columbia grand jury on a charge of violating the prohibition law. The indictment follows the discovery of a "reeking suitcase" at the Washington union station, addressed to Denison's secretary in care of the congressman. Denison has denied ownership of the suitcase.

SENATE DEMOCRATS LAUNCH BATTLE FOR SOLDIERS' RIGHTS

Reject Nomination Of Postmaster Not Ex-Service Man

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Senatorial Democrats today prepared to start a vigorous fight upon the alleged failure of the administration to comply with the spirit of the law directing ex-service men be given preference in government appointments.

Senator Black (D) of Alabama announced he would protest every appointment where there appears to be a violation of the preferential rights of ex-soldiers.

The senate yesterday rejected the nomination of Albert C. Grunwell to be postmaster at Dillon, Mont. He was appointed by President Hoover to succeed an ex-service man who had a twenty-point better record in the postal examinations.

The policy of the administration, according to Senator Swanson (D) of Virginia, is to add five points to an ex-service man's grade on postal and other examinaions.

This, he maintains, is a flagrant violation of the statute, which directs that they shall be given preference. The five-point advantage is nullified whenever it conflicts with the will of Republican political leaders in making appointments he asserted.

The same policy, according to Senator Barkley (D) of Kentucky is pursued in the appointment of census enumerators.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 21.—Harry F. Sinclair, released early today from the district of Columbia jail, is expected Friday or Saturday at the Rancocas stock farm at Jobstown, near here.

CALLS CONFERENCE TO ASK INDUSTRIES TO HELP BUSINESS

Merchant Kings Join President In Hope For Co-operation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Hoover turned to the industrial leaders of the country today for further assurance that American business is basically too sound to be disturbed in any vital way by the speculation of the stock market.

Already assured that agriculture is in good shape and that the railroads of the country are proceeding full steam ahead with improvements and expansions, the president summoned to the White House today a score of leading industrialists for counsel as to their future plans, and to enlist their services in the national effort to keep business on a steady keel during the period of unsettlement brought about by the decline in securities' prices.

The list of the president's conferees read like an industrial blue book of America.

Coming into the capital this morning were leaders in the automobile industry, such as Henry Ford and Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors; there were the kings of the utilities business such as Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of General Electric, and Walter Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph; merchants like Julius Rosenwald of Sears and Roebuck; Samuel Reyburn of Lord and Taylor, and Jesse L. Straus of Macy and Co.; there were steel representatives like Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the steel corporation, and George Laughlin, of Jones and Laughlin, of Pittsburgh; and many others whose names are by-words in Wall St. and the industrial marts of the country.

The company which Mr. Hoover gathered about the big table in the cabinet room at the White House was by long odds the most distinguished, in a business way, that Washington has seen in many years. Most of them he knew personally, for as secretary of commerce he was wont to hold numerous conferences of like nature, seeking guidance and cooperation in the expansion of America's foreign trade.

Today, however, Mr. Hoover sought something more. He sought the co-operation of the industrial leaders in the maintenance of general business conditions on an even keel until by its own effort it can work itself free from the depressing effect of recent stock market declines.

On his own part, as president, Mr. Hoover assured his visitors that the government believes conditions are basically sound, and to them he pledged whole-hearted government co-operation in the expansion of export, which plays such a big part in the piling up of favorable trade balances.

And from them he requested the same degree of co-operation that the government is willing to extend.

Specifically, Mr. Hoover sought from his conferees assurances that they will not embark upon panicky retrenchment policies at this critical time.

Millions of American workmen are directly or indirectly dependent upon the men gathered in the cabinet room at the White House today for their continued employment. Curtailment of production means the loss of jobs to thousands, and that entails a loss in the country's purchasing power that can be measured in millions.

Occasional curtailment of production is necessary in any successful business, but it is against

CHILDREN PERISH FROM SMOKE FUMES

DAYTON, O., Nov. 21.—Two children are dead here today as the result of a fire which partly destroyed their home late yesterday. They are Rayburn, 4, and Mildren Jean, 2, children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rutrough, of this city.

The fire which broke out in a wash-room of the residence trapped the children upstairs and they were suffocated before firemen could reach them. The mother returning from a nearby store made a valiant effort to save them but fainted when the smoke enveloped her.

FEAR-STRICKEN MEN RESCUED FROM LAKE ERIE BREAKWATERS

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 21.—Fear-stricken and chilled to the bone, two men were rescued from the breakwaters of Lake Erie early today by coast guardsmen and boatmen who fought heavy lake waters to answer calls for help.

The men are Fred Klein and George Myers, both of Cleveland. They had been marooned for three hours after their motor boat had been dashed to pieces by the lake waves against the breakwater.

At Mt. Sinai Hospital, where they were taken, it was said the men had suffered exposure but that they were not in serious condition.

Rescuers battled the lake waves for more than a half hour before they were able to reach the water-drenched and frozen men.

Klein and Myers said they had started out duck hunting in an outboard motor craft when they were caught in the violent snow storm which whipped the city late last night.

SUED; SEEK MONEY FOR TRANSPORTATION

The Greene County Board of Education and the Silvercreek Twp. Board of Education are named joint defendants in separate suits filed in Common Pleas Court by O. M. Creamer and Hiram Rogers, both residents of New Jasper Twp., who seek judgments against the school boards for money they spent to transport their children to Jamestown High School.

Both plaintiffs assert they live more than four miles away from Jamestown High School, the nearest school, and that there is no school in the township in which they reside.

The fathers claim that in conferences with the Silvercreek Twp. school board prior to entering their children in Jamestown High School and prior to each succeeding school year thereafter the township board agreed to pay for transporting the children to the school in question at the rate of $1.25 a day.

Declaring the board has failed to live up to its agreement, Creamer seeks to be reimbursed for $1,274.75, covering the period from September, 1925 to date that his sons, Davis, a crippled child, and Russell, were students at the Jamestown school, while Rogers asks a judgment for $209.50, from September, 1928 to date, the period his son, Lawrence, attended the same school.

Both plaintiffs are represented by Attorney Marcus McCallister.

MISS EMMA LYON, executive secretary of the joint American Red Cross Chapter and Social Service League gave the address at the meeting of Catharine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the home of Mrs. S. O. Hale, N. Detroit St., Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Lyon talked on the subject of "American Homes and Citizenship". She dated her address back to the time of the sailing of the Mayflower and brought out the fact that these people were willing to endure hardships for freedom of conscience. She told of the wars which have been fought for this country, when men and women were called upon for sacrifices to uphold freedom and principles. "Not war alone, but peace time disasters have taken many American men and women doing and daring for now and generations to come," said Miss Lyon.

The social agencies that are now working for good citizenship feel that giving food and clothing alone is not sufficient, but teaching self reliance and self support she said. "Nothing concerns us but human beings, as we know no race or creed, neither East, West, North nor South", she said.

The meeting opened with the regular business session followed by an interesting report of the meeting at Blanchester in connection with the Bullskin Road, given by Mrs. Alice G. Eavey. Mrs. Eavey brought out the fact that the road runs from the Ohio River to Detroit, Mich., and that Detroit St., this city, was originally the Detroit Road.

Mrs. Hale was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. John Birch, Miss Mae Carrison and Mrs. James A. Chew.

The preliminaries in John S. Fogarty's attempt to reduce Gene Tunney's bankroll by $500,000 were being staged on Armistice Day in Fort Worth, Tex., in preparation for the real bout scheduled for Bridgeport, Conn., early next year. At the extreme left Frank Wilder, counsel for the Fogarty's in their suit against the ex-king of the pugilistic world. Mrs. Fogary, the center figure in the great bout; (center) James Joseph (Gene) Tunney, outstanding figure in the world's history of pugilism and undefeated king of the fistic world. At lower right is Homer Cummings who will defend Tunney, while Charles J. Martin (center) will perform the same office for the Fogarty's.

International Newsreel

GENE TUNNEY may be through with the ring, but he isn't through with fighting. Out in the wide open spaces—Fort Worth, Tex., to be more explicit, the gong has sounded for the opening round of the great Fogarty versus Tunney battle, for a purse of a million dollars. A brilliant array of legal talent will second the principals, including Homer Cummings who will defend Tunney, and George Whiteside, of New York, his personal counsel. Frank Wilder and Charles J. Martin will perform similar office for the Fogartys. Mrs. Fogarty's action is for breach of promise for which she asks $500,000, while John Fogarty is bringing a suit for alienation by which he seeks to put another half million dent in the Tunney family fortune. The purpose of the present hearing is to take the depositions of over 100 witnesses to save the expense of bringing them from Texas to Bridgeport, Conn., where the cases will actually be contested. There are witnesses who will offer testimony that the Fogartys were living happily together until she met Tunney in Hot Springs, Ark., where he was then training. Mrs. Fogarty will offer additional witnesses to testify that they saw her in the company of the boxer in Chicago, St. Paul, Little Rock, Ark., and Ponca City, Okla. Mrs. Fogarty will also endeavor to prove that she divorced her husband, a Fort Worth plumber, only at the insistence of Gene, whom, she alleges, offered to marry her, as soon as she secured her decree. This she did in May, 1925. Witnesses for Fogarty will offer similar testimony to substantiate his alienation action.

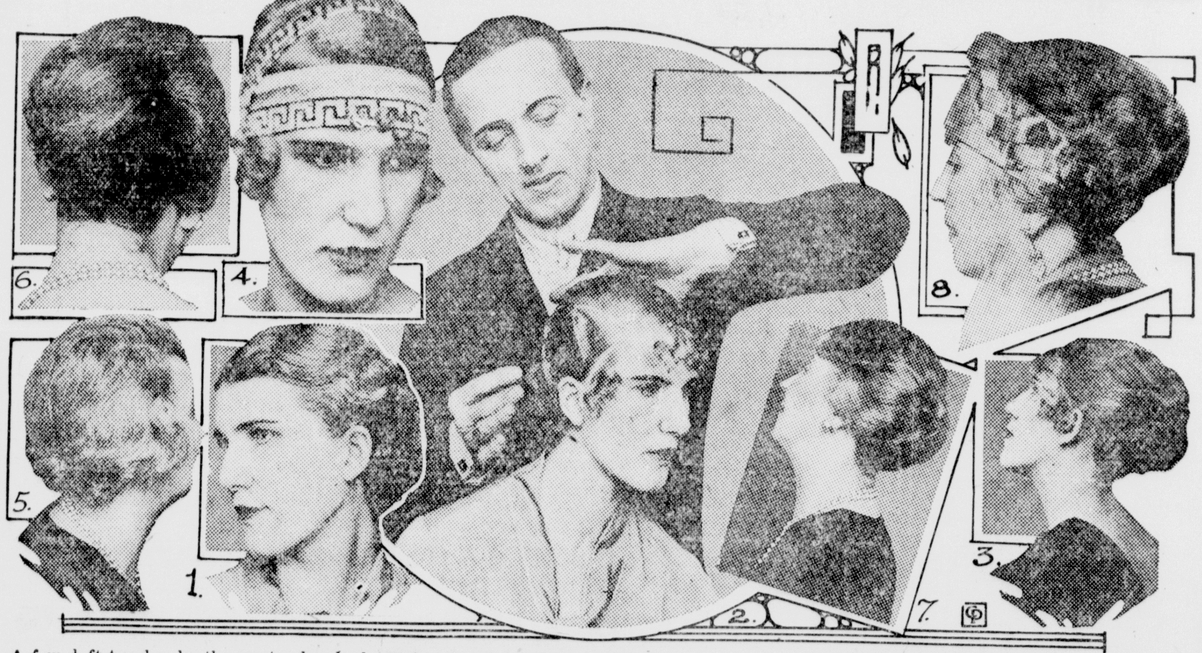

A host of witnesses have been assembled on behalf of Tunney to show that the Fogartys were not on the best of terms at the time that she met Tunney. Tunney's counsel will also endeavor to show that the actions brought by the Fogartys are nothing else than blackmail. All in all, it looks like a very sad time for Tunney as far as publicity is concerned, despite his anguished appeals to the press to let him alone. The cases will be actually under way very early in the new year, and it is not yet known whether the Fogartys will be called to the witness stand by Gene's attorneys.

FOR THAT ULTRA-SMART OCCASION

Frances Clyne, New York dressmaker, says: Costumes for the opera this winter are regal, for the opera is quite the most formal evening entertainment one can attend. One must think of such a costume as a single ensemble. No gown alone is quite adequate. The wrap is quite as important as the gown. The ensemble pictured is of brocaded lame, fine as lace and pliable as silk. The gown has a smartly cut overskirt cut in one with the front section of the gown which ruffles and dips in the back. The coat has a flaring skirt portion and is lavishly collared in white fox.

ARTISTIC TOUCHES TRANSFORM GROWING BOB INTO CHARMING COIFFURE

A few deft touches by the master hand of Antoine, famous Paris hairdresser, transforms the hard to manage growing bob, or the hair of the not-so-young woman, into a charming medium of self-expression and artistry. Photo No. 1 shows a typical growing bob, too long to look neat and too short to do in a knot. In center (2) Antoine is showing what can be done with hair at this awkward length. The model's face being long instead of round, he combs down a fringe of bangs and brings some curls forward in front of the ears. The manner in which monsieur tucks curly ends of the growing bob high on the head instead of giving what he terms "a heavy line on the neck" is shown in (3), and the same model is coiffed for evening with a headdress of metal ribbon (4), complementing the long skirt and high waist of the gown. In (5) the not-so-young woman's hair is shown as she has been doing it herself; (6) shows back view of same head after a few deft touches by Antoine. A side view of the same coiffure is shown (7), and the evening variation as arranged by M. Antoine, with a coronet of silver ribbon, is pictured (8).

DEPUTIES NAMED TO DISTRIBUTE TAGS

Dilver Belden, auto club secretary, will have charge of the sale at Xenia; D. E. Bailey at Jamestown; Mary Oster at Yellow Springs; Ralph Fulton at Osborn, and Katie Eagle at Spring Valley. Fulton is the only new appointee, the others have served in a similar capacity before.

The appointments are made annually. Sale of the new tags starts December 1 but the plates may not be used by autoists until December 20.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. CHARLES WATSON

Mrs. Charles Watson, 87, died at her home in Jamestown Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock, as the result of complications which set in two weeks ago after she sustained a broken hip in a fall.

Mrs. Watson was born in Virginia, February 10, 1842, where she spent all her girlhood. She had lived in Jamestown a number of years.

She is survived by her husband, Charles Watson and three children: William of Jamestown and Miss Alice Watson at home and Mrs. Catherine Cline of Jamestown. One daughter, Mrs. Isaac McCann, preceded her in death a number of years.

Funeral services will be held at the residence Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be made in Jamestown.

Poems that Live

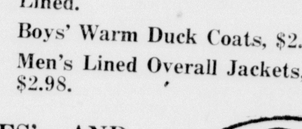

UNDER THE LINDENS

UNDER the lindens lately sat
A couple, and no more, in chat;
I wondered what they would be at
Under the lindens.

I saw four eyes and four lips meet,
I heard the words, "How sweet! how sweet!"
Had then the Fairies given a treat
Under the lindens?

I pondered long and could not tell
What dainty pleased them both so well.
Bees! bees! was it your hydromel
Under the lindens?

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

TRUE WORSHIPERS—The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him. God is a spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.—John 4:23, 24.

MERCHANT MARINE ESSENTIAL

Speaking as a physician, Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, recently undertook to analyze the mental condition of the upper house of congress; and he did a good job. Speaking as a legislator of experience in Washington and as a practical student of national interests, the senator still more lately discussed the merchant marine question before the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers. Much of what he said is to the point.

Mr. Copeland insists that what our country is to be in the family of nations depends on our merchant fleet. "We may have gold in our banks, but unless we can dispose of our surplus goods and crops our riches will disappear," he asserts, and adds, "The great powers, the world powers are the nations that control export trade. In the last analysis, it is the merchant fleet, and not vessels of war that fix naval supremacy. If Great Britain were to destroy one-half of her battleships, she would still be mistress of the seas. Her merchant ships with all their potentialities would guarantee her ocean supremacy."

The British themselves do not take as thoroughgoing a view as this, else they would immediately cut their fleet in two and save a great deal of expense; but there is, nevertheless, a substratum of solid truth beneath the senator's oratory. Certainly no country which depends upon export trade for a material part of its prosperity and progress, as the United States is doing more and more every year, can hope for permanently happy economic conditions unless it has its own ocean-going vessels in which to transport goods. In no other way can it really be independent of the rest of the world and make its own markets. And if it is an exaggeration to assert that it is the merchant fleet that finally fixes naval supremacy, it is at least true, as Senator Copeland contends, that without a merchant marine this country will find great difficulty in remaining a world power in either peace or war, certainly in war when a big, modern merchant fleet properly organized can be made into an auxiliary fleet almost over night.

The man without funds or borrowing power didn't get pinched in Wall street; which indicates that sometimes even a pauper gets a break.

The only avowed dry among the four aspirants to New York's city hall received 5,956 votes out of more than 1,400,000.

Many parents would save themselves a lot of worry merely by remembering that it is normal for youngsters to be savages.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Any theater man will tell you he craves women audiences. They may be hard to handle and difficult to seat. They may stick wads of wrigley under the chairs and litter the aisles with crumpled programs and caramel wrappers; but if they like the show, they DO go out and boost it, and they don't mean maybe!

Hence the verdict: Most producers would rather give away 100 tickets to matinee fans than spend $10 advertising. The returns from the consequent chatter are higher.

TIMES SQUARE EATERIES

Moderate priced Nose Bags still bud and bloom in the Longacre and Times Square area. Every variety of hasherie known to man, from the modest Coffee Pot to the Brass Rail variety, has come into being along The Lane and its fringes in the ten years succeeding the Noble Experiment.

Men need some place to congregate, lounge, smoke and something to sip as they spout. Before we lost our likker, The Tavern was the place where inspiration soared and sang and where camaraderie flourished.

Dunce McVacuum, on his way home, with the "call" the Boss had given him still rankling in his memory, paused at The Tavern, where he encountered a bunch, ready and willing to lend ear to his tale of woe:

'An' I sez t' the Boss 'Lissen,' I sez. 'Whoinell d'yuh think yer talkin' to?"

From the bartender down to 'Dan, Dan, the lavatory man," they all knew he was lying. But they recognized, also, the need that Dunce McVacuum was laboring under, of getting his imaginary trouble off his chest. Thus, they grinned, appreciatively, harkened patiently, and sent the Worthy Brother home in a receptive mood to his wife and kiddies and the cat, with the joy germs ajingle and everything jake.

You can't get that sort of companionship in Childs. The chairs are too hard and small and institutional. The one-arm lunch joints are too noisy and greasy. There's too much gold leaf. And there's as much camaraderie in a speakeasy as there is in a counterfeiters' den.

So in Tammany Town the number of moderate priced Nose Bags increases, month by month, while in and out of them, the Depressed Pilgrim wanders looking for something he lost when they closed The Tavern.

WELL, WHO COULD TELL UP?

A modernistic painter, named Eddie Dickinson struck off a thing called "The Fossil Hunters" which he sent over to be exhibited at the National Academy of Design.

They're very conservative at the National Academy. They didn't understand modernistic art, with its agony of angles and its delirium tremens colors. Nevertheless they are fair. The Committee on Hanging couldn't decide which was the top and which was the bottom of the picture. So they tossed a coin and up she went on the wall.

When the Prize Committee reached the Dickinson picture the Hanging Committee pointed out to them that very possibly the picture was supposed to hang the other way. The Prize Committee looked at it both ways and found that either way it was worthy. So they awarded it the Second Altman prize of $500. Later Eddie came around and told them the picture had been hung cockeyed. So they changed it and everybody was happy

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

TASTE AND EMOTIONALISM

Not long ago, if one had been in a Detroit court, he would have been treated to the spectacle of six jury women kissing a two-time convict and three-time killer, after acquitting him of a charge of attempted robbery. This sort of thing is probably the zero mark in bad taste. But that isn't the most important thing about it. One wonders, or rather one is sure what the effect of such exhibitions of unwholesome emotionalism is upon the people—especially upon the kind that has little to do but attend sensational trials. Men frequently show as little judgment in jury work as women, but so far few have been seen to kiss the prisoner.

NOISE

A committee is gathering samples of noise in New York streets. A special truck equipped with sensitive apparatus for measuring the intensity of sound is traveling through the streets. A questionnaire will provide any information as to the noises which annoy the most people the most of the time. A survey will result in recommendations for legislation. Much noise is useless. Perhaps it can be controlled—and some eliminated.

A complete noise survey would include investigation of the noise of useless conversation. Much talk is mere noise. How many of us stop to think whether we have anything to add to information or entertainment before we join in and have our say?

HOW ABOUT THE NEGRO?

Bishop McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches, speaking at an inter-racial meeting, says "the assumption of superiority of the white man which has no basis whatever in fact," is the chief cause of inter-racial difficulties.

"No race in human history," says McConnell, "has ever made, in the same length of time, the strides the Negro race has."

There are 260,000 colored people in New York—about 3 per cent of the population.

Who's Who and Timely Views

By CONGRESSMAN BERTRAND SNELL
Chairman, House Committee on Rules

(Bertrand H. Snell was born at Colton, N. Y., Dec. 9, 1870. He is a graduate of Amherst college. He had began as a bookkeeper, and later became secretary and manager of the Racquette River Paper company at Potsdam, N. Y. He has been proprietor of the Snell Power plant at Higley Falls, president of the York State Oil company, and president of the board of trustees of Clarkson Memorial college. Elected to congress in 1915 from the thirty-first New York district, he has been returned each term since. He is a charman of the committee on rules. He was a delegate to the Republican national convention in 1916, '20 and '24.)

Canalization of the St. Lawrence waterway to provide an outlet to the ocean for traffic from the Great Lakes and the Central West, permissive voluntary consolidation of the railroads, regulation of the interstate motor bus traffic, and a new federal penitentiary for the northeastern states, constitute the main legislative agenda for congress at the coming regular session.

One of the outstanding matters that I hope congress will take up at the coming regular session is the canalization of the St. Lawrence river. The Welland canal will be completed on July 1, 1930. The fact that United States army engineers have reported adversely to the deepening of the present barge canal across New York state makes it quite likely, if there is to be an outlet from the west it will be down the St. Lawrence river.

I purpose to do everything that I can to press legislation with a view to this canalization. There are about 21 states that are interested in this proposal. It means an outlet for the Great Lakes and for all the central states for ocean-going traffic.

As to the voluntary consolidation of railroads, it has been understood that this legislation is expected to come up for consideration. I am not sufficiently informed as to the exact sentiment for immediate action, but I know that there is such legislation before the house interstate commerce committee.

But lines are multiplying rapidly all over the United States and in many cases railroads are operating bus lines to meet the competition. I think it is imperative to have some kind of regulatory legislation, and I rather think there will be.

Of course, the primary consideration on the program will be the annual appropriation bills, which will be expedited.

We are going to stay here until the senate takes some action on the tariff bill, or sends word that there is no prospect of a bill. There is no plan for any business by the house the rest of the session except the tariff, if the senate passes it, and the election of the present members of the committee on appropriations.

I am going to press, as vigorously as I can, legislation to provide for a new federal penitentiary in the northeastern states. I think it is absurd that the federal prisoners of New England and the other eastern states have to be sent all the way to Atlanta. I have been interested in this subject for a number of years, and I am going to take up the matter with the department of justice.

TEMPERING THE WIND TO THE SHORN LAMB

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Many are the instances when beauty helps women to get what they want, and there are very few women, indeed, who ignore the power of personal charm. I doubt whether many of my readers realize how often men and boys, as well as girls and women, are worried about blemishes or any defects which mar their personal appearance.

I am thinking of a very lovely lady who said one day to her particular beauty specialist, "I wond whether you can do something fo young men?" The specialist agsked what particularly had to be done, and the lady replied:

"I happen to have a very charming neighbors who is the mother of three grown boys. They are all perfectly wonderful fellows, doing fine things in school, but all of them are afflicted with acne, and both they and the mother worry endlessly about it. Do you think you can help them?"

The specialist told her to ask her neighbor to come in, and in just a day or two later she arrived with her eldest boy. He was a tall, strapping fellow, with excellent features, but horribly disfigured by an extremely severe case of acne. His shyness made it difficult to know him, but as the treatments began to show surprising results, and his skin became clearer, he grew quite cheerful and then in a very boyish manner remarked: "Gee, I don't know what you're using on me, but it's great stuff. May I bring my brothers?" And he did.

Some time afterward a very happy mother called on the beautician to thank her personally. The acne had given her as much concern as the boys, for she watched their shyness and wondered whether they would ever be able to meet people confidently. As the treatments cured her boys of acne she saw them grow more cummunicative and more anxious to mingle in youthful society.

She added that the boys were conscientious about following out the treatments at home, and that it had even gotten to the point where they retaliated when one dared to use any of the preparations belonging to the other.

When one stops to consider the truly terrible psychological effect which acne can have on the mental attitude of adolescent boys and girls it certainly is a real relief to know that it can be eliminated.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—In the middle of a lovely lawn back of the Hotel Pleasanton in Honolulu there used to stand (and does yet, for all I know) a 12 or 15 foot pole with a miniature structure atop of it, something like a dog house.

Around this pole was a wire ring, loose enough to slide easily up and down, but prevented from sliding over the top by the little building. Attached to the ring was one end of a chain, maybe five yards long; its other end fastened to a belt spanning the slim waist of a small moneky.

When Jocko wearied of playing at his chain's extremity on the lawn, he would scale the pole, the ring sliding after him, and sit in his house or on its roof. With the ring at that altitude, his chain hung sufficiently slack to let him jump into an overhanging tree, and occasionally he did so.

ONE day he did it once too often. He accidentally kinked his chain around a few twigs and could not get down again.

The row he raised was astonishing for so small a monkey.

Attracted by the chattering, a score of guests ran from the hotel to invesitgate. A rescue was attempted immediately.

A ladder was brought and leaned against the pole. Quickly it became evident that that plan would not work. The pole would not support a man's weight. Climbing the tree did no good, either; the monkey was too far out on his limb.

AT this juncture a Japanese laborer happened to pass.

All labor in the Hawaiian archipelago is Japanese, Chinese, Korean, Filipino or Portuguese, with a thin admixture of assorted beach combers.

Moreover, nearly the entire population of the islands, consisted of exceedingly common laborers, except the aristocracy. The Hawaiian aristocracy is peculiar; unique, probably.

Approximately a century ago the archipelago fell under what is euphoniously called American "influence." By the early 9"s fewer than a dozen American families owned practically everything above sea level—not only the real estate but everything that occupied it. Every peanut stand at least paid tribute to them.

THOSE original families remain virtually the island's sole proprietors.

With their poor relations, brought over from the main land, and a scanty group of white-collar dependents, and of course the tourists, they are the only folk in Hawaii territory who signify a cent's worth.

Around a third of a million imported toilers (the aborigines being all but exterminated) are subject to them—the merest handful of them.

It is doubtful earth can show another so air-tight a monopoly.

It goes without saying that such a system's beneficiaries consider it the most beneficent in the universe. They cannot afford to think otherwise.

WELL, along came this Japanese laborer.

The Mongolian demurred.

"You blankety blank so-and-so, you!" yelled the enraged rescuers. "You do what we tell you. Quick, too, before we kick you up."

So a dozen of strong hands kept the ladder in a perpendicular position while the Jap ascended into the foliage and freed the scolding cimian—it only took a minute.

DOWN came Jocko with a rush, jabbering bloody murder. Kind arms received him. Pats and caresses half smothered him. Consoling baby-talk was lavished on him.

Wham! down also crashed the forgotten ladder. Kerplunk! the disregarded Japanese hit the unyielding greensward. Not a head was turned in his direction. Not an ear heeded his groans as he got up and limped off. True, he was not seriously injured—but that was immaterial.

Which goes to show how much the commonalty counts in Hawaii.

HIRAM BINGHAM, now of Connecticut, the first U. S. Senator in a generation to have his official conduct formally censured by his fellow solons, as "contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics,' and tending to bring the senate into dishonor and disrepute"—

Senator Bingham was born and brought up in Honolulu, a scion of the Hawaiian aristocracy.

What stumped the senate was the manifest honesty of Bingham's inability to see that he had wronged the public by placing the representative of certain special interests in a position to aid these interests at the public's expense.

ALTHOUGH not a senator raised his voice in the culprit's defense, 22 out of the 76 who voted opposed the resolution of censure, not because they denied his culpability, but because they were so sure he meant harm by what he had done. As Senator Norris, who introduced the resolution, expressed it: "The regrettable part of the whole matter is the fact that the senator from Connecticut does not realize he has done wrong."

And Bingham still treated it as pure "politics" in the face of his warmest friend, Senator David A. Reed's remark, "If that resolution were passed about me, I would feel that the rest of my life was to be spent under a cloud."

A CURIOUS career!—Senator Bingham's.

Initially, by blood and birth and upbringing a Hawaiian aristocrat!—one of the anointed.

Then a student, successively, at Andover, Yale the University of California!— growing constantly more superior.

A professor, successively, at Harvard, Princeton and Yale!— more and more superior.

An explorer in repeated expeditions into the South American wilds!—bossing scarcely human peons, instead of coolies, as in Hawaii.

War commander of an air port!—a good one, too, but a commander. Then lieutenant governor and governor of Connecticut. Always in a position of superiority.

Altogether, for a lifetime up to date, an abnormally superior person!

THE incident of the Japanese and the monkey on the Hotel Pleasanton lawn in Honolulu may seem frivolous to some people.

I don't believe psychoanalysts will consider it so, however.

I think it explains the most extraordinary complex in the United States senate.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Menu Hint

BREAKFAST
Grape Fruit
Philadelphia Scrapple
Whole Wheat Toast Butter
Coffee Milk

LUNCHEON
Hot Cheese Sandwiches
Mustard Pickles
Fruit Salad with Currant Jelly Dressing
Cookies Tea

DINNER
Pot Roast with Onions
Mashed Potatoes Carrots
Chicory with French Dressing
Peach Melba Dutch Devils
Demi-Tasse

This menu was planned for a family of six. Don't forget to file this recipe for scrapple. If breakfast is the problem meal to most of you that it is to me, you will welcome a dish that you can easily make and which will aid your problem. My breakfast "problem" is simply that my family likes a hearty first meal and I like a light one—the same things every morning. Not being interested myself in eating different things for breakfast, it seems hard to give the rest a varied menu.

Short brown fur jackets are worn topping woolen skirts in green or rust tones.

Dresses of fishnet, especially in black, with attached cut-on sleeves, are "good" this season.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Sleeping in the Cold.

Not long ago I had a letter from a reader who wanted to know my opinion of the idea that it is harmful to sleep in cold air. She had read in some article that it was.

No it isn't. Most of us find that we have a much more refreshing sleep when the air is cold than when warmed artificially. Personally, I find I cannot sleep at all if I leave the radiator on during the night, no matter how cold it is (and it gets pretty cold here in New York.)

But you must not sleep cold—that is harmful. You must have warm night clothes, and sufficient bed coverings to keep warm. Woolen blankets and an eiderdown quilt of course, are the best. And wear a night cap if it is very cold, or pull your sheet over the back of your head. Then, if necessary, a hot water bag or two, or three. I often take two with me, especially when I read in bed, for my hands get cold, so I have one of my feet and one for my hands. After my hands get warm, I slip it down to my shoulders or the small of my back. Comfy! I love my h. w. bs.

Now I'm smashing a common belief that it is weakening to take a hot water bag to bed to warm the feet. It isn't. It is almost impossible to go to sleep with cold feet, and the time you take from your needed sleep is certainly much more apt to be harmful. Naturally, I advise exercise, so that one has a good circulation, but no matter how good a circulation some people have their feet don't seem to recognize it.

About the warm air again. Remember that cheap types of gas stoves to warm the room may be dangerous, also coal fires and oil lamps that have incomplete combustion.

Outdoor air, even in the coldest of weather, has distinctly stimulating and healing properties, and the longer you stay in it the better. Many convalescents improve markedly when placed in the open. At the battle Creek sanitarium you will find the lawns and porches (appropriated for the purpose) filled with patients in reclining chairs and cots. They are put out in the morning, and are required to stay all day, only going in for their treatments. Their meals are brought to them.

In the New York Lying-in hospital (and probably in many other hospitals) they have a solarium for their serious cases, and these patients stay out in the open night and day, even in the coldest weather, and are only taken in for treatments, and when it storms.

I should say that all our experience points to the fact that cold air is harmful, but defidedly beneficial, if the person is kept warm.

Miss S.—Persons can't help the wrong impressions and the wrong things that they do through lack of knowledge in their early lives, and probably every one has experienced some disagreeable things of a similar nature to yours. Realizing that you are not alone in such psychic injuries, stops their hurting. Stop concentrating on them, Miss S. When you begin to pity yourself, say to yourself: "T is a fine thing I'm doing! Self-pity! The most despicable of emotions. I'll snap out of it!" Get yourself as much interested in some work or hobby as you possibly can, and get interested in and be as helpful and kind to other people as you can. This will help you forget your own little ego and bring you happiness.

Naturally you must have the right diet so that your nervous system is nourished properly, and you should have some exercise and lots of outdoor life.

If you find it too difficult, better consult a physician who specializes in psychoanalysis, or some other well qualified practitioner of that art.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Quite a jolt, isn't it, when a married person finds that they have taken on, not an adult companion, one to be pals with, to lean on in time of trouble, and to counsel with in times of stress, but a child, a selfish child at that. One who wants to be mothered or fathered petted and spoiled.

This is the problem of the woman who writes me this letter part of which I print.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm a married woman of 26 and have been married six years, but have no children. Now I dearly love children and have always wished for one, but my husband says he never expects to be called daddy, and as long as I live with him I shall never have any.

"He also says if I had any I would love them better than him. He doesn't like it if I speak a good word for any other man, even my brother-in-law, who is older and has a wife and three sweet babies.

"Now I love him dearly and just don't see how I could give him up, but I would love to know how to change his ways. At just any little thing he will get mad and pout like a kid for two or three days without saying scarcely anything to me.

"He is a good provider and any time I want money (when he is in a good humor) I always get it. I just try in every way to please him, but it seems I can't all the time. When he isn't mad he just makes over me and is silly about me, says he can't give me up and that no one else can do anything as good as I.

You've got a grown up child on your hands, dear, and a very spoiled one at that. He wants a doting mother, not a wife. He's a lovable child, generous and affectionate — when he gets his own way, so you love him and pamper him and make him worse.

Only a strong-minded woman can cope with such a character, just as only a strong-minded parent can properly train a head-strong, selfish child. Probably, deep down in his heart, he knows he is weak—has the inferiority complex we hear so much about—and depends on you—who have much more character—to build up his self-respect and defend him against himself and the world.

There are two ways of getting around such a character. You can coax, cajole and flatter (which does not always work, as you have found). In that case you would tell him that you want a baby because you want him—your husband—perpetuated. His appearance, his manners, his character should be reproduced in children. What would you do if anything happened to him? You would be desolate, but if you had a little son or daughter who looked like him, a part of him, to comfort you, you would be a wee bit less forlorn and, could never forget him for another. You can flatter him by the thought that he will be more admired as the father of children.

Or you can treat him as the wise mother treats the spoiled child. You can pay no attention to his tantrums. You can go your way, doing what you know to be right, and if he doesn't like it he can have his spells and get over them without any sugar-coated flattery from you. You can tell him to snap out of it, to be a man, and that when he is at his best you love him dearly, but that when he sulks and won't speak he is a subject to laughter or a good sound spanking, not a man you can admire and look up to.

This latter course will be a long, hard fight full of heartache for you, and you've got to be strong to go through with it. I don't envy you, my dear, if you decide on it, but you MAY—I cannot promise you will—make a man of him and win through to happiness.

The very fact that you are sweet natured and unselfish makes you a victim to his whims, and those facts, too, make him need you and will give you the victory if you try to cure him. God be with you, my dear.

L. S. B.: If the man you like best of all is so weak minded that he lets his late wife's mother scare him away, he is not the type of man you need for a husband. The one you speak of doesn't sound so good, either, unless you want to support him after you are married. Better forget them both, and the chances are you'll meet some one who is more suitable and will really make you happy.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

FLAG OF TRUCE

Stagg and Rose were caught in a clever trap and they knew it, and all the time that Lady-Bird had been explaining things to Peter they had been consulting as to what to do next. Now they drew apart and looked cautiously about, Stagg Beetle crawled slowly to the side of the path. The Gun Beetles made no move. They were waiting to see what he would do next.

A white clover grew beside the path and this was evidently the goal that Stagg was trying to reach. It didn't take him long, and he caught the stalk in his pointed horns, pulled the blossom within his reach and bit through the stem with his sharp teeth.

Then, holding the white clover firmly in his jaws, he crawled quickly back toward his comrade. They talked for a moment, with heads close together, and then side by side, with Stagg still bearing the white clover, Stagg and Rose advanced toward the party beside the stone.

"They have had enough, boys," said Father, "and here they come with a flag of truce. Shall we make peace?"

"I say 'yes'," declared Biffer, and Lady-Bird and the other Gun Beetles agreed heartily with him. Peter said nothing. He was too much interested in watching the truce bearer and his companion.

The two former hunters came vrey close to Father Beetle before they said a word and then they spoke to the commander-in-chief.

"We surrender," was all that they said, but for their generous enemy it was quite enough. Father Gun Beetle held out his claw.

"Fine," said he. "We are sorry if we scared you, but we only did it in self-defense, you know. We were warned that you were on one of your great hunts and although it may be great sport for you, and we know that you mean us no harm, still it is never very much funf or us. The last time we were chased one of my babies died from fright and another ran so fast that he forgot to look where he was going and fell into the brook And my eldest boy broke his wing cover on a rock."

Buccaneers Meet Sidney In Final Home Game

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Between halves of the recent Ohio Wesleyan-Wittenberg game the Lutheran school, now under fire in the Buckeye Conference, took an opportunity to poke fun at the now famous report of the Carnegie Foundation.

Its version of the report was presented by the Boost "W" Association in a stunt intended to show football as it would be played in years to come under regulations of "The Bethlehem Foundation."

Two elevens dressed in tuxedos took the field while the announcer explained that every man on the two teams had paid his own tuition in full, had made a four-point average in scholarship, and had purchased his own gridiron uniform.

The tuxedo-clad gridders battled to a scoreless tie with but one casualty when one player soiled his finger. He was immediately removed from the game and given first aid at the side-lines by an exgames of the conference schedule pert manicurist. Coeds served tea on the gridiron at the close of the battle.

One of the best records made on the collegiate gridiron this season is possessed by Ohio University, which had the Buckeye Conference title won even before the last four games of the conference schedule were played. Not only is Ohio one of the few teams without a tie or defeat to mar its record, but it is at the top in the matter of scoring and defense. If Ohio can defeat Wittenberg in its final game Friday, it may finish as the high scorer among undefeated teams this season. Ohio's defensive record, marred by one touchdown and point after registered by Ohio Wesleyan, will also be hard to beat.

Not only is the loss of Al Marsters to Dartmouth for the rest of the season a big blow to the Green team but it is a distinct loss to the sport that had fondly expected to list the great backfield star among the great and near-great in its selection of All-American candidates.

However, the luster of his performance against Columbia, Harvard and Yale is not taken away by the spine injury that has ended Marsters' collegiate football career for the remainder of the year.

The Arlington Antelope is still leading the nation for individual scoring honors this season and he left behind him a mark that only such super-players as Albie Booth and Red Cagle may shoot at. Yet when all is said and done he cannot be rated in the select group of all-stars at the close of the season in preference to rivals who have played throughout the entire campaign in the thick of almost every game.

Two years ago it will be remembered that the great Bruce Caldwell, Yale star, had the hard luck to be declared ineligible on the eve of the Princeton and Harvard games, at a time when the Eli ace was ticketed for a berth at halfback on the All-American team that season.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Wilbur Kappel, Beavercreek Twp., arrested Wednesday by M. C. Davis, state prohibition agent of Dayton, on a charge of second offense of possessing liquor, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Probate Judge S. C. Wright Thursday morning. Judge Wright set the hearing for 1 p. m. December 2 and released Kappel upon $1,000 appearance bond. The arresting dry agent reported he confiscated a pint and a half of corn whiskey as evidence.

TEAMS WILL BATTLE TO ABANDON CELLAR IN LEAGUE CONTEST

Xenia Twice Lost To Sidney In Past Records Show

By PHIL FRAME

Scrimmage is tabco this week as Xenia Central High's bruised Buccaneers prepare for the last home game of the season with a Miami Valley League rival, Sidney High, at Cox Athletic Field Friday afternoon. The kick-off will be at 2:45 o'clock.

Although the last seven games have been marked up on the debit side of the ledger and the Bucs are just about ready to file a petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities far exceeding assets, followers of the team believe that Xenia's feat in scoring two touchdowns against Wilmington last week has given the boys just the right amount of confidence to end their home stand victoriously.

The Bucs showed more offensive ability in the Quaker tilt than they have in any preceding contest this fall and it was all due to forward passes. Xenia at least broke even on its aerial game for the passes were responsible for two touchdowns as well as a pair of markers for Wilmington.

The Bucs have gradually been gaining experience this season and should be about ripe for a victory. Light workouts have been in order this week in order that the already appalling casualty list will not mount any higher.

Changes in the starting lineup are also in prospect and Coach Wilson will seek to put as strong a team as possible on the field.

Friday's contest will take on the aspect of a battle for "life" between Xenia and Sidney in the Miami Valley League standing. Neither team has won a league game, being the only elevens in this category and each team will put forth its best efforts to escape the cellar championship, a dubious distinction.

Sidney will rule the favorite but that is not worrying the Bucs to any great extent.

Xenia and Sidney are comparatively recent football rivals as their gridiron debate dates back only to 1922. In that year Xenia lost only one game, that being to Sidney, 7 to 0. The schools did not meet in football again until last season when Sidney's rather fluky 2 to 0 victory knocked the Bucs out of the league championship.

Consequently Xenia has several old scores to settle and hopes to return the compliment with interest Friday. It is, in fact, more than a hope, it is grim determination to salvage something from the wreckage of a disappointing season and get back into the good graces of supporters of the Blue and White.

Fans attending the Xenia-Sidney game will probably see in action a fighting Buccaneer squad which will seek its salvation in forward passing, a department in which the Bucs showed much promise last week and by means of which 199 yards were gained.

Dr. Dave Reese, popular Dayton dentist, will referee the tilt with Cutler, last week's referee, acting in the capacity of an umpire this time.

WOOSTER WINNER IN JUNIOR DIVISION OF VOLLEY TOURNEY

Defeating "Wilmington" in the finals by a margin of 41 to 34 Wednesday afternoon, "Wooster" won the championship of the junior high division of the volley ball tournament being held at Xenia Central High School and will meet "Miami," the senior high division winner, for the school title sometime next week, probably Wednesday.

Last week "Wooster" beat "Heidelberg," 41 to 30 in a semi-final round tourney game. Harner, R. Loyd and Diamond looked best at the net for the junior high title winners Wednesday while Batson, Short and Adair played best for the losers.

The final match to determine the school championship will probably be played during an activity period with the entire student body looking on. A pep meeting will also be held at the same time to stir up interest in Xenia Central's annual Thanksgiving Day grid game with Springfield, the final game of the season.

Captain R. Lloyd, Harner, Dawson, Whittington, Bone, Anderson, Diamond and Miller compose the "Wooster" team while the "Miami" team consists of Captain Bice, Dice, Baker, S. Loyd, Harner and E. Shultz.

PENNSY WILL ORDER ELECTRIC ENGINES

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The Pennsylvania Railroad plans to meet the fast-growing competition offered by motor cars and airplanes by the early placing of an order for 150 electric locomotives of greater speed and power than any previously manufactured, it was learned here today.

The locomotives, capable of 90 miles an hour, are to be used between New York, Philadelphia and Washington on schedules cutting running time from this city to Washington from five to four hours less and reducing the time between here and Philadelphia to an hour and a half.

YALE HEAVY FAVORITE AS ELI MEETS HARVARD FOR 48TH TIME

Yale sweeps into what is, after all, the gridiron classic of them all—the Yale-Harvard tilt—a pronounced favorite. Yale has a strong, powerful line and a backfield made brilliant by the sensational quarterback, Albie Booth. However, Harvard's faculty of upsetting great Yale teams is traditional. Rival coaches, captains and outstanding players, shown above, with a record of all Yale-Harvard games to date.

CUTTING DOWN TIME BETWEEN BITES FOR FISH IS IMPORTANT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Cutting down the time between bites—a national policy under the Coolidge and Hoover administrations—has become one of the big jobs of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, according to the annual report of Commissioner Henry O'Malley, made public today.

President Hoover once said that every citizen of the United States, in addition to those rights guaranteed under the constitution, was entitled to his share of fish. The president contended that "it's too long between bites."

O'Malley called attention to the bureau's activities on behalf of the American sportsman in the extension of its relations with states and sportsmen's organizations.

"The fish-nursery system, whereby sportsmen furnish pools and ponds and rear to fingerling or adult sizes fish received from federal hatcheries has expanded so that 114 units were in operation during the past fiscal year," O'Malley said.

"Of the total output of fish and eggs from government stations amounting to more than seven billion in the last fiscal year, game fish accounted for approximately 260,000,000. While the output of commercial species is on such a huge scale they have to be put back in the water as small fry, every effort has been made to grow game fish to larger sizes before placing them in ponds and streams."

Going into the commercial activities of the bureau O'Malley said the fur seal herd of Alaska under the government's program of husbandry has been built up to nearly 1,000,000 animals or more than five times the combined total of all other fur-seal herds of the world.

Judging from the statement everybody can afford to own a seal coat eventually. The growth in the herd has made it possible to increase the take of skins from surplus bulls to more than 40,000 per annum. The herd is growing at the rate of five per cent a year.

O'Malley said the annual harvest of fishery products amounted to 3,000,000,000 pounds last year from which 127,000 fishermen received around $113,000,000. In 1928 the pack of canned fisheries products exceeded 617,000,000 pounds valued at $96,000,000. The quantities of fish frozen exceeded 113,600,000 pounds the largest figure on record.

WILL DINE FIRST

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—The varsity teams and coaches of Illinois and Ohio State will dine at a local club here Friday before battling each other Saturday in the classic of the Mid-West.

RIVAL football captains of Wilberforce University and West Virginia State College grid teams will lead the grand march at the dance to be sponsored Thanksgiving night at the Seventh Ave. Armory in Columbus by the colored people of the city in honor of the two Negro schools, which meet in their annual football game at Neil Park Thanksgiving afternoon.

The dance will include a cabaret entertainment and a popularity contest for girls. The affair, which will also honor Leroy Redden, former Columbus East High player, now an end on the Wilberforce squad, is being promoted by the Collegiate club of Columbus.

PARIS STYLES HARMONIZE WITH OWN PERSONALITIES

Paris is admittedly the hub of the fashion world. But American women have formed a definite habit of interpreting the modes set by Paris to their own individualities. Take the evening wrap that is worn with the new long gowns. It is undergoing various interpretations. In the long length it is amazingly smart, as pictured at the extreme left, in brilliant green rayon velvet with fox collar—an original Callot model. Third from left is another green wrap—emerald with ermine decorations, an American design from Bonwit Teller. This is the newer short length. To the right of this is another of the long models, in panne velvet with a deep collar of white fox. An adaptation from Molyneux is pictured, extreme right, in sapphire blue rayon velvet with chinchilla collar. In oval, second from left, is a velvet afternoon frock for the sub-deb with feminine collar, while in the corresponding oval, right, is one of those chic velvet ensembles, consisting of jacket, skirt and printed blouse.

ter. But one can't count too much on that. Conditions change so much from day to day."

I couldn't get her to brag about her book. So I tried this:

"You have a cozy shelter from the weather here. I've read about it, of course, but it really isn't bad."

"Oh yes, it puts up a good front in the first room you enter. But after all, it's just a New York apartment."

No use trying to get this girl to brag. It isn't in her, apparently.

About her next novel.

"Yes, I'm working on it now. Real work. It was a grand plot and a fine plan for months, and then it was something to enjoy and dream about. But now it's been reduced to a job of work. Actually hammering this grand plot into a novel isn't anything so romantic. It's hard work.

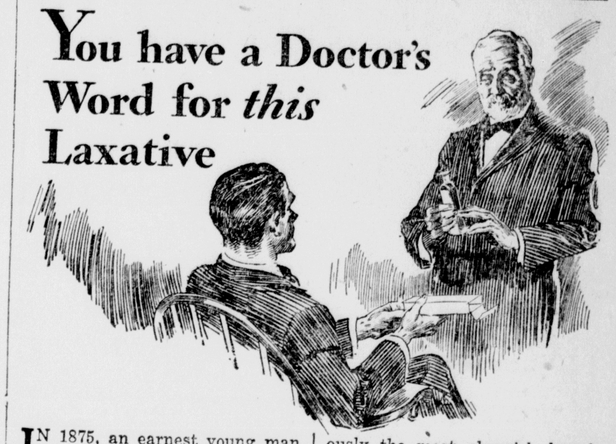

"Often I envy the people who go all through life with grand novel plots in their heads, just ready to go to work on them. If they never really hammer those plots into novels that will fit between covers, they have something fine as property. But try to work this glorious thing down to book form, and you lose a lot of the thrill."

That was a new point of view to me. I had always felt rather sorry for the hundreds of newspaper folk I've known who had grand plots for novels in their systems, and never quite got to the point of making novels out of the plots. I've always thought that these folk were deprived of a great joy.

But perhaps Fannie Hurst is right. As long as you can carry the idea around with you, dreaming about it and imagining its finished form, it is neither a failure nor a success, and, best of all, it isn't a real tough job of work.

You have a Doctor's Word for this Laxative

IN 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he treated many cases of constipation. He soon saw the harm in common purges and began to seek something better. Out of his experience was born a famous prescription now in wide use.

This prescription was written thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. Children like its pleasant taste. Older people like it because it doesn't gripe or cause discomfort. It is a mixture of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients; thoroughly effective for the most robust of men. Stimulates the normal muscular action of the bowels. So its use will not become a habit. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, biliousness, feverishness, or no energy, poor appetite, etc., are relieved by Dr. Caldwell's prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. All drug stores have the generous bottles. The product never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original formula. So you can take it with confidence or give it to the youngest child.

TIDAL WAVE SWEEPS NEWFOUNDLAND; SAY TWENTY-SEVEN DEAD

ST. JOHN'S, Newfound-Nov. 21.—A "terrible disaster" on the south coast of Newfoundland, in which at least twenty-seven lives were reported lost as a result of a tidal wave which swept the coast on Monday, was reported in fragmentary wireless dispatches reaching here today.

The tidal wave is believed to have resulted from the disturbance which occurred on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean on Monday, coincident with the earthquake which shook the Atlantic coast from Nova Scotia to New York.

According to fragmentary radio dispatches reaching here, nine persons, mostly women and children, were drowned at Burin Island, off the mainland peninsula which separates Fortune Bay and Placentia Bay. Sixteen dwellings were washed away there.

Eighteen lives were reported lost at Lord's Cove, and Lemaline. The number of buildings destroyed at those places was not given in the dispatches.

Heavy property damage was reported at St. Lawrence, but there was no mention of any loss of life there.

The first reports of the disaster were received here from the steamship Portia. Details were lacking, as the stricken area has been isolated since Monday's earthquake as a result of disrupted communications.

The report from the S. S. Portia said the region was swept by a fifteen-foot tidal wave which raced in from the sea in a solid wall of water soon after the second of the two severe earth shocks were experienced.

The first tremblor was felt at 5:05 o'clock Monday afternoon and was followed by another of equal severity at 7:35 o'clock.

Immense property damage is believed to have been done all along the coast, particularly to fishing vessels which may have been caught by the tidal wave.

Fannie Hurst is modest about her success. I talked to her about "Five and Ten", her latest novel, in her beautiful apartment in Sixty-seventh Street, Manhattan, recently.

"Is it a best seller?"

"It it selling better than your last book?"

POLECAT PERIL

Washington Hostesses Now More Careful When They Issue Invitations

THE BIG QUESTION IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY IS, "WHO IS A POLECAT AND WHO ISN'T"

By ALICE BERNADETTA WALL
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. — The polecat peril casts its shadow athwart the Washington social season of 1929-30. Dry society, to be sure, is not aware of it. However, there is a portion of Washington society which indisputably is wettish.

Some authorities say that drinking has become less fashionable in select capital circles since President Hoover has been in office. Perhaps it has, but it has not passed entirely out of style by any means. In fact, there is still a set which probably could not keep up the pace at all without a certain amount of alcoholic stimulation; would be unable to see any fun in it, at any rate.

These are the folk who shudder at the thought of the polecat peril.

A "Polecat"

The term "polecat" is used in Washington now without, necessarily, any implication of rancor. It simply is a technical expression.

For example, a Washington hostess may own up to a suspicion that so-and-so is a polecat—meaning that, offered a drink in her home, he might conceivably tell of it later before the Distric of Columbia grand jury—as an act of good citizenship, from his standpoint.

Naturally she does not invite him to her house upon any occasion when alcoholic refreshments are to be served. Otherwise she may not object to him—may like him, even. When she is going to give a dry party, quite likely she sends him an invitation.

What makes the hostess worry is the danger that an unidentified polecat may inadvertently be permitted to slip into the wrong kind of social gathering.

"Of course," as one capital matron explained to me, "we all have our little groups of close friends. An affair like a small dinner to a few intimate acquaintances presents no difficulty. Such guests can be depended on as if they were members of the family.

Anxiety Ahead

"But the coming winter's large functions, attended by a great many comparative strangers, threaten to be sources of serious anxiety; it is so hard to guard against an occasional polecat, without an impossibly thorough investigation."

The matron mentioned "an occasional polecat" in the most casual way; not flatteringly and yet not venomously—merely as something that must be reckoned with, and therefore had better be considered philosophically.

"It looks as if we might have to give up cocktails and a punchbowl, except at our selectest parties," she added naively.

Many is the epithet, hurled by an enemy, that has been picked up by the person it was intended for and worn as a badge of honor. It was thus that Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, accepted the nomination of himself to membership in the Great American Polecat Club, for having made a grand jury matter of a supposedly wet banquet he attended in 1926.

"If it be polecatism," said the Iowan, in effect, "to report a crime one has seen committed, then make the most of it."

This stand by the Hawkeye senator bids fair to render the designation "polecat" respectable—maybe to start a fad for the winning of polecat laurels. It is exactly that that Washington's damp society is fearful of. A United States senator having blazed the way, how many others are liable to follow in his footsteps?

Interpreting Term

So the significance of the title polecat, as conferred in the social Washington of today, depends largely upon the interpretation given to it.

One who feels about it as Senator Brookhart feels (and he has plenty of sympathizers) is entitled to consider himself complimented; one who takes the opposite view is apt to turn purple in the face with anger at the knowledge that he is so much as suspected of a tinge of polecatism.

In either event, the capital's damp society will not be easy in its mind until it has better evidence how generally the Iowa senator's policy is likely to be imitated.

SPRINGFIELD MAN WILL SPEAK FRIDAY EVENING AT CHURCH

John R. Casad, Springfield, will be the principal speaker when the Lutheran Brotherhood holds its regular meeting at the First Lutheran Church, Friday at 7 p. m.

Mr. Casad is a well known insurance representative. He is chorister in the Fourth Lutheran Sunday School and a member of the church council of that church. Springfield community campaigns and civic bodies have felt the progressive influence of this Wittenberg alumnus for many years. Casad was the man who successfully conducted the Ministerial Pension Relief Fund campaign in several churches, one of them being the First Lutheran of this city.

The Brotherhood will serve a rabbit dinner at seven o'clock. This will be followed by a short business meeting and Mr. Casad's address. Several young women of the church will provide musical entertainment during the evening.

A general invitation is issued to the men of the community to attend.

Efforts are now being made to obtain George Rinkliff, Springfield, state president of the Lutheran Brotherhood, to be the principal speaker at the January meeting.

PRINCE SKILLED AT NEEDLEWORK

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Prince of Wales has taken up knitting!

Proving that he is indeed versatile, the heir to England's crown who heretofore has specialized mainly in horseback riding, hunting, aviation, golf and after dinner speeches, three scarfs which the prince knitted with his own hands today were exhibited at Queen Mary's London Needlework Guild.

The world's most eligible bachelor, however, isn't the only male in the royal family to have become proficient in the art of knitting.

Three scarfs turned out by the youngest of his three brothers, Prince George, were also exhibited.

"Exceedingly well done," commented the secretary of the exhibition upon examinging the scarfs.

"The Prince of Wales always sends articles to the exhibition, but this is the first time he has sent his own personal efforts."

SIX OFFICIALS IMPLICATED IN BANK DEFALCATION

Arrest of six former officials of the Union Industrial bank of Flint, Mich., charging them with embezzlement, abstract or wilful misappropriation of bank funds, has been made following the revelation that a group of bank employes manipulated bank funds for their own use in the stock market, losing $3,592,000 in the recent crash. The six under arrest shown above are: John S. DeCamp, former senior vice president; Elton D. Graham, former cashier; Milton Pollock, former vice president; Ivan P. Christiansen, former assistant cashier; Mark H. Kelley, former assistant cashier, and Russel A. Runyon, former discount manager.

YOUTH ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY PLAYMATE; FATHER EX-XENIAN

Suffering from two bullet wounds in the left side inflicted accidentally by a .32 caliber pistol in the hands of a playmate Saturday night, Arthur Burba, 13, son of Mr and Mrs. George Burba, former residents of Xenia, remains in a critical condition an Antonia Hospital at Kenton, O., where the family now resides.

The youth was shot by Robert Howe, 14, the bullets penetrating the left lung and through the fleshy part of the left side, near the shoulder.

According to word received by Xenia relatives, Burba's condition is described by attending physicians at the hospital as "satisfactory," but there is still danger of pneumonia, the formation of an abcess in the lung or of blood-poisoning, it is said. As a precautionary measure, antitoxin for lockjaw was administered Saturday night after X-ray photographs had been taken to show the location of one bullet imbedded in the body.

The shooting was accidental, the Howe boy told his father. Burba and another friend, Elmo Basil, went to the Howe home to play and Elmo, according to the boys had fired two blank cartridges to frighten the others, who were in the house.

Robert Howe, who with Raymond Basil, was inside the house cleaning his pistol for another day on his trap line, then went out side to frighten the person who had fired the shots. Seeing Basil down the walk, Howe pointed his pistol toward an opposite corner, at the side of the porch, and pulled the trigger twice.

Both bullets entered the body of his friend, who was crouching in the shadow of the porch.

George Burba, the youth's father, lived in Xenia until twenty years ago when he moved to Kenton. Mrs. D. L. oJnes, E. Third St., William Burba, N. Whiteman St., and Mrs. Nan Kennedy, E. Third St., are brother and sisters of the wounded boy's father.

GOOD'S FRIEND DIES

CEDAR RAPIDS, Nov. 21.—The funeral of William B. Lutz, farmer and boyhood chum of the late James W. Good, secretary of war, was being planned here today. Lutz dropped dead late yesterday of heart disease while planning to attend the Good funeral.

Friday afternoon, at practically the same hour that the former cabinet member will be buried in Oak Hill Cemetery here, Lutz will be laid to rest.

Secretary Good and Lutz lived on adjoining farms and attended the same rural school near Louisa, Iowa, in recent years the two friends often talked over old times when they were children, together.

CHARGE D'AFFAIRES NAMED FOR LIBERIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Hoover today named Henry Carter of Massachusetts, now attached to the state department, as American charge d'affaires for Liberia.

The president also nominated Chester W. Zeigler of Lansdowne, Pa., as U. S. Assayer at Philadelphia, and Lt. Col. Robert M. Robbins, Engineer Corps, to be a member of the California debris commission.

LOVERS' PLOT IS BLAMED FOR MURDER

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A lover's plot was alleged by police today following admissions of pretty Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien, 26, in which she stated her husband William was shot down by Samuel Door when the latter was found in a closet of their apartment.

O'Brien, 27, is near death with three bullets in his body.

Investigation disclosed, police assert, that Door had recently sold O'Brien a life insurance policy for $5,000, naming Mrs. O'Brien as the beneficiary.

Styles For 1930 Raise Controversy With Many Women Declaring Revolt

By RUBY WEIL
Central Press Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Picture Miss 1929, as represented by the summer girl of recent memory—a pert young thing, her backless, sleeveless, loosely belted frock short enough to give full play to her sun-tanned knees and frequently bare legs. She dashes from tennis court or business to tea or dinner in virtually the same "uniform," or one different chiefly in fabric.

Now picture Miss 1930, as Fashion paints her—a smartly gowned lady, her intricately cut costume swirling around her, her waistline molded over a smooth, soft "foundation," her knees, sun-tanned or no, hidden beneath inches of skirt. She passes from femininely cut tweeds or jerseys, their even hems ending perhaps four inches below the knee, for shopping or business, to gowns which may reach the ankle for bridge or tea, and certainly reach it for dinner or dancing.

She is the essence of youthful sophistication, say the makers of style, as her sister of 1929 was the essence of frank formality of flapperism.

Dear, Oh, Dear!

"But we will look ten years older," wail the women of 30 to 40, pointing to the lengthened skirts. "And they rob us of our hard-won freedom from corsets and trailing skirts; they set us back ten years," add the feminists.

There the matter stands. Whether Miss 1930 will prevail or whether the incipient rebellion will grow into victorious war remains to be seen. While the advertising columns of the newspapers are filled with Paris' latest creations, the editorial columns give space to letters of protest.

While stores all over the country—as shown in a recent survey made by a trade paper—report that the new styles are being bought in constantly increasing numbers, many women tell of fruitless shopping tours and others announce that they will continue to wear their last year's wardrobes, fashionable or not.

Will Stock Market Affect?

Within the past few weeks a new element has complicated the question. Admittedly, to be in style this year means to buy new clothes; the change is too radical for a mere lengthening of old dresses to serve. Since the stock market fiasco, reports of returns of dresses to stores and of the cutting down of store staffs indicate a possible effect on fashion. It is too early to tell.

One of the leaders in the protest against the new mode, Fannie Hurst, novelist and short story writer, is trying to bring about an organized revolt. She fears that the psychological effect of the new styles will wipe out the progress women have made since the war.

Artist Sees Women Prettier

But Neysa McMein, illustrator whose artist eye delights in the new soft lines, laughs at Miss Hurst's theory. "I don't see why putting on a new dress should affect one's mental attitude," she says. "These new things will just make women look prettier, and that's always good. Of course, I don't think they'll last, except in modified form."

Here the stylists take up the cudgel. "Of course women must not wear ankle-length skirts to business or for driving their cars," they say. "For such occasions they should wear the modified styles, with even hems four inches below the knee. For sports wear, too, the dress must be short."

Tobe, a style adviser, takes occasion to remind skeptics that "pioneers are always laughed at." "Many women said they would never wear short skirts," she remarks. "This is a transition year. Skirts are four inches below the knee; next year they will be six. They will not make women look old, but sophisticated; the high waistline is youthful."

Industry Hopes So

Should her prediction come true, it will be a decided victory for the fashion-wise, this generation is certain: It is the style industry, or rather the combined industries, here and abroad, which deal with the various phases of fashion, that made the new mode. No spontaneous demand on the part of women called forth these long dresses. (Even in Paris editors are receiving letters of protest.) American women, in particular, showed every sign of being satisfied with the simple straightline frocks that were so difficult to buy. They were too well satisfied to suit the style industry which thrives on change and intricacy.

So for several years Paris has been attempting to swing the pendulum toward greater elaboration and longer skirts. This change which seems so sudden to the uninitated, has been in the offing since the first "robe de style" appeared on a dance floor.

Evening Gowns—That's Different

That dress, wide of skirt and dipping at the back, presaged a new evening mode which has met universal favor. Even those who disapprove of the addition of three inches to daytime skirts are enthusiastic about the graceful, swirling evening gowns, and the short evening frock is as much out of date as last month's book-of-the month as maid and matron go tripping down the hall in and over trailing ends of tulle or lace.

To the fashion-wiseft this general acceptance of length for evening, along with the number of smartly dressed women who have adopted the new daytime costumes wholeheartedly is significant. Unless this year is to reverse all precedent, news from the advance guard of fashion indicates that by spring flapperism will have sighed its last sigh and girls who have never hidden their knees in their lives will have a new sensation.

"Unless this year is to reverse all precedent"—and who knows but what it will? The flapper style was the essence of youth; and women cling to youth.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. H. L. Sayre's Drug Store. —Adv.

ARGENTINE WILL BE SPEAKER AT LUTHER LEAGUE GATHERING

Senor James Soler, Beunos Aires, Argentina, will deliver an address at the regular meeting of the Luther League at the First Lutheran Church, W. Main St., Sunday evening at 6:15 o'clock.

On account of sudden illness, Senor Soler was forced to cancel his speaking engagement at the local church several weeks ago. At that time one of his fellow countrymen, Senor Jonas Villeverde, filled a part of the engagement.

Soler is a middler in Hamma Divinity School, Wittenberg College, Springfield. He expects to return to his native country and be a missionary upon the completion of his studies at Wittenberg.

The young Argentine is a member of the Cosmopolitan Club at the college and took part in a pageant which that organization presented at the McKinley School several weeks ago.

In his address, Soler will endeavor to tell just what the Lutheran missions are doing in the Argentine, and the part that the Luther League of America contributes annually to this work. He has traveled widely both in his native country and the United States.

Miss Phyllis Mellege will be the leader of the Sunday evening meeting. There will be an open forum after Senor Soler's address for purpose of asking him additional questions concerning the Lutheran missionary efforts in the Argentine. Special music will feature the program. All are invited.

If you are NOT yourself

Are you being denied the happiness that is due you in life?

IT is easy to abuse our golden life-given body, but Nature has a way of signaling danger. If heeded, graver troubles may be avoided. That tired, exhausted feeling, lack of appetite, aches and pains, flabby flesh, skin troubles—all speak of a body weakness—a lack of the normal count of red-blood-cells.

Every normal person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles to the cubic millimeter—those vitalizing, tiny red-cells which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red blood count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people. It helps Nature increase the red-blood-cells. It promotes healthy body building. It is time-tested and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It is easily assimilated. Pleasant to take. It is on sale at all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. © S.S.S. Co.

TRAINING ASSAILED IN ANTIOCH SPEECH

Militarism in the schools as a producer of the "war habit" was the subject of an attack by Tucker F. Smith, secretary of the Committee on Militarism in Education, of New York, in an address before the student body of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Wednesday.

Smith attacked military training on the grounds that it tended to "keep alive the mental habits which produce war."

"War is an outworn habit and persists in our modern world solely because men have been trained to act that way. Whatever its usefulness in the past, it no longer protects life, property or ideals. It is wasteful, futile, and unnecessary in a world that depends upon orderly exchange and trade for its material and spiritual welfare," the speaker declared.

Smith questioned the practice of building up interest in military training through making attractive girl students "honorary captains" and giving them rewards for taking an interest in the student military units.

"This popularized military training," he declared, "is keeping alive what is an inexcusable lie—namely, that war is inevitable and fighting is glorious. A genuine opposition to war cannot be built upon this glorified playing at soldiering which we have in our schools today. We must break the war habit and build peace habits."

Smith said that in his opinion programs of military training surrounded by glamour and color are numerous in the United States and are tending to destroy the work done by President Hoover in his efforts to build up world opinion opposed to the settling of disputes by war.

He urged Antioch students to realize that the war attitude is more a habit than anything else, and to work for the substitution of habits of peace, based on reason and understanding.

XENIAN SENTENCED TO FEDERAL PRISON

Charles M. Ridgeway, Xenia, must serve two years and six months in the Atlanta, Ga., penitentiary for having sold narcotic drugs, under terms of a sentence imposed Wednesday at Dayton by Federal Judge Robert Nevin.

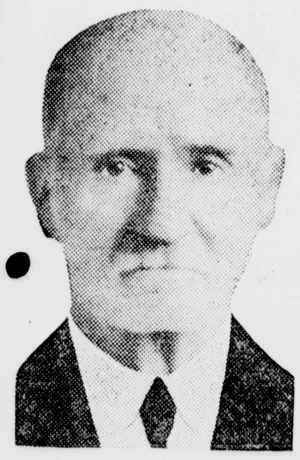

Ridgeway, who operated a drug store at 539 E. Third St., in Dayton, had pleaded guilty to the indictment on the narcotic charge. Describing Ridgeway as an incurable addict, Judge Nevin, in passing sentence, declared he took the advanced age of the man into consideration. Ridgeway is 67 years old.

His home is on W. Market St., in Xenia but for the last several months he had been living in Dayton. Ridgeway formerly operated pharmacies at Cincinnati, Springfield and Cedarville, moving to Xenia from Cedarville two years ago.

NEW KONJOLA INDORSED BY MAN AGED 80

"I Feel Better Than For A Long Time, And I Owe It All To This New Medicine," He Says.

"I feel better than for a long time and I owe it all to this new medicine, Konjola," said Mr. W. H. Davies, Jacobs Road, Hubbard, Ohio. "My stomach was the source of much trouble. Nothing that I ate agreed with me. My kidneys were also in a very bad condition and there was always a dull pain in the small of my back. I was constipated and suffered from severe headaches and dizzy spells.

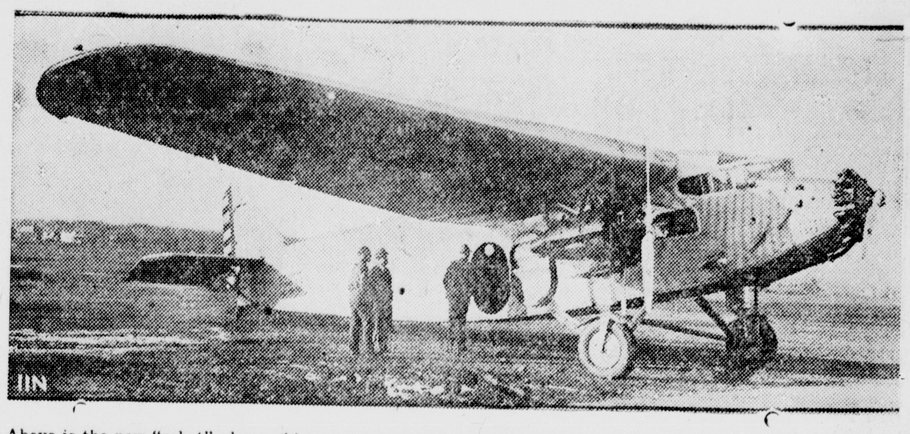

MR. W. H. DAVIES

"I was amazed at the way this new medicine seemed to attack the very cause of the trouble. In a very short time, my stomach was in perfect condition. My appetite increased, and food digests as it should. My kidneys have been restored to their normal, healthy condition and gone are the back pains. My bowels are regular and I seldom suffer from headaches and dizzy spells. To Konjola goes all the credit for my new health and I praise it highly."

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the fount of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Konjola is sold in Xenia at Gallaher drug store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section. Adv.

Poems that Live

LAST SONNET

BRIGHT Star! would I were steadfast as thou art—
Not in lone splendor hung aloft the night,
And watching, with eternal lids apart,
Like Nature's patient, sleepless Eremite,
The moving waters at their priest-like task
Of pure ablution round earth's human shores,
Or gazing on the new soft-fallen mask
Of snow upon the mountains and the moors—
No—yet still steadfast, still unchangeable,
Pillowed upon my fair love's ripening breast,
To feel for ever its soft fall and swell,
Awake for ever in a sweet unrest,
Still, still to hear her tender-taken breath,
And so live ever—or else swoon to death.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

YOU NEED THIS PERFECT REFRIGERATION

HARMFUL bacteria know no season. They thrive on warmth. No matter how chilly it may be outdoors, it's usually hot in your kitchen. Keeping foods safely refrigerated is therefore quite as much of a problem in autumn as it is in midsummer.

The General Electric Refrigerator will automatically keep your perishable foods always below the danger line 50 degrees.

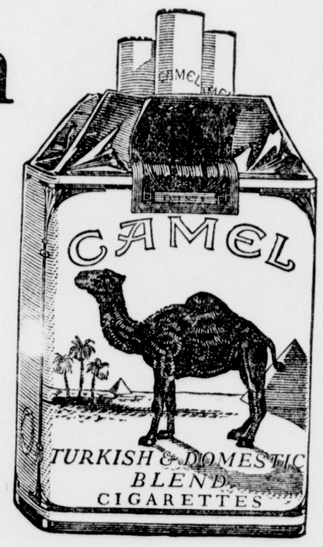

The General Electric is the only refrigerator with an all-steel cabinet. It is built like a safe. All its mechanism is mounted on top in a dust-proof, hermetically sealed steel casing. Quietly it operates, without ever needing to be oiled.

More than 350,000 users today of General Electric Refrigerators and not one has ever paid out a single dollar for service or repairs.

Camel has the quality that smokers depend upon

It is all right to experiment but a pity to spend too much time experimenting when you might be enjoying the fragrant pleasure of smoking Camels.

It has been the experience of many smokers, after trying other brands, that Camels give constant and unfailing pleasure. Their mildness, due to choice tobaccos and expert blending, makes it possible to smoke them liberally without any tiring of the taste. This quality, which smokers have learned to depend upon, will be maintained, because Camels are made for those who know and appreciate the real pleasure of smoking.

when they learn the difference they flock to Camels

REPORTS $51 DONATED TO DATE

After two days of campaigning, reports made to Birch Bell, Xenia Central High junior, chairman of the Junior Community Chest, disclosed that a total of $51 has been contributed by pupils in the Xenia public schools toward the quota of $85 assigned to the children.

With five more days of the drive remaining and the amount sought more than half subscribed, Chairman Bell is confident the junior fund organization will steal a march on the Xenia Community Fund by reaching its goal before the parent association does.

The second day's solicitation in the schools Wednesday netted additional donations amounting to $15.90 through contributions of 323 more pupils. To date a total of 1,383 school children have subscribed sums ranging from one penny to ten cents to the chest.

Three more 100 per cent home rooms were reported Wednesday, all at the Spring Hill grade school. Tuesday the Spring Hill third grade made a perfect showing and on the following day the first, second and sixth grades also reported 100 per cent donations.

Wednesday's donations to the fund among school children include: seventy-one Central Senior High students gave $6.90; fifty-eight Central Junior High pupils gave $2.91; seven Central first graders gave seven cents; nine East Senior High students gave seventy-four cents; twenty East Junior High pupils gave $1.04; thirty-eight Lincoln graders gave $1.50; fifty-eight McKinley graders gave $1.52; forty-nine Spring Hill graders gave ninety-seven cents; thirteen Orient Hill graders gave twenty-five cents.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

BLUFFING IT OUT

The other day I met a man who, his intimate associates told me, has never had an idea in his life. A worth-while, workable idea.

When I met him, he was talking about his worries. He wanted to invest ten million dollars in a certain kind of property, but all the owners of that kind of property were stiff-necked and unreasonable. They wouldn't sell at a fair price.

He told of his magnificent mansion in California, of his association with millionaires during a year of voluntary retirement from business, and of his darting hither and yon in airplanes to give his expert opinion to this and that seeker after wisdom.

After this man had gone out, the men who knew him laughed heartily.

"Well, he's the same old George, isn't he?" they said, one to another.

Then they told me a marvelous story of a bluffer. George, it seems, hasn't any millions at all. He hasn't any mansion. In fact, he's out of a job, and living on air—and nerve.

Possibly you have met such fellows. Big talk. But no ideas and no accomplishments.

Forever lying picturesquely about the great men they know, the big deals they have put over, the millions they have by the neck, the great accomplishments that are just over there in the offing.

Always, these bluffers are persons without ability. If they had any ability they wouldn't have to lie so much.

Spotting the bluffer is easy to a person who knows something about human nature. But there is a certain type of business and professional man that is peculiarly liable to be imposed upon by the bluffer. Usually, this is the slow-thinking, conservative, forthright type, not much given to the exercises of the critical faculty in relation to people. This kind of man can be fooled by the bluffer, and the bluffer makes his way through the world by preying upon this type of citizen.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

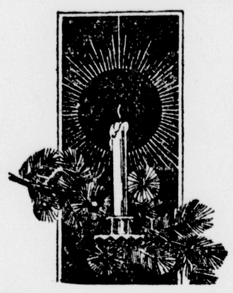

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

AT RADIO NOW BROADCASTS

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT

By ALEXANDER SHERMAN
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Radio's first and highest high-brow!

Seven years ago Alexander Woollcott would have laughed with scorn if anyone had suggested that he appear on the air!

"What! Appear on the air with xylophone players and discarded actors? Nay, nay!"

Today Alexander Woollcott finds himself cast weekly as radio's official "town crier" and discovers that he likes it very much indeed. For the man who has reviewed thousands of plays and written hundreds of high-brow articles on more or less high-brow themes really thinks it's a lot of fun to bring a high-brow attitude to radio's multitude.

Friend Suggested Radio

"Please don't ask me my age," begged Woollcott, as the reporter prepared to query the well-known critic. "Why bring up an ancient topic? I was born in Phalanx, N. J., which hasn't even the distinction of being a dot on the map, as it was just my father's homestead. The nearest post office is Red Bank—which should prove that I'm a New Yorker of first water.

"And if you want to know why I'm broadcasting, that's easy to answer. I'm on the air because my friend, Paul Davis ,who is a well-known radio executive, suggested that I try out for it.

"At first I thought he was joking—but he seemed quite serious about it, indeed. For before I knew quite what I was doing, I was mouthing some words before a strange-looking contraption and wondering why the dickens I was so nervous.

"Later I learned that the strange-looking contraption was just a microphone and that my normally high-pitched voice had all the deep basso qualities of an old-time Shakespearean trouper reciting 'Hamlet' for a square meal.

"You know, that's the real reason why I'm so fond of this radio work. I've always wanted to play 'Romeo'—but this aggravating embonpoint of mine had long ago convinced me that the managers never would even give a half-second's consideration. Unless, of course, I decided to play 'Falstaff,' instead.

Works Harder Than Ever

Short, stocky, with a round full face that belies the intelligence revealed in his writings, Alexander Woollcott is the type of person who must be the center of attraction to be at his best. He is not married and is determined to remain so. Won't wear anything but a blue suit, blue shirt and white tie when he's broadcasting and feels bitterly mortified if he's not carrying a cane.

Woollcott gave up a lucrative position as dramatic editor and critic of a large metropolitan newspaper because he decided he was just young enough to retire from hard labor—and works harder now fulfilling his magazine assignments. Likes to sleep late and enjoys reading condemnatory letters. And everybody calls him "Alec."

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of The Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation
(Written expressly for International News Service)

17. The Tail Spin

A maneuver strictly in the stunt class, the tail spin has some practical value in schooling pilots how to come out of it once in it unintentionally.

It results from a stall in which the airplane is permitted to turn while kept in a stall by holding the elevator up. Thus the dropping machine, instead of nosing direct for the ground, will twist 'round and 'round in spirals, tail above nose. There are many methods of using the controls to start a tail spin but all of them depend on stalling the airplane in some manner.

The spin may be stopped, however, by pushing the elevator control forward to assist in stopping the rotation. This will arrest the spin and restore the plane to straight dive from which level flight may be resumed by using (raising) the elevator as in coming out of an ordinary dive.

Beginners involuntarily fall into spins usually because of excessive climbs or from banking too steeply and climbing on turns, particularly from gliding at too slow an air speed. In the latter too low to permit recovery.

(Vertical Banks and Spirals will be explained in the next chapter of Plane Talk).

ELYRIA, O., Nov. 21.—Formal inquest into the cause of the blast at the Timms Spring Co., plant here Nov. 9, which took a toll of six lives and four injured, will be held Monday, Coroner M. E. Perry said today.

"BUILD it so well it will give its original perfect service as long as any one wants to use it"—an important Eveready principle. Evidenced in the wonderful care given to every detail of the new Eveready Screen-Grid chassis. Uses a welded steel box girder as foundation, to preserve all parts forever in proper alignment. Insulation insulates only, and metal (usually steel) takes all weight; thus the insulation can warp with the weather without distorting parts and spoiling reception. Built like a battleship, the new Eveready Screen-Grid Receiver will give you true musical enjoyment for as long as you want to listen. See for yourself how wonderful it is. COTTON STOCKINGS

BY ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

Author of "THE FLAT TIRE"

Copyright, 1929, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, secures a position at the hosiery counter of a store through the kindness of Kenessa Du Barry, actress. She is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, the corner newsie. Rosalie discovers a run in her only pair of silk stockings. She wears an old cotton pair to the store, much to the amusement of the salesgirls. In desperation, she decides to take a silk pair from stock and make good for them payday. She drops them and is observed by Alberto Martino, the store detective, who threatens to arrest her unless she agrees to hide some suitcases in her room for him. Rosalie is frightened and agrees. In the meantime Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the owner of the store, falls in love with Rosalie and asks her to marry him. Rosalie is called to the phone.

Rosalie and Roy are tricked to a flying field, where Roy is kidnaped.

Rosalie is released by the gang after being cautioned to say nothing. She finally gets on a street car.

Rosalie is afraid to say anything about Roy's disappearance. Ann Shultz, salesgirl, questions her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

"I wonder where Roy Andrews is keepin' himself these days. He must be off on a bat."

Ann said it nonchalantly, but she was watching Rosalie out of the corner of her eye.

Rosalie answered her faintly.

"I suppose he—he's on a vacation."

"I don't see how you get through the day without him comin' up to gab a little with you." Ann sounded envious.

She was amazed at the pallor that spread over Rosalie's face. When she clutched at the counter and swayed Ann caught her.

"Listen, Angel Face, you're sick. You gotta see a doctor. Something is wrong with you."

"Oh, I'll be all right." Rosalie felt cold, and tried to keep her teeth from chattering. "I—I just have a headache."

"Well, you been looking terrible all week, and I don't like to see you breakin' down on me. You better go home."

"There's no use," Rosalie's voice sounded tired and old. "I'd be just as sick there."

Ann watched her furtively the rest of the afternoon, and was more and more mystified at her strange actions. There was certainly something the matter. Did it have anything to do with Roy's absence? Perhaps they were lovers—and had quarreled.

That was hard for Ann to believe. But, she looked at Rosalie, pretty and sweet, and found herself believing that must be the trouble. Rosalie had hooked Roy Andrews. Still water was running deep again. It was the little angel-faced babies that landed the big catches.

Tim was watching, feverish with excitement, when Rosalie got off the car. He walked down to meet her, and held the paper that had just come to his stand up to her. He must find out if she knew anything about it before someone else found it out.

She reeled, and the world went black before her.

"ROY CLARKE ANDREWS MISSING

"Believed Victim of Foul Play."

The headlines danced before her crazily. She grasped faintly at Tim and, before he could catch her, dropped at his feet.

He carried her into the delicatessen store in front of his stand, and when she came to he was bending over her, tears rolling down his cheeks, and his face was twisted with worry.

"Aw, gee, Queen, what's the matter?"

She tried to stand up.

"I—I want to go home."

"I'll carry you." He started to lift her from the chair. "You're light as a feather."

She pulled herself to her feet and, with one arm around his shoulder walked slowly home. He took her up to her room and she sunk on the bed.

Then he burst out at her frantically!

"Lissen, Queen. You gotta tell me what this is about. I'm not goin' to keep my mouth shut another minute. You'll get into some terrible trouble—"

She began to cry miserably and to plead with him.

"Tim, please, please don't ask me. Trust me. It's—it's nothing, really. I—I guess Roy just went on a vacation—"

But Tim went on doggedly.

"It says here the last he was seen was last Tuesday night. That was the night you went out on a date with him. Aw, gee, Queen, I know you didn't do nothin' wrong—but, you got to tell me about it. That rat Martino has somethin' to do with all this funny business—"

Even in her excitement and grief Rosalie marveled at Tim's reasoning powers, as he went on explaining to her all the reasons he had for believing that if she would just tell him about it he knew he could fix everything up so it would be all right.

"You'll have to wait a little while, Tim," she begged. "I can't tell you just now. I'll tell you in a few days."

He reached under the pillow and felt the gun.

"Well, I'm glad you got the gat," he told her, when he had plead to no avail for several minutes. "And if you got to shoot, shoot to kill."

"I—I couldn't" she shuddered. "I couldn't touch the awful thing."

He took it then, and compelled her to hold it in her hand. Again he showed her about the safety catch. His face was white with his effort to impress his earnestness on her.

"You think I won't tell the cops if you don't take that gat and take care of yourself with it, don't you? Well, you just wait and see. I'll tell the whole town—"

Tim, raised on a street where firearms were common weapons of defense, was of the firm belief that almost anything could be accomplished with a threat from a black, threatening muzzle.

Rosalie believed that he would tell someone if she did not firmly convince him that she would shoot and shoot to kill if anyone tried to annoy her.

He looked at the open window and the fire escape beyond again with trepioation. Suppose someone slipped up on it when Queen was asleep, and made off with her—or killed her.

Tim left with a grim determination again to find some way to solve the mystery. It almost broke his heart that his idol would not put her trust in him. Was there anyone in the world he could tell what he knew to, who wouldn't get Queen into trouble—and who would help him.

He had left the paper on Rosalie's bed and she tried to read the story of Roy's disappearance, but the tears blurred her eyes so that it was impossible. She sat, almost unable to breathe for the pain in her breast, and the throbbing of her tired, confused brain.

All around were black, high walls of misery and fear. And there was no one to save her. No place she could turn.

The door flew open, and Martino came in and closed it quickly. His evil eyes seemed to blaze at her.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

LIFT GOLD EMBARGO

CALLS CONFERENCE TO ASK INDUSTRIES TO HELP BUSINESS

the curtailment suggested by fear or pessimism as to the general business outlook that Mr. Hoover seeks to guard against. Hence his summoning to Washington today the men who directly control the employment strings of the country.

The president is more concerned about maintaining employment at a high level than with any other single feature of the present situation. The only thing that can disturb the basic strength and soundness of the business structure, in his opinion, is a severe drop in employment figures. Unemployment means breadlines and the complete loss of purchasing power.

From the railroads of the country, the president already has assurances of continued high employment — even greater employment than now exists. The railroads are going to spend approximately a billion dolars on equipment and expansion during the next year, and that means a substantial increase in employment.

But it remained today for the industrial leaders to give similar assurances, in order for Mr. Hoover to hold up to hesitant credit and business a most roseate picture of the national business situation.

In addition to those named above the president's conferees today included Walter Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey; Clarence M. Woolley, Pres. of the American Radiator Co.; Eugene Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Co.; Pierre DuPont, chairman of DuPont and Co.; William Butterworth, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce; E. H. Kulas, president of the Otis Steel Co.; A. W. Robertson of the Westinghouse Electric Co.; Redfield Proctor, president of the New England Council; Ernest T. Trigg, Philadelphia manufacturer; Henry M. Robinson, California banker; Julius Barnes, chairman of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, and Philip H. Gadsden, presiden of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Following this industrial conference, the president will receive this afternoon a group of labor leaders representing many trades and crafts, with whom he will discus employment conditions. He hoped to be able to assure labor that it has no cause for trepidation in the present situation.

CHEST DRIVE PASSES QUARTER MARK HERE IN PARTIAL REPORTS

ance served to spur the army of 140 workers despite the fact that the fund goal is still a goodly distance off.

This factor is the knowledge that no reports have been received from seven district chairmen. It goes without saying that if the amount of their collections for the first two days of the drive was available, the fund total to date would be substantialy greater than the present figure shows.

With Thursday dawning cold and clear the spirits of the entire organization bounded upward and there was considerable stir about the fund headquarters.

Workers started out on their rounds with a new determination, born of the fact that they are at least getting a break from the weather man.

Summing up the results of the campaign to date, Chairman Galloway said Thursday:

"The amount subscribed so far is probably satisfactory but our solicitors must remember that two of the seven selling days now are past and not quite three-tenths of the goal has been reached.

"After checking the results, it is apparent that much more intensive work must be done by our solicitors during the balance of this week if we are to be successful in raising the needed $10,000 by next Tuesday.

"We are satisfied now, beyond question, that the citizens of Xenia are in sympathy with our plans for operation of the fund and that they will support it liberally, if our solicitors reach them in time."

One of the finest showings of any of the teams is being made by the group headed by Mrs. Charles Weaver as regional chairman of the second district, serving as an inspiration for the other groups to redouble their efforts.

Mrs. Weaver's group turned in $692.50 on the opening day and $5 more Wednesday for a total of $697.50, the largest collection total reported by any of the chest teams among which a spirit of rivalry exists. The best showing Wednesday, however, was made by the sixth district, of which Mrs. L. C. Landaker, is chairman. This group reported $621 as compared with $16 on the first day, a total of $637.

Other encouraging collections were also reported by Emil Eichman, chairman of the first district whose group turned in $452.75 Wednesday, and the committee on factories and shops headed by Frank McCurran. The latter committee reported $275 collected from the city's industries.

The report of A. V. Miller, chairman of the third district, was also gratifying. This group collected $167 Wednesday, giving it a total of $320.85 for the two days. Mrs. Agnes Hurley, chairman of the twelfth district, reported $10 and S. N. McClellan, heading the tenth district, added $3.06 Wednesday.

No reports have been received either of the first two days from the following: Glenn Reed, of the fifth district; Miss Helen Graham, of the seventh district; Mrs. V. H. Moll, of the eighth district; Miss Stella Tuhey of the ninth district, Carl Ervin of the eleventh district; and the Rev. A. L. Dooley, of the East Side district. The special gifts committee, which is depended upon to bring in the larger individual gifts, also has not reported what progress it has been making.

BRINGING UP FATHER — By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

Julian Street is the author of a short story in last week's Saturday Evening Post called "Chamelon," which deals with an actress who so lived the roles she portrayed that she underwent a complete change of personality with each succeeding part.

Her husband, who fell in love with and married her during the first play he wrote for her, in which she had a particularly sweet part, was quite distraught when she changed her personality with the second part he wrote for her and began to take on weight because that was the role she played. Subsequently, and in turn, she became a hard-boiled lady of the streets and an affected Spanish type before he wrote a matronly type for her and she settled down to the type he desired.

Street's character was a creature of fiction but Paul Muni, the new screen actor, is the human chameleon of the screen,—a youthful Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Muni is a recent celluloid recruit from the stage and in his latest piece, "Seven Faces", a Fox film, he portrays seven individuals: the aged Poppa Chibu, Napoleon, Schubert, Joe Gans, Diablero, Don Juan and a costermonger.

"When I play a murderer I feel like a murderer", says Muni. "I work up a mental situation until I feel that I am the character I am portraying. After all, we all seem to be a little of everything. We all have a bit of Napoleon in us, a little of this and a little of that. There is nobody who hasn't a little of the universal in him. In the core, we are all pretty much alike.

"There is a lot about acting I cannot figure out. It is like electricity—there it is. I do not try to copy character. That would not be creative but merely mimeographing. I say the role in my own way and leave it to my instinct."

Muni pointed out that when he played the character of a condemned prisoner in "The Valiant" he began to believe he really had killed a man and conceived how he did it and that he was right in doing it. "I even had a vision of the man I killed and could even see the man in the agony of death" he said. Then he confessed he always felt more at ease portraying another character than when he was interpreting himself.

Muni's real name is Muni Weisenfreund. He was born thirty-two years ago at Vienna and came to America with his parents when four years old. At the age of 11 he played his first character role and wore a beard. "It was a stage beard', he explains.

He gave up study of the violin to go on the stage for good, much to his parents' disappointment. He played in stock and trouped through the middlewest, calling Chicago his home. Then he came to Broadway and made an enviable reputation. He married Bella Finkle, Philadelphia actress, eight years ago. He leaves feminine roles to his wife because "woman is a great mystery" to him.

When his director can't find "Sunny Jim" (Lawrence McKeen) he hastens to the sound control apparatus and usually finds the youngster there with the head phones fastened to his ears. Above, "Sunny Jim" is indulging in his favorite pastime.

MAC DONALD PRAISES MISSIONARY WORK

In view of the recent visit of J. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, to this country, his glowing tribute to the work of the missionaries in Africa has a special timeliness. While speaking at the Congo Jubilee Exhibition, he said:

"As soon as the missionary appears, slavery is doomed. I do not say that it is doomed to twenty-four hours; but I do say that the presence of the missionary has this effect, explain it as you may, that from the moment he becomes a part of the atmosphere of the race, slavery dwindles and education begins. Men whose lives have been long lived in the atmosphere of ignorant superstition and mortal terror are enabled to lift up their heads and to discover that there is something giving them power, enabling them to walk about with their heads uplifted, obedient to law, but not victims of the law, enabling them not only to look out on the world but within themselves. There begins responsible care, which last emerges into a conception of the responsibilities of usefulness, lending them the idea of responsibility to the universe. I think the missionary requires no further justification. We, who have been called to the secular affairs of life rather than the spiritual will never fail to be grateful, I hope, to the missionaries, who have carried into effect the Gospel of human justice as well as of spiritual power."

INDUSTRIAL LEADERS MEET HOOVER

PROSPERITY IN OHIO ASSURED AT DINNER OF BUSINESS HEADS

Verity Says Market Crash Has Not Hurt Sound Business

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—The commonwealth of Ohio should stand reassured today that the recent stock market crash will have no effect upon the basic economic conditions of the country.

Five hundred and fifty captains of finance and industry sat down to one of the biggest banquets in the history of Columbus last night and in turn gave their reassurances that business is sound.

It was the first Ohio management conference. The delegates represented the three factors of the nation's economis life—production, distribution and finance.

Governor Myers Y. Cooper in addressing the huge gathering, said: "In the state of Ohio we are just entering upon the greatest building program undertaken by our state in many, many years. We shall erect a new state office building wherein there will be housed nineteen departments and divisions of the state government, now scattered all over the city of Columbus.

"This enterprise alone will mean an expenditure of some $5,000,000 for the erection of a stately structure. It will give employment to hundreds of men and will mean the purchase of enormous quantities of materials and supplies."

W. T. Grant, head of one of the largest chain store groups in the country, declared:

"We are on the threshold of an upward swing in business prosperity."

Further reassurance was given by George M. Verity, president of the American Rolling Mill Company, of Middletown, Ohio.

"Every business and industry that was sound three weeks ago is just as sound today, despite the shrinkage in the market prices of its securities. Basic business conditions were never more sound than now," stated the steel magnate.

"While buying of luxuries undoubtedly will slow up, essentials are properly priced and industries in this division are not over-expanded," was the opinion of James T. Tew, president of the B. F. Goodrich Company of Akron. "Interest rates have declined and the capital released will find its way into constructive developments, thereby providing additional employment and continued prosperity."

John G. Lonsdale, president of the American Bankers' Association, said it was apparent that conditions are fundamentally sound.

"The banking situation," he continued, "is good, with credit ample for all needs and money more plentiful than for some time. Further ease has been added to credit by the recent lowering of the New York rediscount rate."

James L. Madden, third vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, declared there is no reason why business should not go ahead on a very even keel.

"Business was fundamentally sound before the market crash," he spoke, "and I see no reason why that situation should differ now."

From the tenure of the speeches it could be seen that unemployment presented the real "bug-bear" to the nation's prosperity, and that if the unemployment situation can be cleared up, the country's prosperity will be assured.

Reassurances were given that unemployment would be held at the minimum and hope was seen in the promises which President Herbert Hoover elicited from railroad magnates that they would begin a building program.

STOCK MARKET IS FIRM AT OPENING

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Stocks exhibited a firm and confident tone at the opening of the market today. Price changes of the speculative leaders were narrow, with moderate movements in both directions. United States Steel lost a point at 107, but General Electric was up 1 1-2 at 215; Westinghouse up 7-8 at 132 7-8; Bethlehem Steel up 1-4 at 90 3-4; Sears Roebuck up 1 1-8 at 94 1-4.

Chesapeake and Ohio led the rails, with a gain of 2 1-2 points at 198 1-2. New Haven was up 3-4 at 111 1-2; Allegheny Corporation up 1-8 at 25 3-8; Erie down 1-4 at 53 1-8; Western Maryland down 3-8 at 20 1-8.

CHEST DRIVE PASSES QUARTER MARK HERE IN PARTIAL REPORTS

Team Captains Have Reported $2,782.16; Five Days To Go

A golden flood poured into Community Fund headquarters at City Hall Wednesday afternoon.

When the tabulators had finished the 1929 Xenia chest fund campaign was more than a quarter of the way toward its goal of $10,000.

After two days of intensive campaigning, the total received to date is $2,782.16.

The flood was the result of a suggestion by Edwin Galloway, general chairman of the campaign, for a definite report from every team. Not all of the teams have complied, however, although regional chairmen have been reporting voluntarily.

Wednesday's collections amounted to $1,533.81. The suspicion exists among chest officials that a few of the teams are holding out for a grand slam at the finish.

Under the admonition to "shell out" seven teams reported Wednesday and the day's report exceeded collections for the opening day by nearly $300.

COMPLETE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR EX-WAR SECRETARY

Iowa Pays Tribute To J. W. Good, Its Native Son

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Nov. 21.—Final arrangements for a military funeral which will be accorded James W. Good, secretary of war, were being completed here today as the cabinet member's native state prepared to pay its son a last tribute.

Services at the First Presbyterian Church have been planned for tomorrow at 11 a. m. In adition to the military escort which is accompanying the body westward the cortege will be met by a dismounted squadron of the fourteenth cavalry from Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

The local National Guard troop will join in the escort which will take the body from the church to Oak Hill Cemetery for burial. Following the last services an army firing squad will fire volleys over the grave and a bugler will sound taps.

All business will be suspended between 11 and 12 o'clock in the morning. The schools of Cedar Rapids are to be closed for a half day.

In a country graveyard not far away the body of Harry B. Lutz, Secretary Good's boyhood friend, will be buried a few hours later. Lutz, well-to-do farmer, dropped dead Tuesday. The two attended the same country school together a half century ago.

ROAD EMPLOYE PADS COUNTY'S PAYROLL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 21.—Accused of having presented a false pay roll, William Platt, 62, resigned veteran employe of the Mahoning County road department, was held under heavy bond today for arraignment tomorrow morning.

Platt is alleged to have made away with approximately $2,000 in funds of the engineering department, accordnig to County Surveyor George Montgomery. For more than a year, Montgomery testified before the grand jury here, Platt has been making out pay roll checks in small amounts to fictitious person and cashing them himself.

Platt resigned Saturday as superintendent of the county road maintenance department. He had been employed in the county surveyor's office for more than sixteen years.

PILGRIMS PRAY AT SHRINE IN STORM

MALDEN MASS, Nov. 21—Faith-inspired pilgrims prayed at the grave of Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Power, in Holy Cross Cemetery, in a driving snow storm.

Despite announcement by cemetery officials that all-night vigils would be forbidden after Monday, more than 300 men and women prayed all night at Father Power's grave. And when the gates were opened today, they were joined by nearly 5,000 others. Lines were again formed under police supervision.

FIRST WINTER WEATHER HERE

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Real winter weather descended on Chicago and the middle west today, shoving the mercury down to 20 degrees above zero here.

The cold wave, according to the meteorologists, is advancing eastward across the country.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—"Old King Winter" blew his hoary breath on parts of New England today, and a heavy snow storm swept Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, the first of this year.

Although reports from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont indicated partly cloudy weather, the local weather man said the snow fall would become general throughout New England later in the day.

HEAVY FIGHTING ON BORDER REPORTED

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Extremely heavy casualties in the fighting between Soviet and Chinese troops on the Manchurian frontier were reported today in a Mukden dispatch to the Times.

The dispatch reports Soviets surrounded the troops of General Lian-Chunchai at Manchuli, both sides suffering heavy casualties. The Chinese general, according to latest reports, was holding out but at a disadvantage.

Chang-Hsueh Liang, governor of Manchuli, declared in an interview China's adherence to the Kellogg pact led the Soviets to attack without a formal declaration of war, the dispatch continues. Chang asked the pact signatories appoint a commission to investigate the conflict.

COSTE, BELLONTE RETURN TO FRANCE

LE BOURGET AIR FIELD, France, Nov. 21.—Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, two of France's greatest airmen, returned to Le Bourget at 11:40 a. m. today (6:40 a. m. Eastern standard time), following an epochal flight over Europe and Asia in which they set a new non-stop endurance record.

Coste and Bellonte were greeted by a crowd of more than 1,000 when they arrived from Rome, their last previous stop on their flight back from Asia in easy stages.

The airmen set the new record in flying from Paris to Tsitsihar, Manchuria, a distance of approximately 5,500 miles.

PLANE PASSENGER KILLED WHEN SHIP CAPSIZES; PILOT IS KILLED

LONDON, Nov. 21.—One passenger was killed and seven others injured when an Italian airplane enroute from Ostia to Cagliara capsized off Port Terranova, Sardinia, according to a Central News dispatch from Rome today.

The dead passenger was Count Henri Piercy. The plane carried eight passengers and a crew of four.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—A twisted mass of wreckage on the roof of a mid-town building today furnished mute evidence of Manhattan's first aerial tragedy as police and department of commerce officials launched investigations into the crash which cost the life of Charles I. Reid, amateur pilot and concern manager.

Robert J. Bailie, former lion tamer, Reid's passenger on the fatal flight, escaped death by a parachute jump.

Large crowds gathered in front of the building seeking a glimpse of the wrecked plane, one crumpled wing of which was visible.

Many saw the two-seated biplane, its motor dead, skim desperately over the tops of buildings in an effort to reach Central Park, only to crash against the side of a building, burying its pilot beneath the wreckage.

AMERICAN STOCKS BUOYANT IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Accompanied by a lowering of the Bank of England discount rate to 5 1-2 per cent, American securities were buoyant on the London stock exchange this morning. United States Steel opened at 173 1-2 as compared with its closing price in New York of 168. Radio sold at 39, against its final New York quotation of 37 5-8. International Nickel changed hands at 33 1-2 against a closing figure of 32 1-4 in New York and Canadian Pacific opened at 206 1-2, as compared with its New York closing sale at 199 1-2.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Bank of Norway today reduced its discount rate from 6 to 5 1-2 per cent. The rate had been increased coincident with the English increase.

BANDIT SHOOTS MAN DURING ROBBERY

FINDLAY, O., Nov. 21.—Roy Tish is near death in a hospital here today and another man is believed seriously wounded as a result of a gun battle which occurred on the streets of Fostoria, when a bandit attempted to hold up an oil station attendant late last night. No money was taken.

Tish, the attendant who was shot by the bandit as he reached for his gun, told authorities that he shot the robber as he fell after being wounded. The wounded bandit's companion carried his accomplice to a car and drove away with him.

Tish was shot over the heart and in the leg. He is in a critical condition.

EQUINE COP DIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Familiar to hundreds of motorists because of his clever trick of stopping traffic with an upraised front hoof, "Pete," handsome chestnut ridden by Mounted Patrolman William C. Wood for twelve years, was dead today. "Pete" was destroyed after he was hit by an automobile.

RUM RUNNER CAUGHT WITH LIQUOR CARGO

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 21.—A Canadian rum runner and his cargo of 400 cases of alleged whiskey were captured under a rain of rifle bullet fire in the mouth of the Cuyahoga River early today.

The haul was one of the largest made by Cleveland coastguardsmen this year. Authorities estimated the value of the cargo aboard the craft, which bore the name "Idle Hour," at more than $28,000.

The pilot of the boat gave his name as Harry Wilson of Amherst, Ont.

Coastguardsmen sighted the runner slipping along the breakwater early today and gave chase. When the runner fled, the guardsmen opened rifle fire which brought the liquor-laden craft to a halt.

TRACE MISSING MAN LAST TO CLEVELAND

HAMILTON, O., Nov. 21.—With mystery still enveloping the movements of Albert D. Stuckey, 55, automobile dealer and bank director, today after disappearing from his home here Tuesday, further word was awaited from him.

He was last traced to Cleveland, O., through a bus ticket purchased at Covington, Ky., where he left his car and then mailed a letter to his wife which she received yesterday stating that he was sorry for what he had done and mentioned financial troubles which he had discussed with her.

It is believed that imaginary financial troubles caused his depression and flight.

HOLIDAY DINNER TO COST $10

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Housewife of Cleveland, who budgets and buys, has just figured that somewhere in the neighborhood of $10 will probably feed her family of five for Thanksgiving. Half of that sum will go for a ten-pound turkey at the current poundage rate. Cranberries, pumpkin, potatoes, celery and the rest of the trimmings for the dinner will eat up the remaining $5 at the rate of a dime here and a quarter there. Approximately 50,000 turkeys are reported on their way here for the Thanksgiving slaughter.

NEW DISCLOSURES IN TEMPLE PROBE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—That new and sensational discoveries have been made in the investigation of Angelus Temple financial affairs, now being carried on by the district attorney's office, was widely reported today.

While deputy district attorney Daniel Beecher, in charge of the investigation, would neither confirm nor deny these reports, he declared the inquiry is being pushed.

EDGE NAMED U. S. ENVOY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Senator Walter E. Edge (R) of New Jersey was confirmed by the senate today as American ambassador to France, two minutes after receiving his nomination from President Hoover.

Edge will forward resignation from the senate today to the governor of New Jersey. The understanding prevailed here that Gov. Larsen would name David Baird, Jr., of Camden, to serve out Edge's present term, which expires March 4, 1931.

SENATE TO ADJOURN FRIDAY; SEE PEACE OVER TARIFF FIGHT

Expect President To Intervene In Dispute Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—All factions engaged in the congressional fight over tariff revision today breathed a sigh of relief with adjournment set for Friday night and the way cleared for a renewal of efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement of the bitter senate quarrel over the Hawley-Smoot bill.

Congressional leaders again turned their eyes toward the White House in the hope that President Hoover may intervene in the tariff dispute before the bill is finally passed by the senate.

Their hopes were based largely upon the prospect that Mr. Hoover may canvass the tariff situation in his annual message to be delivered with the opening of the regular session December 2. Thus far the president has declined to interfere in the dispute over rates.

The end of the special session will see the Democratic-Insurgent Republican coalition's power intact and its leaders predicting they will continue to dominate tariff legislation.

The assurance of Sen. Borah (R) of Idaho, a coalition leader, that no effort will be made to break down the protective tariff system was viewed by "Hoover Republicans" as an opportunity for further negotiations on the bill in the next two weeks.

"There has been no threat made and no intention manifested to attack the protective system," said Borah. "There has been no purpose expressed, directly or by implication, that the vast interests now over-protected are to be destroyed."

CLEMENCEAU AGAIN IS CRITICALLY ILL

PARIS, Nov. 21.—M. Georges Clemerceau, veteran French statesman and war-time premier, was in a critical condition again today, following an attack of an abdominal ailment.

The "Tiger" has been ailing for many weeks and several times his physicians all but despaired of saving his life.

Heretofore, however, he has suffered from ailments of the heart and lungs and the attack in the abdominal region was considered by his physician, Dr. DeGennes, as a serious complication.

TUNNEYS TO RETURN TO AMERICA SOON

ROME, Nov. 21.—Gene Tunney, retired world's heavyweight champion, today was making preparations to return to the United States aboard the liner Vulcania, sailing from Naples tomorrow.

The retired fighter has been doing some hurried sightseeing before his return. He motored to the new excavations at Pompeii this morning, and plans a visit to Amalfi this morning. He motored to Naples yesterday.

Tunney will be accompanied on the return trip by his wife, the former Polly Lauder. The couple has been on an extended honeymoon in Europe.

INDICT LAW MAKER

Representative Edward E. Denison, above, of Marion, Ill., has been indicted by a District of Columbia grand jury on a charge of violating the prohibition law. The indictment follows the discovery of a "reeking suitcase" at the Washington union station, addressed to Denison's secretary in care of the congressman. Denison has denied ownership of the suitcase.

SENATE DEMOCRATS LAUNCH BATTLE FOR SOLDIERS' RIGHTS

Reject Nomination Of Postmaster Not Ex-Service Man

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Senatorial Democrats today prepared to start a vigorous fight upon the alleged failure of the administration to comply with the spirit of the law directing ex-service men be given preference in government appointments.

Senator Black (D) of Alabama announced he would protest every appointment where there appears to be a violation of the preferential rights of ex-soldiers.

The senate yesterday rejected the nomination of Albert C. Grunwell to be postmaster at Dillon, Mont. He was appointed by President Hoover to succeed an ex-service man who had a twenty-point better record in the postal examinations.

The policy of the administration, according to Senator Swanson (D) of Virginia, is to add five points to an ex-service man's grade on postal and other examinaions.

This, he maintains, is a flagrant violation of the statute, which directs that they shall be given preference. The five-point advantage is nullified whenever it conflicts with the will of Republican political leaders in making appointments he asserted.

The same policy, according to Senator Barkley (D) of Kentucky is pursued in the appointment of census enumerators.

EXPECT SINCLAIR WILL VISIT FARM

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 21.—Harry F. Sinclair, released early today from the district of Columbia jail, is expected Friday or Saturday at the Rancocas stock farm at Jobstown, near here.

The house has been made ready for Sinclair's homecoming and it is expected he will vacation for a while at Rancocas before resuming business activities.

Mrs. Sinclair has been preparing the house for her husband's return.

GETS BUT $3,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The suit to recover $189,000 brought by Richard Fuche, secretary to John Ringling, against the Madison Square Garden Corporation was over today after a jury had awarded him $3,000. Fuche sued for 10 per cent of the gross of the first Dempsey-Tunney fight for his services in helping to promote the bout.

CALLS CONFERENCE TO ASK INDUSTRIES TO HELP BUSINESS

Merchant Kings Join President In Hope For Co-operation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Hoover turned to the industrial leaders of the country today for further assurance that American business is basically too sound to be disturbed in any vital way by the speculation of the stock market.

Already assured that agriculture is in good shape and that the railroads of the country are proceeding full steam ahead with improvements and expansions, the president summoned to the White House today a score of leading industrialists for counsel as to their future plans, and to enlist their services in the national effort to keep business on a steady keel during the period of unsettlement brought about by the decline in securities' prices.

The list of the president's conferees read like an industrial blue book of America.

Coming into the capital this morning were leaders in the automobile industry, such as Henry Ford and Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors; there were the kings of the utilities business such as Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of General Electric, and Walter Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph; merchants like Julius Rosenwald of Sears and Roebuck; Samuel Reyburn of Lord and Taylor, and Jesse L. Straus of Macy and Co.; there were steel representatives like Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the steel corporation, and George Laughlin, of Jones and Laughlin, of Pittsburgh; and many others whose names are by-words in Wall St. and the industrial marts of the country.

The company which Mr. Hoover gathered about the big table in the cabinet room at the White House was by long odds the most distinguished, in a business way, that Washington has seen in many years. Most of them he knew personally, for as secretary of commerce he was wont to hold numerous conferences of like nature, seeking guidance and cooperation in the expansion of America's foreign trade.

Today, however, Mr. Hoover sought something more. He sought the co-operation of the industrial leaders in the maintenance of general business conditions on an even keel until by its own effort it can work itself free from the depressing effect of recent stock market declines.

On his own part, as president, Mr. Hoover assured his visitors that the government believes conditions are basically sound, and to them he pledged whole-hearted government co-operation in the expansion of export, which plays such a big part in the piling up of favorable trade balances.

And from them he requested the same degree of co-operation that the government is willing to extend.

Specifically, Mr. Hoover sought from his conferees assurances that they will not embark upon panicky retrenchment policies at this critical time.

Millions of American workmen are directly or indirectly dependent upon the men gathered in the cabinet room at the White House today for their continued employment. Curtailment of production means the loss of jobs to thousands, and that entails a loss in the country's purchasing power that can be measured in millions.

Occasional curtailment of production is necessary in any successful business, but it is against

CHILDREN PERISH FROM SMOKE FUMES

DAYTON, O., Nov. 21.—Two children are dead here today as the result of a fire which partly destroyed their home late yesterday. They are Rayburn, 4, and Mildren Jean, 2, children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rutrough, of this city.

The fire which broke out in a wash-room of the residence trapped the children upstairs and they were suffocated before firemen could reach them. The mother returning from a nearby store made a valiant effort to save them but fainted when the smoke enveloped her.

BAR SPECTATORS

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Spectators were barred today from the American Bridge League's national tournament in progress here in response to a request for quiet from the participants.

Qualifying play was begun yesterday and will be finished today. The finals will be played tomorrow.

FEAR-STRICKEN MEN RESCUED FROM LAKE ERIE BREAKWATERS

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 21.—Fear-stricken and chilled to the bone, two men were rescued from the breakwaters of Lake Erie early today by coast guardsmen and boatmen who fought heavy lake waters to answer calls for help.

The men are Fred Klein and George Myers, both of Cleveland. They had been marooned for three hours after their motor boat had been dashed to pieces by the lake waves against the breakwater.

At Mt. Sinai Hospital, where they were taken, it was said the men had suffered exposure but that they were not in serious condition.

Rescuers battled the lake waves for more than a half hour before they were able to reach the water-drenched and frozen men.

Klein and Myers said they had started out duck hunting in an outboard motor craft when they were caught in the violent snow storm which whipped the city late last night.

SUED; SEEK MONEY FOR TRANSPORTATION

The Greene County Board of Education and the Silvercreek Twp. Board of Education are named joint defendants in separate suits filed in Common Pleas Court by O. M. Cresmer and Hiram Rogers, both residents of New Jasper Twp., who seek judgments against the school boards for money they spent to transport their children to Jamestown High School.

Both plaintiffs assert they live more than four miles away from Jamestown High School, the nearest school, and that there is no school in the township in which they reside.

The fathers claim that in conference with the Silvercreek Twp. school board prior to entering their children in Jamestown High School and prior to each succeeding school year thereafter the township board agreed to pay for transporting the children to the school in question at the rate of $1.25 a day.

Declaring the board has failed to live up to its agreement, Cresmer seeks to be reimbursed for $1,274.75, covering the period from September, 1925 to date that his sons, Davis, a crippled child, and Russell, were students at the Jamestown school, while Rogers asks a judgment for $209.50, from September, 1928 to date, the period his son, Lawrence, attended the same school.

Both plaintiffs are represented by Attorney Marcus McCallister.

At D. A. R. Meeting

MISS EMMA LYON, executive secretary of the joint American Red Cross Chapter and Social Service League gave the address at the meeting of Catharine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the home of Mrs. S. O. Hale, N. Detroit St., Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Lyon talked on the subject of "American Homes and Citizenship". She dated her address back to the time of the sailing of the Mayflower and brought out the fact that these people were willing to endure hardships for freedom of conscience. She told of the wars which have been fought for this country, when men and women were called upon for sacrifices to uphold freedom and principles. "Not war alone, but peace time disasters have taken many American men and women doing and daring for now and generations to come," said Miss Lyon.

The social agencies that are now working for good citizenship feel that giving food and clothing alone is not sufficient, but teaching self reliance and self support she said. "Nothing concerns us but human beings, as we know no race or creed, neither East, West, North nor South", she said.

The meeting opened with the regular business session followed by an interesting report of the meeting at Blanchester in connection with the Bullskin Road, given by Mrs. Alice G. Eavey. Mrs. Eavey brought out the fact that the road runs from the Ohio River to Detroit, Mich., and that Detroit St., this city, was originally the Detroit Road.

Tunney's Bankroll Is Opens in Texas

The preliminaries in John S. Fogarty's attempt to reduce Gene Tunney's bankroll by $500,000 were being staged on Armistice Day in Fort Worth, Tex., in preparation for the real bout scheduled for Bridgeport, Conn., early next year. At the extreme left Frank Wilder, counsel for the Fogarty's in their suit against the ex-king of the pugilistic world. Mrs. Fogary, the center figure in the great bout; (center) James Joseph (Gene) Tunney, outstanding figure in the world's history of pugilism and undefeated king of the fistic world. At lower right is Homer Cummings who will defend Tunney, while Charles J. Martin (center) will perform the same office for the Fogarty's.

International Newsreel

GENE TUNNEY may be through with the ring, but he isn't through with fighting. Out in the wide open spaces—Fort Worth, Tex., to be more explicit, the gong has sounded for the opening round of the great Fogarty versus Tunney battle, for a purse of a million dollars. A brilliant array of legal talent will second the principals, including Homer Cummings who will defend Tunney, and George Whiteside, of New York, his personal counsel. Frank Wilder and Charles J. Martin will perform similar office for the Fogartys. Mrs. Fogarty's action is for breach of promise for which she asks $500,000, while John Fogarty is bringing a suit for alienation by which he seeks to put another half million dent in the Tunney family fortune. The purpose of the present hearing is to take the depositions of over 100 witnesses to save the expense of bringing them from Texas to Bridgeport, Conn., where the cases will actually be contested. There are witnesses who will offer testimony that the Fogartys were living happily together until she met Tunney in Hot Springs, Ark., where he was then training. Mrs. Fogarty will offer additional witnesses to testify that they saw her in the company of the boxer in Chicago, St. Paul, Little Rock, Ark., and Ponca City, Okla. Mrs. Fogarty will also endeavor to prove that she divorced her husband, a Fort Worth plumber, only at the insistence of Gene, whom, she alleges, offered to marry her, as soon as she secured her decree. This she did in May, 1925. Witnesses for Fogarty will offer similar testimony to substantiate his alienation action.

A host of witnesses have been assembled on behalf of Tunney to show that the Fogartys were not on the best of terms at the time that she met Tunney. Tunney's counsel will also endeavor to show that the actions brought by the Fogartys are nothing else than blackmail. All in all, it looks like a very sad time for Tunney as far as publicity is concerned, despite his anguished appeals to the press to let him alone. The cases will be actually under way very early in the new year, and it is not yet known whether the Fogartys will be called to the witness stand by Gene's attorneys.

FOR THAT ULTRA-SMART OCCASION

Frances Clyne, New York dressmaker, says: Costumes for the opera this winter are regal, for the opera is quite the most formal evening entertainment one can attend. One must think of such a costume as a single ensemble. No gown alone is quite adequate. The wrap is quite as important as the gown. The ensemble pictured is of brocaded lame, fine as lace and pliable as silk. The gown has a smartly cut overskirt cut in one with the front section of the gown which ruffles and dips in the back. The coat has a flaring skirt portion and is lavishly collared in white fox.

DEPUTIES NAMED TO DISTRIBUTE TAGS

The appointments are made annually. Sale of the new tags starts December 1 but the plates may not be used by autoists until December 20.

Poems that Live

UNDER THE LINDENS

UNDER the lindens lately sat
A couple, and no more, in chat;
I wondered what they would be at
Under the lindens.

I saw four eyes and four lips meet,
I heard the words, "How sweet! how sweet!"
Had then the Fairies given a treat
Under the lindens?

I pondered long and could not tell
What dainty pleased them both so well.
Bees! bees! was it your hydromel

ARTISTIC TOUCHES TRANSFORM GROWING BOB INTO CHARMING COIFFURE

A few deft touches by the master hand of Antoine, famous Paris hairdresser, transforms the hard to manage growing bob, or the hair of the not-so-young woman, into a charming medium of self-expression and artistry. Photo No. 1 shows a typical growing bob, too long to look neat and too short to do in a knot. In center (2) Antoine is showing what can be done with hair at this awkward length. The model's face being long instead of round, he combs down a fringe of bangs and brings some curls forward in front of the ears. The manner in which monsieur tucks curly ends of the growing bob high on the head instead of giving what he terms "a heavy line on the neck" is shown in (3), and the same model is coiffed for evening with a headdress of metal ribbon (4), complementing the long skirt and high waist of the gown. In (5) the not-so-young woman's hair is shown as she has been doing it herself; (6) shows back view of same head after a few deft touches by Antoine. A side view of the same coiffure is shown (7), and the evening variation as arranged by M. Antoine, with a coronet of silver ribbon, is pictured (8).

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

TRUE WORSHIPERS—The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him. God is a spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.—John 4:23, 24.

MERCHANT MARINE ESSENTIAL

Speaking as a physician, Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, recently undertook to analyze the mental condition of the upper house of congress; and he did a good job. Speaking as a legislator of experience in Washington and as a practical student of national interests, the senator still more lately discussed the merchant marine question before the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers. Much of what he said is to the point.

Mr. Copeland insists that what our country is to be in the family of nations depends on our merchant fleet. "We may have gold in our banks, but unless we can dispose of our surplus goods and crops our riches will disappear," he asserts, and adds, "The great powers, the world powers are the nations that control export trade. In the last analysis, it is the merchant fleet, and not vessels of war that fix naval supremacy. If Great Britain were to destroy one-half of her battleships, she would still be mistress of the seas. Her merchant ships with all their potentialities would guarantee her ocean supremacy."

The British themselves do not take as thoroughgoing a view as this, else they would immediately cut their fleet in two and save a great deal of expense; but there is, nevertheless, a substratum of solid truth beneath the senator's oratory. Certainly no country which depends upon export trade for a material part of its prosperity and progress, as the United States is doing more and more every year, can hope for permanently happy economic conditions unless it has its own ocean-going vessels in which to transport goods. In no other way can it really be independent of the rest of the world and make its own markets. And if it is an exaggeration to assert that it is the merchant fleet that finally fixes naval supremacy, it is at least true, as Senator Copeland contends, that without a merchant marine this country will find great difficulty in remaining a world power in either peace or war, certainly in war when a big, modern merchant fleet properly organized can be made into an auxiliary fleet almost over night.

The man without funds or borrowing power didn't get pinched in Wall street; which indicates that sometimes even a pauper gets a break.

The only avowed dry among the four aspirants to New York's city hall received 5,956 votes out of more than 1,400,000.

Many parents would save themselves a lot of worry merely by remembering that it is normal for youngsters to be savages.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Any theater man will tell you he craves women audiences. They may be hard to handle and difficult to seat. They may stick wads of wrigley under the chairs and litter the aisles with crumpled programs and caramel wrappers; but if they like the show, they DO go out and boost it, and they don't mean maybe!

Hence the verdict: Most producers would rather give away 100 tickets to matinee fans than spend $10 advertising. The returns from the consequent chatter are higher.

TIMES SQUARE EATERIES

Moderate priced Nose Bags still bud and bloom in the Longacre and Times Square area. Every variety of hasherie known to man, from the modest Coffee Pot to the Brass Rail variety, has come into being along The Lane and its fringes in the ten years succeeding the Noble Experiment.

Men need some place to congregate, lounge, smoke and something to sip as they spout. Before we lost our likker, The Tavern was the place where inspiration soared and sang and where camaraderie flourished.

Dunce McVacuum, on his way home, with the "call" the Boss had given him still rankling in his memory, paused at The Tavern, where he encountered a bunch, ready and willing to lend ear to his tale of woe:

"An' I sez t' the Boss 'Lissen,' I sez, 'Whoinell d'yuh think yer talkin' to?"

From the bartender down to "Dan, Dan, the lavatory man," they all knew he was lying. But they recognized, also, the need that Dunce McVacuum was labboring under, of getting his imaginary trouble off his chest. Thus, they grinned, appreciatively, harkened patiently, and sent the Worthy Brother home in a receptive mood to his wife and kiddies and the cat, with the joy germs ajingle and everything jake.

You can't get that sort of companionship in Childs. The chairs are too hard and small and institutional. The one-arm lunch joints are too noisy and greasy. There's too much gold leaf. And there's as much camaraderie in a speakeasy as there is in a counterfeiters' den.

So in Tammany Town the number of moderate priced Nose Bags increases, month by month, while in and out of them, the Depressed Pilgrim wanders looking for something he lost when they closed The Tavern.

WELL, WHO COULD TELL UP?

A modernistic painter, named Eddie Dickinson struck off a thing called "The Fossil Hunters" which he sent over to be exhibited at the National Academy of Design.

They're very conservative at the National Academy. They didn't understand modernistic art, with its agony of angles and its dilirium tremens colors. Nevertheless they are fair. The Committee on Hanging couldn't decide which was the top and which was the bottom of the picture. So they tossed a coin and up she went on the wall.

When the Prize Committee reached the Dickinson picture the Hanging Committee pointed out to them that very possibly the picture was supposed to hang the other way. The Prize Committee looked at it both ways and found that either way it was worthy. So they awarded it the Second Altman prize of $500. Later Eddie came around and told them the picture had been hung cockeyed. So they changed it and everybody was happy

TASTE AND EMOTIONALISM

Not long ago, if one had been in a Detroit court, he would have been treated to the spectacle of six jury women kissing a two-time convict and three-time killer, after acquitting him of a charge of attempted robbery. This sort of thing is probably the zero mark in bad taste. But that isn't the most important thing about it. One wonders, or rather one is sure what the effect of such exhibitions of unwholesome emotionalism is upon the people—especially upon the kind that has little to do but attend sensational trials. Men frequently show as little judgment in jury work as women, but so far few have been seen to kiss the prisoner.

NOISE

A committee is gathering samples of noise in New York streets. A special truck equipped with sensitive apparatus for measuring the intensity of sound is traveling through the streets. A questionnaire will provide any information as to the noises which annoy the most people the most of the time. A survey will result in recommendations for legislation. Much noise is useless. Perhaps it can be controlled—and some eliminated.

A complete noise survey would include investigation of the noise of useless conversation. Much talk is mere noise. How many of us stop to think whether we have anything to add to information or entertainment before we join in and have our say?

HOW ABOUT THE NEGRO?

Bishop McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches, speaking at an inter-racial meeting, says "the assumption of superiority of the white man which has no basis whatever in fact," is the chief cause of inter-racial difficulties.

"No race in human history," says McConnell, "has ever made, in the same length of time, the strides the Negro race has."

There are 260,000 colored people in New York—about 3 per cent of the population.

Who's Who and Timely Views

By CONGRESSMAN BERTRAND SNELL

Chairman, House Committee on Rules

(Bertrand H. Snell was born at Colton, N. Y., Dec. 9, 1870. He is a graduate of Amherst college. He had began as a bookkeeper, and later became secretary and manager of the Racquette River Paper company at Potsdam, N. Y. He has been proprietor of the Snell Power plant at Higley Falls, president of the York State Oil company, and president of the board of trustees of Clarkson Memorial college. Elected to congress in 1915 from the thirty-first New York district, he has been returned each term since. He is a charman of the committee on rules. He was a delegate to the Republican national convention in 1916, '20 and '24.)

Canalization of the St. Lawrence waterway to provide an outlet to the ocean for traffic from the Great Lakes and the Central West, permissive voluntary consolidation of the railroads, regulation of the interstate motor bus traffic, and a new federal penitentiary for the northeastern states, constitute the main legislative agenda for congress at the coming regular session.

One of the outstanding matters that I hope congress will take up at the coming regular session is the canalization of the St. Lawrence river. The Welland canal will be completed on July 1, 1930. The fact that United States army engineers have reported adversely to the deepening of the present barge canal across New York state makes it quite likely, if there is to be an outlet from the west it will be down the St. Lawrence river.

I purpose to do everything that I can to press legislation with a view to this canalization. There are about 21 states that are interested in this proposal. It means an outlet for the Great Lakes and for all the central states for ocean-going traffic.

As to the voluntary consolidation of railroads, it has been understood that this legislation is expected to come up for consideration. I am not sufficiently informed as to the exact sentiment for immediate action, but I know that there is such legislation before the house interstate commerce committee.

But lines are multiplying rapidly all over the United States and in many cases railroads are operating bus lines to meet the competition. I think it is imperative to have some kind of regulatory legislation, and I rather think there will be.

Of course, the primary consideration on the program will be the annual appropriation bills, which will be expedited.

We are going to stay here until the senate takes some action on the tariff bill, or sends word that there is no prospect of a bill. There is no plan for any business by the house the rest of the session except the tariff, if the senate passes it, and the election of the present members of the committee on appropriations.

I am going to press, as vigorously as I can, legislation to provide for a new federal penitentiary in the northeastern states. I think it is absurd that the federal prisoners of New England and the other eastern states have to be sent all the way to Atlanta. I have been interested in this subject for a number of years, and I am going to take up the matter with the department of justice.

TEMPERING THE WIND TO THE SHORN LAMB

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Many are the instances when beauty helps women to get what they want, and there are very few women, indeed, who ignore the power of personal charm. I doubt whether many of my readers realize how often men and boys, as well as girls and women, are worried about blemishes or any defects which mar their personal appearance.

I am thinking of a very lovely lady who said one day to her particular beauty specialist, "I wond whether you can do something fo young men?" The specialist agsked what particularly had to be done, and the lady replied:

"I happen to have a very charming neighbors who is the mother of three grown boys. They are all perfectly wonderful fellows, doing fine things in school, but all of them are afflicted with acne, and both they and the mother worry endlessly about it. Do you think you can help them?"

The specialist told her to ask her neighbor to come in, and in just a day or two later she arrived with her eldest boy. He was a tall, strapping fellow, with excellent features, but horribly disfigured by an extremely severe case of acne. His shyness made it difficult to know him, but as the treatments began to show surprising results, and his skin became clearer, he grew quite cheerful and then in a very boyish manner remarked: "Gee, I don't know what you're using on me, but it's great stuff. May I bring my brothers?" And he did.

Some time afterward a very happy mother called on the beautician to thank her personally. The acne had given her as much concern as the boys, for she watched their shyness and wondered whether they would ever be able to meet people confidently. As the treatments cured her boys of acne she saw them grow more cummunicative and more anxious to mingle in youthful society.

She added that the boys were conscientious about following out the treatments at home, and that it had even gotten to the point where they retaliated when one dared to use any of the preparations belonging to the other.

When one stops to consider the truly terrible psychological effect which acne can have on the mental attitude of adolescent boys and girls it certainly is a real relief to know that it can be eliminated.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—In the middle of a lovely lawn back of the Hotel Pleasanton in Honolulu there used to stand (and does yet, for all I know) a 12 or 15 foot pole with a miniature structure atop of it, something like a dog house.

Around this pole was a wire ring, loose enough to slide easily up and down, but prevented from sliding over the top by the little building. Attached to the ring was one end of a chain, maybe five yards long; its other end fastened to a belt spanning the slim waist of a small moneky.

When Jocko wearied of playing at his chain's extremity on the lawn, he would scale the pole, the ring sliding after him, and sit in his house or on its roof. With the ring at that altitude, his chain hung sufficiently slack to let him jump into an overhanging tree, and occasionally he did so.

ONE day he did it once too often. He accidentally kinked his chain around a few twigs and could not get down again.

The row he raised was astonishing for so small a monkey.

Attracted by the chattering, a score of guests ran from the hotel to invesitgate. A rescue was attempted immediately.

A ladder was brought and leaned against the pole. Quickly it became evident that that plan would not work. The pole would not support a man's weight. Climbing the tree did no good, either; the monkey was too far out on his limb.

AT this juncture a Japanese laborer happened to pass.

All labor in the Hawaiian archipelago is Japanese, Chinese, Korean, Filipino or Portuguese, with a thin admixture of assorted beach combers.

Moreover, nearly the entire population of the islands, consisted of exceedingly common laborers, except the aristocracy. The Hawaiian aristocracy is peculiar; unique, probably.

Approximately a century ago the archipelago fell under what is euphoniously called American "influence." By the early 9's fewer than a dozen American families owned practically everything above sea level—not only the real estate but everything that occupied it. Every peanut stand at least paid tribute to them.

THOSE original families remain virtually the island's sole proprietors.

With their poor relations, brought over from the main land, and a scanty group of white-collar dependents, and of course the tourists, they are the only folk in Hawaii territory who signify a cent's worth.

Around a third of a million imported toilers (the aborigines being all but exterminated) are subject to them—the merest handful of them.

It is doubtful earth can show another so air-tight a monopoly.

It goes without saying that such a system's beneficiaries consider it the most beneficent in the universe. They cannot afford to think otherwise.

WELL, along came this Japanese laborer.

The Mongolian demurred.

"You blankety blank so-and-so, you!" yelled the enraged rescuers. "You do what we tell you. Quick, too, before we kick you up."

So a dozen of strong hands kept the ladder in a perpendicular position while the Jap ascended into the foliage and freed the scolding cimian—it only took a minute.

DOWN came Jocko with a rush, jabbering bloody murder. Kind arms received him. Pats and caresses half smothered him. Consoling baby-talk was lavished on him.

Wham! down also crashed the forgotten ladder. Kerplunk! the disregarded Japanese hit the unyielding greensward. Not a head was turned in his direction. Not an ear heeded his groans as he got up and limped off. True, he was not seriously injured—but that was immaterial.

Which goes to show how much the commonalty counts in Hawaii.

HIRAM BINGHAM, now of Connecticut, the first U. S. Senator in a generation to have his official conduct formally censured by his fellow solons, as "contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics,' and tending to bring the senate into dishonor and disrepute"—

Senator Bingham was born and brought up in Honolulu, a scion of the Hawaiian aristocracy.

What stumped the senate was the manifest honesty of Bingham's inability to see that he had wronged the public by placing the representative of certain special interests in a position to aid these interests at the public's expense.

ALTHOUGH not a senator raised his voice in the culprit's defense, 22 out of the 76 who voted opposed the resolution of censure, not because they denied his culpability, but because they were so sure he meant harm by what he had done. As Senator Norris, who introduced the resolution, expressed it: "The regrettable part of the whole matter is the fact that the senator from Connecticut does not realize he has done wrong."

And Bingham still treated it as pure "politics" in the face of his warmest friend, Senator David A. Reed's remark. "If that resolution were passed about me, I would feel that the rest of my life was to be spent under a cloud."

A CURIOUS career!—Senator Bingham's.

Initially, by blood and birth and upbringing a Hawaiian aristocrat!—one of the anointed.

Then a student, successively, at Andover, Yale the University of California!— growing constantly more superior.

A professor, successively, at Harvard, Princeton and Yale!— more and more superior.

An explorer in repeated expeditions into the South American wilds!—bossing scarcely human peons, instead of coolies, as in Hawaii.

War commander of an air port!—a good one, too, but a commander. Then lieutenant governor and governor of Connecticut. Always in a position of superiority.

Altogether, for a lifetime up to date, an abnormally superior person!

THE incident of the Japanese and the monkey on the Hotel Pleasanton lawn in Honolulu may seem frivolous to some people.

I don't believe psychoanalysts will consider it so, however.

I think it explains the most extraordinary complex in the United States senate.

This menu was planned for a family of six. Don't forget to file this recipe for scrapple. If breakfast is the problem meal to most of you that it is to me, you will welcome a dish that you can easily make and which will aid your problem. My breakfast "problem" is simply that my family likes a hearty first meal and I like a light one—the same things every morning. Not being interested myself in eating different things for breakfast, it seems hard to give the rest a varied menu.

Short brown fur jackets are worn topping woolen skirts in green or rust tones.

Dresses of fishnet, especially in black with attached [illegible] sleeves, are "good" [illegible] season.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Sleeping in the Cold.

Not long ago I had a letter from a reader who wanted to know my opinion of the idea that it is harmful to sleep in cold air. She had read in some article that it was.

No it isn't. Most of us find that we have a much more refreshing sleep when the air is cold than when warmed artificially. Personally, I find I cannot sleep at all if I leave the radiator on during the night, no matter how cold it is (and it gets pretty cold here in New York.)

But you must not sleep cold—that is harmful. You must have warm night clothes, and sufficient bed coverings to keep warm. Woolen blankets and an elderdown quilt of course, are the best. And wear a night cap if it is very cold, or pull your sheet over the back of your head. Then,, if necessary, a hot water bag or two, or three. I often take two with me, especially when I read in bed, for my hands get cold, so I have one of my feet and one for my hands. After my hands get warm, I slip it down to my shoulders or the small of my back. Comfy! I love my h. w. bs.

Now I'm smashing a common belief that it is weakening to take a hot water bag to bed to warm the feet. It isn't. It is almost impossible to go to sleep with cold feet, and the time you take from your needed sleep is certainly much more apt to be harmful. Naturally, I advise exercise, so that one has a good circulation, but no matter how good a circulation some people have their feet don't seem to recognize it.

About the warm air again. Remember that cheap types of gas stoves to warm the room may be dangerous, also coal fires and oil lamps that have incomplete combustion.

Outdoor air, even in the coldest of weather, has distinctly stimulating and healing properties, and the longer you stay in it the better. Many convalescents improve markedly when placed in the open. At the battle Creek sanitarium you will find the lawns and porches (appropriated for the purpose) filled with patients in reclining chairs and cots. They are put out in the morning, and are required to stay all day, only going in for their treatments. Their meals are brought to them.

In the New York Lying-in hospital (and probably in many other hospitals) they have a solarium for their serious cases, and these patients stay out in the open night and day, even in the coldest weather, and are only taken in for treatments, and when it storms.

I should say that all our experience points to the fact that cold air is harmful, but defidedly beneficial, if the person is kept warm.

Miss S.—Persons can't help the wrong impressions and the wrong things that they do through lack of knowledge in their early lives, and probably every one has experienced some disagreeable things of a similar nature to yours. Realizing that you are not alone in such psychic injuries, stops their hurting. Stop concentrating on them, Miss S. When you begin to pity yourself, say to yourself: "This is a fine thing I'm doing! Self-pity! The most despicable of emotions. I'll snap out of it!" Get yourself as much interested in some work or hobby as you possibly can, and get interested in and be as helpful and kind to other people as you can. This will help you forget your own little ego and bring you happiness.

Naturally you must have the right diet so that your nervous system is nourished properly, and you should have some exercise and lots of outdoor life.

If you find it too difficult, better consult a physician who specializes in psychoanalysis, or some other well qualified practitioner of that art.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Quite a jolt, isn't it, when a married person finds that they have taken on, not an adult companion, one to be pals with, to lean on in time of trouble, and to counsel with in times of stress, but a child, a selfish child at that. One who wants to be mothered or fathered petted and spoiled.

This is the problem of the woman who writes me this letter part of which I print.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm a married woman of 26 and have been married six years, but have no children. Now I dearly love children and have always wished for one, but my husband says he never expects to be called daddy, and as long as I live with him I shall never have any.

"He also says if I had any I would love them better than him. He doesn't like it if I speak a good word for any other man, even my brother-in-law, who is older and has a wife and three sweet babies.

"Now I love him dearly and just don't see how I could give him up, but I would love to know how to change his ways. At just any little thing he will get mad and pout like a kid for two or three days without saying scarcely anything to me.

"He is a good provider and any time I want money (when he is in a good humor) I always get it. I just try in every way to please him, but it seems I can't all the time. When he isn't mad he just makes over me and is silly about me, says he can't give me up and that no one else can do anything as good as I.

You've got a grown up child on your hands, dear, and a very spoiled one at that. He wants a doting mother, not a wife. He's a lovable child, generous and affectionate—when he gets his own way, so you love him and pamper him and make him worse.

Only a strong-minded woman can cope with such a character, just as only a strong-minded parent can properly train a head-strong, selfish child. Probably, deep down in his heart, he knows he is weak—has the inferiority complex we hear so much about—and depends on you—who have much more character—to build up his self-respect and defend him against himself and the world.

There are two ways of getting around such a character. You can coax, cajole and flatter (which does not always work, as you have found). In that case you would tell him that you want a baby because you want him—your husband—perpetuated. His appearance, his manners, his character should be reproduced in children. What would you do if anything happened to him? You would be desolate, but if you had a little son or daughter who looked like him, a part of him, to comfort you, you would be a wee bit less forlorn and, could never forget him for another. You can flatter him by the thought that he will be more admired as the father of children.

Or you can treat him as the wise mother treats the spoiled child. You can pay no attention to his tantrums. You can go your way, doing what you know to be right, and if he doesn't like it he can have his spells and get over them without any sugar-coated flattery from you. You can tell him to snap out of it, to be a man, and that when he is at his best you love him dearly, but that when he sulks and won't speak he is a subject to laughter or a good sound spanking, not a man you can admire and look up to.

This latter course will be a long, hard fight ,full of heartache for you, and you've got to be strong to go through with it. I don't envy you, my dear, if you decide on it, but you MAY—I cannot promise you will—make a man of him and win through to happiness.

The very fact that you are sweet natured and unselfish makes you a victim to his whims, and those facts, too, make him need you and will give you the victory if you try to cure him. God be with you, my dear.

L. S. B.: If the man you like best of all is so weak minded that he lets his late wife's mother scare him away, he is not the type of man you need for a husband. The one you speak of doesn't sound so good, either, unless you want to support him after you are married. Better forget them both, and the chances are you'll meet some one who is more suitable and will really make you happy.

Peter's Adventures

FLAG OF TRUCE

Stagg and Rose were caught in a clever trap and they knew it, and all the time that Lady-Bird had been explaining things to Peter they had been consulting as to what to do next. Now they drew apart and looked cautiously about, Stagg Beetle crawled slowly to the side of the path. The Gun Beetles made no move. They were waiting to see what he would do next.

A white clover grew beside the path and this was evidently the goal that Stagg was trying to reach. It didn't take him long, and he caught the stalk in his pointed horns, pulled the blossom within his reach and bit through the stem with his sharp teeth.

Then, holding the white clover firmly in his jaws, he crawled quickly back toward his comrade. They talked for a moment, with heads close together, and then side by side, with Stagg still bearing the white clover, Stagg and Rose advanced toward the party beside the stone.

"[illegible] have had enough, boys," [illegible] Father, "and here they come with a flag of truce. Shall we make peace?"

"I say 'yes'," declared Biffer, and Lady-Bird and the other Gun Beetles agreed heartily with him. Peter said nothing. He was too much interested in watching the truce bearer and his companion.

The two former hunters came vrey close to Father Beetle before they said a word and then they spoke to the commander-in-chief.

"We surrender," was all that they said, but for their generous enemy it was quite enough. Father Gun Beetle held out his claw.

"Fine," said he. "We are sorry if we scared you, but we only did it in self-defense, you know. We were warned that you were on one of your great hunts and although it may be great sport for you, and we know that you mean us no harm, still it is never very much funf or us. The last time we were chased one of my babies died from fright and another so fast that he forgot to look where he was going and fell into the brook And my eldest boy broke his wing cover on a rock."

Buccaneers Meet Sidney In Final Home Game

FRAMED by Phil

Between halves of the recent Ohio Wesleyan-Wittenberg game the Lutheran school, now under fire in the Buckeye Conference, took an opportunity to poke fun at the now famous report of the Carnegie Foundation.

Its version of the report was presented by the Boost "W" Association in a stunt intended to show football as it would be played in years to come under regulations of "The Bethlehem Foundation."

Two elevens dressed in tuxedos took the field while the announcer explained that every man on the two teams had paid his own tuition in full, had made a four-point average in scholarship, and had purchased his own gridiron uniform.

The tuxedo-clad gridders battled to a scoreless tie with but one casualty when one player soiled his finger. He was immediately removed from the game and given first aid at the side-lines by an ex-games of the conference schedule pert manicurist. Coeds served tea on the gridiron at the close of the battle.

One of the best records made on the collegiate gridiron this season is possessed by Ohio University, which had the Buckeye Conference title won even before the last four games of the conference schedule were played. Not only is Ohio one of the few teams without a tie or defeat to mar its record, but it is at the top in the matter of scoring and defense. If Ohio can defeat Wittenberg in its final game Friday, it may finish as the high scorer among undefeated teams this season. Ohio's defensive record, marred by one touchdown and point after registered by Ohio Wesleyan, will also be hard to beat.

Not only is the loss of Al Marsters to Dartmouth for the rest of the season a big blow to the Green team but it is a distinct loss to the sport that had fondly expected to list the great backfield star among the great and near-great in its selection of All-American candidates.

However, the luster of his performance against Columbia, Harvard and Yale is not taken away by the spine injury that has ended Marsters' collegiate football career for the remainder of the year.

The Arlington Antelope is still leading the nation for individual scoring honors this season and he left behind him a mark that only such super-players as Albie Booth and Red Cagle may shoot at. Yet when all is said and done he cannot be rated in the select group of all-stars at the close of the season in preference to rivals who have played throughout the entire campaign in the thick of almost every game.

Two years ago it will be remembered that the great Bruce Caldwell, Yale star, had the hard luck to be declared ineligible on the eve of the Princeton and Harvard games, at a time when the Eli ace was ticketed for a berth at halfback on the All-American team that season.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Wilbur Kappel, Beavercreek Twp., arrested Wednesday by M. C. Davis, state prohibition agent of Dayton, on a charge of second offense of possessing liquor, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Probate Judge S. C. Wright Thursday morning. Judge Wright set the hearing for 1 p. m. December 2 and released Kappel upon $1,000 appearance bond. The arresting dry agent reported he confiscated a pint and a half of corn whiskey as evidence.

TEAMS WILL BATTLE TO ABANDON CELLAR IN LEAGUE CONTEST

Xenia Twice Lost To Sidney In Past Records Show

By PHIL FRAME

Scrimmage is tabco this week as Xenia Central High's bruised Buccaneers prepare for the last home game of the season with a Miami Valley League rival, Sidney High, at Cox Athletic Field Friday afternoon. The kick-off will be at 2:45 o'clock.

Although the last seven games have been marked up on the debit side of the ledger and the Bucs are just about ready to file a petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities far exceeding assets, followers of the team believe that Xenia's feat in scoring two touchdowns against Wilmington last week has given the boys just the right amount of confidence to end their home stand victoriously.

The Bucs showed more offensive ability in the Quaker tilt than they have in any preceding contest this fall and it was all due to forward passes. Xenia at least broke even on its aerial game for the passes were responsible for two touchdowns as well as a pair of markers for Wilmington.

The Bucs have gradually been gaining experience this season and should be about ripe for a victory. Light workouts have been in order this week in order that the already appalling casualty list will not mount any higher.

Changes in the starting lineup are also in prospect and Coach Wilson will seek to put as strong a team as possible on the field.

Friday's contest will take on the aspect of a battle for "life" between Xenia and Sidney in the Miami Valley League standing. Neither team has won a league game, being the only elevens in this category and each team will put forth its best efforts to escape the cellar championship, a dubious distinction.

Sidney will rule the favorite but that is not worrying the Bucs to any great extent.

Xenia and Sidney are comparatively recent football rivals as their gridiron debate dates back only to 1922, in that year Xenia lost only one game, that being to Sidney, 7 to 0. The schools did not meet in football again until last season when Sidney's rather fluky 2 to 0 victory knocked the Bucs out of the league championship.

Consequently Xenia has several old scores to settle and hopes to return the compliment with interest Friday. It is, in fact, more than a hope, it is grim determination to salvage something from the wreckage of a disappointing season and get back into the good graces of supporters of the Blue and White.

Fans attending the Xenia-Sidney game will probably see in action a fighting Buccaneer squad which will seek its salvation in forward passing, a department in which the Bucs showed much promise last week and by means of which 199 yards were gained.

Dr. Dave Reese, popular Dayton dentist, will referee the tilt with Cutler, last week's referee, acting in the capacity of an umpire this time.

WOOSTER WINNER IN JUNIOR DIVISION OF VOLLEY TOURNEY

Defeating "Wilmington" in the finals by a margin of 41 to 34 Wednesday afternoon, "Wooster" won the championship of the junior high division of the volley ball tournament being held at Xenia Central High School and will meet "Miami," the senior high division winner, for the school title sometime next week, probably Wednesday.

Last week "Wooster" beat "Heidelberg," 41 to 30 in a semi-final round tourney game. Harner, R. Loyd and Diamond looked best at the net for the junior high title winners Wednesday while Batson, Short and Adair played best for the losers.

The final match to determine the school championship will probably be played during an activity period with the entire student body looking on. A pep meeting will also be held at the same time to stir up interest in Xenia Central's annual Thanksgiving Day grid game with Springfield, the final game of the season.

Captain R. Lloyd, Harner, Dawson, Whittington, Bone, Anderson, Diamond and Miller compose the "Wooster" team while the "Miami" team consists of Captain Bice, Dice, Baker, S. Loyd, Harner and E. Shultz.

PENNSY WILL ORDER ELECTRIC ENGINES

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The Pennsylvania Railroad plans to meet the fast-growing competition offered by motor cars and airplanes by the early placing of an order for 150 electric locomotives of greater speed and power than any previously manufactured, it was learned here today.

The locomotives, capable of 90 miles an hour, are to be used between New York, Philadelphia and Washington on schedules cutting running time from this city to Washington from five to four hours less and reducing the time between here and Philadelphia to an hour and a half.

YALE HEAVY FAVORITE AS ELI MEETS HARVARD FOR 48TH TIME

Yale sweeps into what is, after all, the gridiron classic of them all—the Yale-Harvard tilt—a pronounced favorite. Yale has a strong, powerful line and a backfield made brilliant by the sensational quarterback, Albie Booth. However, Harvard's faculty of upsetting great Yale teams is traditional. Rival coaches, captains and outstanding players, shown above, with a record of all Yale-Harvard games to date.

CUTTING DOWN TIME BETWEEN BITES FOR FISH IS IMPORTANT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Cutting down the time between bites—a national policy under the Coolidge and Hoover administrations—has become one of the big jobs of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, according to the annual report of Commissioner Henry O'Malley, made public today.

President Hoover once said that every citizen of the United States, in addition to those rights guaranteed under the constitution, was entitled to his share of fish. The president contended that "it's too long between bites."

O'Malley called attention to the bureau's activities on behalf of the American sportsman in the extension of its relations with states and sportsmen's organizations.

"The fish-nursery system, whereby sportsmen furnish pools and ponds and rear to fingerling or adult sizes fish received from federal hatcheries has expanded so that 114 units were in operation during the past fiscal year," O'Malley said.

"Of the total output of fish and eggs from government stations amounting to more than seven billion in the last fiscal year, game fish accounted for approximately 260,000,000. While the output of commercial species is on such a huge scale they have to be put back in the water as small fry, every effort has been made to grow game fish to larger sizes before placing them in ponds and streams."

Going into the commercial activities of the bureau O'Malley said the fur seal herd of Alaska under the government's program of husbandry has been built up to nearly 1,000,000 animals or more than five times the combined total of all other fur-seal herds of the world.

Judging from the statement everybody can afford to own a seal coat eventually. The growth in the herd has made it possible to increase the take of skins from surplus bulls to more than 40,000 per annum. The herd is growing at the rate of five per cent a year.

O'Malley said the annual harvest of fishery products amounted to 3,000,000,000 pounds last year from which 127,000 fishermen received around $113,000,000. In 1928 the pack of canned fisheries products exceeded 617,000,000 pounds valued at $96,000,000. The quantities of fish frozen exceeded 113,600,000 pounds the largest figure on record.

Paris is admittedly the hub of the fashion world. But American women have formed a definite habit of interpreting the modes set by Paris to their own individualities. Take the evening wrap that is worn with the new long gowns. It is undergoing various interpretations. In the long length it is amazingly smart, as pictured at the extreme left, in brilliant green rayon velvet with fox collar—an original Callot model. Third from left is another green wrap—emerald with ermine decorations, an American design from Bonwit Teller. This is the newer short length. To the right of this is another of the long models, in panne velvet with a deep collar of white fox. An adaptation from Molyneux is pictured, extreme right, in sapphire blue rayon velvet with chinchilla collar. TIDAL WAVE SWEEPS NEWFOUNDLAND; SAY TWENTY-SEVEN DEAD

ST. JOHN'S, Newfound- Nov. 21.—A "terrible disaster" on the south coast of Newfoundland, in which at least twenty-seven lives were reported lost as a result of a tidal wave which swept the coast on Monday, was reported in fragmentary wireless dispatches reaching here today.

The tidal wave is believed to have resulted from the disturbance which occurred on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean on Monday, coincident with the earthquake which shook the Atlantic coast from Nova Scotia to New York.

According to fragmentary radio dispatches reaching here, nine persons, mostly women and children, were drowned at Burin Island, off the mainland peninsula which separates Fortune Bay and Placentia Bay. Sixteen dwellings were washed away there.

Eighteen lives were reported lost at Lord's Cove, and Lomaline. The number of buildings destroyed at those places was not given in the dispatches.

Heavy property damage was reported at St. Lawrence, but there was no mention of any loss of life there.

The first reports of the disaster were received here from the steamship Portia. Details were lacking, as the stricken area has been isolated since Monday's earthquake as a result of disrupted communications.

The report from the S. S. Portia said the region was swept by a fifteen-foot tidal wave which raced in from the sea in a solid wall of water soon after the second of the two severe earth shocks were experienced.

The first tremblor was felt at 5:05 o'clock Monday afternoon and was followed by another of equal severity at 7:35 o'clock.

Immense property damage is believed to have been done all along the coast, particularly to fishing vessels which may have been caught by the tidal wave.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

A MODEST SUCCESSFUL WOMAN

Fannie Hurst is modest about her success. I talked to her about "Five and Ten", her latest novel, in her beautiful apartment in Sixty-seventh Street, Manhattan, recently.

"Is it a best seller?"

"Well, yes, so the reports say. But that doesn't mean anything. Best seller is a relative term, and you never know how well the book has sold until you have about a year's royalty checks tucked away and added up."

"It it selling better than your last book?"

ter. "But one can't count too much on that. Conditions change so much from day to day."

I couldn't get her to brag about her book. So I tried this:

"You have a cozy shelter from the weather here. I've read about it, of course, but it really isn't bad.'

"Oh yes, it puts up a good front in the first room you enter. But after all, it's just a New York apartment."

No use trying to get this girl to brag. It isn't in her, apparently.

About her next novel.

"Yes, I'm working on it now. Real work. It was a grand plot and a fine plan for months, and then it was something to enjoy and dream about. But now it's been reduced to a job of work. Actually hammering this grand plot into a novel isn't anything so romantic. It's hard work.

"Often I envy the people who go all through life with grand novel plots in their heads, just ready to go to work on them. If they never really hammer those plots into novels that will fit between covers, they have something fine as property. But try to work this glorious thing down to book form, and you lose a lot of the thrill."

That was a new point of view to me. I had always felt rather sorry for the hundreds of newspaper folk I've known who had grand plots for novels in their systems, and never quite got to the point of making novels out of the plots. I've always thought that these folk were deprived of a great joy.

But perhaps Fannie Hurst is right. As long as you can carry the idea around with you, dreaming about it and imagining its finished form, it is neither a failure nor a success, and, best of all, it isn't a real tough job of work.

WILL HEAR LAUDER

Sir Harry Lauder, celebrated Scotch singer, will be the guest artist on the Enna Jettick Melodies Radio program over station WLW, Cincinnati, Sunday evening, December 1 at 8 o'clock.

You have a Doctor's Word for this Laxative

IN 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he treated many cases of constipation. He soon saw the harm in common purges and began to seek something better. Out of his experience was born a famous prescription now in wide use.

This prescription was written thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. Children like its pleasant taste. Older people like it because it doesn't gripe or cause discomfort. It is a mixture of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients; thoroughly effective for the most robust of men. Stimulates the normal muscular action of the bowels. So its use will not become a habit. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, biliousness, feverishness, or no energy, poor appetite, etc., are relieved by Dr. Caldwell's prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. All drug stores have the generous bottles. The product never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original formula. So you can take it with confidence or give it to the youngest child.

POLECAT PERIL

Washington Hostesses Now More Careful When They Issue Invitations

THE BIG QUESTION IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY IS "WHO IS A POLECAT AND WHO ISN'T"

By ALICE BERNADETTA WALL
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. — The polecat peril casts its shadow athwart the Washington social season of 1929-30. Dry society, to be sure, is not aware of it. However, there is a portion of Washington society which indisputably is wettish.

Some authorities say that drinking has become less fashionable in select capital circles since President Hoover has been in office. Perhaps it has, but it has not passed entirely out of style by any means. In fact, there is still a set which probably could not keep up the pace at all without a certain amount of alcoholic stimulation; would be unable to see any fun in it, at any rate.

These are the folk who shudder at the thought of the polecat peril.

A "Polecat"

The term "polecat" is used in Washington now without, necessarily, any implication of rancor. It simply is a technical expression.

For example, a Washington hostess may own up to a suspicion that so-and-so is a polecat—meaning that, offered a drink in her home, he might conceivably tell of it later before the Distric of Columbia grand jury—as an act of good citizenship, from his standpoint.

Naturally she does not invite him to her house upon any occasion when alcoholic refreshments are to be served. Otherwise she may not object to him—may like him, even. When she is going to give a dry party, quite likely she sends him an invitation.

What makes the hostess worry is the danger that an unidentified polecat may inadvertently be permitted to slip into the wrong kind of social gathering.

"Of course," as one capital matron explained to me, "we all have our little groups of close friends. An affair like a small dinner to a few intimate acquaintances presents no difficulty. Such guests can be depended on as if they were members of the family.

Anxiety Ahead

"But the coming winter's large functions, attended by a great many comparative strangers, threaten to be sources of serious anxiety; it is so hard to guard against an occasional polecat, without an impossibly thorough investigation."

The matron mentioned "an occasional polecat" in the most casual way; not flatteringly and yet not venomously—merely as something that must be reckoned with, and therefore had better be considered philosophically.

"It looks as if we might have to give up cocktails and a punchbowl, except at our selectest parties," she added naively.

Many is the epithet, hurled by an enemy, that has been picked up by the person it was intended for and worn as a badge of honor. It was thus that Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, accepted the nomination of himself to membership in the Great American Polecat Club, for having made a grand jury matter of a supposedly wet banquet he attended in 1926.

"If it be polecatism," said the Iowan, in effect, "to report a crime one has seen committed, then make the most of it."

This stand by the Hawkeye senator bids fair to render the designation "polecat" respectable—maybe to start a fad for the winning of polecat laurels. It is exactly that that Washington's damp society is fearful of. A United States senator having blazed the way, how many others are liable to follow in his footsteps?

Interpreting Term

So the significance of the title polecat, as conferred in the social Washington of today, depends largely upon the interpretation given to it.

One who feels about it as Senator Brookhart feels (and he has plenty of sympathizers) is entitled to consider himself complimented; one who takes the opposite view is apt to turn purple in the face with anger at the knowledge that he is so much as suspected of a tinge of polecatism.

In either event, the capital's damp society will not be easy in its mind until it has better evidence how generally the Iowa senator's policy is likely to be imitated.

American Acquitted

Accused of murdering her common-law husband, Genaro Benavente, Bernice Rush, of Louisville, Ky., was acquitted by a vote of six to three by a jury in Mexico City. This photo was taken at the trial.

SPRINGFIELD MAN WILL SPEAK FRIDAY EVENING AT CHURCH

John R. Casad, Springfield, will be the principal speaker when the Lutheran Brotherhood holds its regular meeting at the First Lutheran Church, Friday at 7 p. m.

Mr. Casad is a well known insurance representative. He is chorister in the Fourth Lutheran Sunday School and a member of the church council of that church. Springfield community campaigns and civic bodies have felt the progressive influence of this Wittenberg alumnus for many years. Casad was the man who successfully conducted the Ministerial Pension Relief Fund campaign in several churches, one of them being the First Lutheran of this city.

The Brotherhood will serve a rabbit dinner at seven o'clock. This will be followed by a short business meeting and Mr. Casad's address. Several young women of the church will provide musical entertainment during the evening.

A general invitation is issued to the men of the community to attend.

Efforts are now being made to obtain George Rinkliff, Springfield, state president of the Lutheran Brotherhood, to be the principal speaker at the January meeting.

PRINCE SKILLED AT NEEDLEWORK

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Prince of Wales has taken up knitting!

Proving that he is indeed versatile, the heir to England's crown who heretofore has specialized mainly in horseback riding, hunting, aviation, golf and after dinner speeches, three scarfs which the prince knitted with his own hands today were exhibited at Queen Mary's London Needlework Guild.

The world's most eligible bachelor, however, isn't the only male in the royal family to have become proficient in the art of knitting.

Three scarfs turned out by the youngest of his three brothers, Prince George, were also exhibited.

"Exceedingly well done," commented the secretary of the exhibition upon examinging the scarfs.

"The Prince of Wales always sends articles to the exhibition, but this is the first time he has sent his own personal efforts."

SIX OFFICIALS IMPLICATED IN BANK DEFALCATION

Arrest of six former officials of the Union Industrial bank of Flint, Mich., charging them with embezzlement, abstract or wilful misappropriation of bank funds, has been made following the revelation that a group of bank employes manipulated bank funds for their own use in the stock market, losing $3,592,000 in the recent crash. The six under arrest shown above are: John S. DeCamp, former senior vice president; Elton D. Graham, former cashier; Milton Pollock, former vice president; Ivan P. Christiansen, former assistant cashier; Mark H. Kelley, former assistant cashier, and Russel A. Runyon, former discount manager.

YOUTH ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY PLAYMATE; FATHER EX-XENIAN

Suffering from two bullet wounds in the left side inflicted accidentally by a .32 caliber pistol in the hands of a playmate Saturday night, Arthur Burba, 13, son of Mr and Mrs. George Burba, former residents of Xenia, remains in a critical condition an Antonia Hospital at Kenton, O., where the family now resides.

The youth was shot by Robert Howe, 14, the bullets penetrating the left lung and through the fleshy part of the left side, near the shoulder.

According to word received by Xenia relatives, Burba's condition is described by attending physicians at the hospital as "satisfactory," but there is still danger of pneumonia, the formation of an abcess in the lung or of blood-poisoning, it is said. As a precautionary measure, antitoxin for lockjaw was administered Saturday night after X-ray photographs had been taken to show the location of one bullet imbedded in the body.

The shooting was accidental, the Howe boy told his father. Burba and another friend, Elmo Basil, went to the Howe home to play and Elmo, according to the boys had fired two blank cartridges to frighten the others, who were in the house.

Robert Howe, who with Raymond Basil, was inside the house cleaning his pistol for another day on his trap line, then went outside to frighten the person who had fired the shots. Seeing Basil down the walk, Howe pointed his pistol toward an opposite corner, at the side of the porch, and pulled the trigger twice.

Both bullets entered the body of his friend, who was crouching in the shadow of the porch.

George Burba, the youth's father, lived in Xenia until twenty years ago when he moved to Kenton. Mrs. D. L. oJnes, E. Third St., William Burba, N. Whiteman St., and Mrs. Nan Kennedy, E. Third St., are brother and sisters of the wounded boy's father.

GOOD'S FRIEND DIES

CEDAR RAPIDS, Nov. 21.—The funeral of William B. Lutz, farmer and boyhood chum of the late James W. Good, secretary of war, was being planned here today. Lutz dropped dead late yesterday of heart disease while planning to attend the Good funeral.

Friday afternoon, at practically the same hour that the former cabinet member will be buried in Oak Hill Cemetery here, Lutz will be laid to rest.

Secretary Good and Lutz lived on adjoining farms and attended the same rural school near Louisa, Iowa, in recent years the two friends often talked over old times when they were children, together.

CHARGE D'AFFAIRES NAMED FOR LIBERIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Hoover today named Henry Carter of Massachusetts, now attached to the state department, as American charge d'affaires for Liberia.

LOVERS' PLOT IS BLAMED FOR MURDER

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A love plot was alleged by police today following admissions of pretty Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien, 26, in which she stated her husband William was shot down by Samuel Door when the latter was found in a closet of their apartment.

O'Brien, 27, is near death with three bullets in his body.

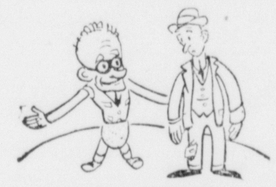

Investigation disclosed, police assert, that Door had recently sold O'Brien a life insurance policy for $5,000, naming Mrs. O'Brien as the beneficiary.

Styles For 1930 Raise Controversy With Many Women Declaring Revolt

By RUBY WEIL
Central Press Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Picture Miss 1929, as represented by the summer girl of recent memory—a pert young thing, her backless, sleeveless, loosely belted frock short enough to give full play to her sun-tanned knees and frequently bare legs. She dashes from tennis court or business to tea or dinner in virtually the same "uniform," or one different chiefly in fabric.

Now picture Miss 1930, as Fashion paints her—a smartly gowned lady, her intricately cut costume swirling around her, her waistline molded over a smooth, soft "foundation," her knees, sun-tanned or no, hidden beneath inches of skirt. She passes from femininely cut tweeds or jerseys, their even hems ending perhaps four inches below the knee, for shopping or business, to gowns which may reach the ankle for bridge or tea, and certainly reach it for dinner or dancing.

She is the essence of youthful sophistication, say the makers of style, as her sister of 1929 was the essence of frank formality of flapperism.

Dear, Oh, Dear!

"But we will look ten years older," wail the women of 30 to 40, pointing to the lengthened skirts. "And they rob us of our hard-won freedom from corsets and trailing skirts; they set us back ten years," add the feminists.

There the matter stands. Whether Miss 1930 will prevail or whether the incipient rebellion will grow into victorious war remains to be seen. While the advertising columns of the newspapers are filled with Paris' latest creations, the editorial columns give space to letters of protest.

While stores all over the country—as shown in a recent survey made by a trade paper—report that the new styles are being bought in constantly increasing numbers, many women tell of fruitless shopping tours and others announce that they will continue to wear their last year's wardrobes, fashionable or not.

Will Stock Market Affect?

Within the past few weeks a new element has complicated the question. Admittedly, to be in style this year means to buy new clothes; the change is too radical for a mere lengthening of old dresses to serve. Since the stock market fiasco, reports of returns of dresses to stores and of the cutting down of store staffs indicate a possible effect on fashion. It is too early to tell.

One of the leaders in the protest against the new mode, Fannie Hurst, novelist and short story writer, is trying to bring about an organized revolt. She fears that the psychological effect of the new styles will wipe out the progress women have made since the war.

Artist Sees Women Prettier

But Neysa McMein, illustrator whose artist eye delights in the new soft lines, laughs at Miss Hurst's theory. "I don't see why putting on a new dress should affect one's mental attitude," she says. "These new things will just make women look prettier, and that's always good. Of course, I don't think they'll last, except in modified form."

Here the stylists take up the cudgel. "Of course women must not wear ankle-length skirts to business or for driving their cars," they say. "For such occasions they should wear the modified styles, with even hems four inches below the knee. For sports wear, too, the dress must be short."

Tobe, a style adviser, takes occasion to remind skeptics that "pioneers are always laughed at." "Many women said they would never wear short skirts," she remarks. "This is a transition year. Skirts are four inches below the knee; next year they will be six. They will not make women look old, but sophisticated; the high waistline is youthful."

Industry Hopes So

Should her prediction come true, it will be a decided victory for the fashion-wise, this generation is certain: It is the style industry, or rather the combined industries, here and abroad, which deal with the various phases of fashion, that made the new mode. No spontaneous demand on the part of women called forth these long dresses. (Even in Paris editors are receiving letters of protest.) American women, in particular, showed every sign of being satisfied with the simple straightline frocks that were so difficult—impossible to buy. They were too well satisfied to suit the style industry which thrives on change and intricacy.

So for several years Paris has been attempting to swing the pendulum toward greater elaboration and longer skirts. This change which seems so sudden to the uninitated, has been in the offing since the first "robe de style" appeared on a dance floor.

Evening Gowns—That's Different

That dress, wide of skirt and dipping at the back, presaged a new evening mode which has met universal favor. Even those who disapprove of the addition of three inches to daytime skirts are enthusiastic about the graceful, swirling evening gowns, and the short evening frock is as much out of date as last month's book-of-the month as maid and matron go tripping down the hall in and over trailing ends of tulle or lace.

To the fashion-wisefi this general acceptance of length for evening, along with the number of smartly dressed women who have adopted the new daytime costumes wholeheartedly is significant. Unless this year is to reverse all precedent, news from the advance guard of fashion indicates that by spring flapperism will have sighed its last sigh and girls who have never hidden their knees in their lives will have a new sensation.

"Unless this year is to reverse all precedent"—and who knows but what it will? The flapper style was the essence of youth; and women cling to youth.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. H. L. Sayre's Drug Store. —Adv.

ARGENTINE WILL BE SPEAKER AT LUTHER LEAGUE GATHERING

Senor James Soler, Beunos Aires, Argentina, will deliver an address at the regular meeting of the Luther League at the First Lutheran Church, W. Main St., Sunday evening at 6:15 o'clock.

On account of sudden illness, Senor Soler was forced to cancel his speaking engagement at the local church several weeks ago. At that time one of his fellow countrymen, Senor Jonas Villeverde, filled a part of the engagement.

Soler is a middler in Hamma Divinity School, Wittenberg College, Springfield. He expects to return to his native country and be a missionary upon the completion of his studies at Wittenberg.

The young Argentine is a member of the Cosmopolitan Club at the college and took part in a pageant which that organization presented at the McKinley School several weeks ago.

In his address, Soler will endeavor to tell just what the Lutheran missions are doing in the Argentine, and the part that the Luther League of America contributes annually to this work. He has traveled widely both in his native country and the United States.

Miss Phyllis Mellege will be the leader of the Sunday evening meeting. There will be an open forum after Senor Soler's address for purpose of asking him additional questions concerning the Lutheran missionary efforts in the Argentine. Special music will feature the program. All are invited.

S.S.S.

Makes You Feel Like Yourself Again

IT is easy to abuse our golden life-given body, but Nature has a way of signaling danger. If heeded, graver troubles may be avoided. That tired, exhausted feeling, lack of appetite, aches and pains, flabby flesh, skin troubles—all speak of a body weakness—a lack of the normal count of red-blood-cells.

Every normal person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles to the cubic millimeter—those vitalizing, tiny red-cells which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red blood count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people. It helps Nature increase the red-blood-cells. It promotes healthy body building. It is time-tested and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It is easily assimilated. Pleasant to take. It is on sale at all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. © S.S.S. Co.

TRAINING ASSAILED IN ANTIOCH SPEECH

Militarism in the schools as a producer of the "war habit" was the subject of an attack by Tucker F. Smith, secretary of the Committee on Militarism in Education, of New York, in an address before the student body of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Wednesday.

Smith attacked military training on the grounds that it tended to "keep alive the mental habits which produce war."

"War is an outworn habit and persists in our modern world solely because men have been trained to act that way. Whatever its usefulness in the past, it no longer protects life, property or ideals. It is wasteful, futile, and unnecessary in a world that depends upon orderly exchange and trade for its material and spiritual welfare," the speaker declared.

Smith questioned the practice of building up interest in military training through making attractive girl students "honorary captains" and giving them rewards for taking an interest in the student military units.

"This popularized military training," he declared, "is keeping alive what is an inexcusable lie—namely, that war is inevitable and fighting is glorious. A genuine opposition to war cannot be built upon this glorified playing at soldiering which we have in our schools today. We must break the war habit to build peace habits."

Smith said that in his opinion programs of military training surrounded by glamour and color are numerous in the United States and are tending to destroy the work done by President Hoover in his efforts to build up world opinion opposed to the settling of disputes by war.

He urged Antioch students to realize that the war attitude is more a habit than anything else, and to work for the substitution of habits of peace, based on reason and understanding.

XENIAN SENTENCED TO FEDERAL PRISON

Charles M. Ridgeway, Xenia, must serve two years and six months in the Atlanta, Ga., penitentiary for having sold narcotic drugs, under terms of a sentence imposed Wednesday at Dayton by Federal Judge Robert Nevin.

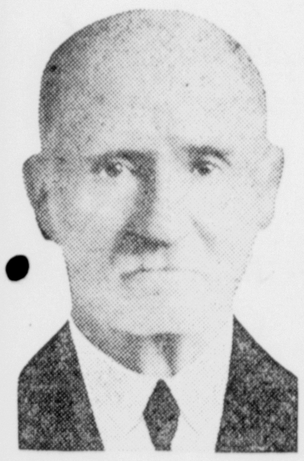

Ridgeway, who operated a drug store at 539 E. Third St., in Dayton, had pleaded guilty to the indictment on the narcotic charge. Describing Ridgeway as an incurable addict, Judge Nevin, in passing sentence, declared he took the advanced age of the man into consideration. Ridgeway is 67 years old.

His home is on W. Market St., in Xenia but for the last several months he had been living in Dayton. Ridgeway formerly operated pharmacies at Cincinnati, Springfield and Cedarville, moving to Xenia from Cedarville two years ago.

"I feel better than for a long time and I owe it all to this new medicine, Konjola," said Mr. W. H. Davies, Jacobs Road, Hubbard, Ohio. "My stomach was the source of much trouble. MR. W. H. DAVIES

"I was amazed at the way this new medicine seemed to attack the very cause of the trouble. In a very short time, my stomach was in perfect condition. My appetite increased, and food digests as it should. My kidneys have been restored to their normal, healthy condition and gone are the back pains. New Robot Plane a Success

Above is the new "robot" plane which swooped down on Bolling Field, Washington, D. C., after having made a flight from Dayton, Ohio, without anyone touching the controls except to take off and land. The automatic pilot has demonstrated his ability to steer a true course.

Poems that Live

LAST SONNET

BRIGHT Star! would I were steadfast as thou art—
Not in lone splendor hung aloft the night,
And watching, with eternal lids apart,
Like Nature's patient, sleepless Eremite,
The moving waters at their priest-like task
Of pure ablution round earth's human shores,
Or gazing on the new soft-fallen mask
Of snow upon the mountains and the moors—
No—yet still steadfast, still unchangeable,
Pillowed upon my fair love's ripening breast,
To feel for ever its soft fall and swell,
Awake for ever in a sweet unrest,
Still, still to hear her tender-taken breath,
And so live ever—or else swoon to death.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

YOU NEED THIS PERFECT REFRIGERATION

HARMFUL bacteria know no season. They thrive on warmth. No matter how chilly it may be outdoors, it's usually hot in your kitchen. Keeping foods safely refrigerated is therefore quite as much of a problem in autumn as it is in midsummer.

The General Electric Refrigerator will automatically keep your perishable foods always below the danger line 50 degrees.

The General Electric is the only refrigerator with an all-steel cabinet. It is built like a safe. All its mechanism is mounted on top in a dust-proof, hermetically sealed steel casing. Quietly it operates, without ever needing to be oiled.

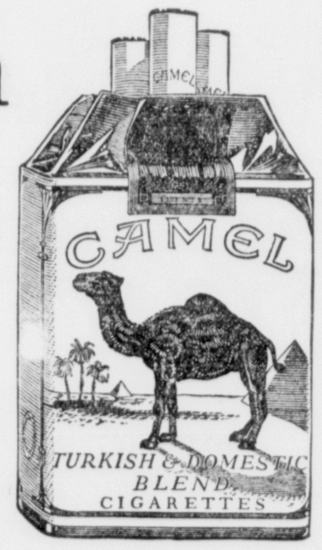

More than 350,000 users today of General Electric Refrigerators and not one has ever paid out a single dollar for service or repairs.

Camel has the quality that smokers depend upon

It is all right to experiment but a pity to spend too much time experimenting when you might be enjoying the fragrant pleasure of smoking Camels.

It has been the experience of many smokers, after trying other brands, that Camels give constant and unfailing pleasure. Their mildness, due to choice tobaccos and expert blending, makes it possible to smoke them liberally without any tiring of the taste. This quality, which smokers have learned to depend upon, will be maintained, because Camels are made for those who know and appreciate the real pleasure of smoking.

when they learn the difference they flock to Camels

REPORTS $51 DONATED TO DATE

After two days of campaigning, reports made to Birch Bell, Xenia Central High junior, chairman of the Junior Community Chest, disclosed that a total of $51 has been contributed by pupils in the Xenia public schools toward the quota of $85 assigned to the children.

With five more days of the drive remaining and the amount sought more than half subscribed, Chairman Bell is confident the junior fund organization will steal a march on the Xenia Community Fund by reaching its goal before the parent association does.

The second day's solicitation in the schools Wednesday netted additional donations amounting to $15.90 through contributions of 323 more pupils. To date a total of 1,383 school children have subscribed sums ranging from one penny to ten cents to the chest.

Three more 100 per cent home rooms were reported Wednesday, all at the Spring Hill grade school. Tuesday the Spring Hill third grade made a perfect showing and on the following day the first, second and sixth grades also reported 100 per cent donations.

Wednesday's donations to the fund among school children include: seventy-one Central Senior High students gave $6.90; fifty-eight Central Junior High pupils gave $2.91; seven Central first graders gave seven cents; nine East Senior High students gave seventy-four cents; twenty East Junior High pupils gave $1.04; thirty-eight Lincoln graders gave $1.50; fifty-eight McKinley graders gave $1.52; forty-nine Spring Hill graders gave ninety-seven cents; thirteen Orient Hill graders gave twenty-five cents.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

BLUFFING IT OUT

The other day I met a man who, his intimate associates told me, has never had an idea in his life. A worth-while, workable idea.

When I met him, he was talking about his worries. He wanted to invest ten million dollars in a certain kind of property, but all the owners of that kind of property were stiff-necked and unreasonable. They wouldn't sell at a fair price.

He told of his magnificent mansion in California, of his association with millionaires during a year of voluntary retirement from business, and of his darting hither and yon in airplanes to give his expert opinion to this and that seeker after wisdom.

After this man had gone out, the men who knew him laughed heartily.

"Well, he's the same old George, isn't he?" they said, one to another.

Then they told me a marvelous story of a bluffer. George, it seems, hasn't any millions at all. He hasn't any mansion. In fact, he's out of a job, and living on air—and nerve.

Possibly you have met such fellows. Big talk. But no ideas and no accomplishments.

Forever lying picturesquely about the great men they know, the big deals they have put over, the millions they have by the neck, the great accomplishments that are just over there in the offing.

Always, these bluffers are persons without ability. If they had any ability they wouldn't have to lie so much.

Spotting the bluffer is easy to a person who knows something about human nature. But there is a certain type of business and professional man that is peculiarly liable to be imposed upon by the bluffer. Usually, this is the slow-thinking, conservative, forthright type, not much given to the exercises of the critical faculty in relation to people. This kind of man can be fooled by the bluffer, and the bluffer makes his way through the world by preying upon this type of citizen.

McReavey, one-legged war veteran, Annapolis football star and aval aviator, who is in jail at Hollywood following his arrest in the Hollywood apartment of Naomi Childers Reed, former film star (at the ight). He denied that he intended robbery, declaring that they had beer ...rds and he called at her apartment to "make-up" a trivial quarrel.

...NOTED CHATTO WAS SCUTTLED AT RADIO NOW BROADCASTS

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT

By ALEXANDER SHERMAN
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Radio's first and highest high-brow!

Seven years ago Alexander Woollcott would have laughed with scorn if anyone had suggested that he appear on the air!

"What! Appear on the air with xylophone players and discarded actors? Nay, nay!"

Today Alexander Woollcott finds himself cast weekly as radio's official "town crier" and discovers that he likes it very much indeed. For the man who has reviewed thousands of plays and written hundreds of high-brow articles on more or less high-brow themes really thinks it's a lot of fun to bring a high-brow attitude to radio's multitude.

Friend Suggested Radio

"Please don't ask me my age," begged Woollcott, as the reporter prepared to query the well-known critic. "Why bring up an ancient topic? I was born in Phalanx, N. J., which hasn't even the distinction of being a dot on the map, as it was just my father's homestead. The nearest post office is Red Bank—which should prove that I'm a New Yorker of first water.

"And if you want to know why I'm broadcasting, that's easy to answer. I'm on the air because my friend, Paul Davis ,who is a well-known radio executive, suggested that I try out for it.

"At first I thought he was joking—but he seemed quite serious about it, indeed. For before I knew quite what I was doing, I was mouthing some words before a strange-looking contraption and wondering why the dickens I was so nervous.

"Later I learned that the strange-looking contraption was just a microphone and that my normally high-pitched voice had all the deep basso qualities of an old-time Shakespearean trouper reciting 'Hamlet' for a square meal.

"You know, that's the real reason why I'm so fond of this radio work. I've always wanted to play 'Romeo'—but this aggravating embonpoint of mine had long ago convinced me that the managers never would even give a half-second's consideration. Unless, of course, I decided to play 'Falstaff,' instead.

deep, resonant voice they say the microphone gives me, there's no reason why I can't play 'Romeo' to my heart's content. But won't it be tough when television becomes a commercial possibility?"

Works Harder Than Ever

Short, stocky, with a round full face that belies the intelligence revealed in his writings, Alexander Woollcott is the type of person who must be the center of attraction to be at his best. He is not married and is determined to remain so. Won't wear anything but a blue suit, blue shirt and white tie when he's broadcasting and feels bitterly mortified if he's not carrying a cane.

Woollcott gave up a lucrative position as dramatic editor and critic of a large metropolitan newspaper because he decided he was just young enough to retire from hard labor—and works harder now fulfilling his magazine assignments. Likes to sleep late and enjoys reading condemnatory letters. And everybody calls him "Alec."

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of The Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation
(Written expressly for International News Service)

17. The Tail Spin

A maneuver strictly in the stunt class, the tail spin has some practical value in schooling pilots how to come out of it once in it unintentionally.

It results from a stall in which the airplane is permitted to turn while kept in a stall by holding the elevator up. Thus the dropping machine, instead of nosing direct for the ground, will twist 'round and 'round in spirals, tail above nose. There are many methods of using the controls to start a tail spin but all of them depend on stalling the airplane in some manner.

The spin may be stopped, however, by pushing the elevator control to assist in stopping the rotation. This will arrest the spin and restore the plane to straight dive from which level flight may be resumed by using (raising) the elevator as in coming out of an ordinary dive.

Beginners involuntarily fall into spins usually because of excessive climbs or from banking too steeply and climbing on turns, particularly from gliding at too slow an air speed. In the latter too low to permit recovery.

(Vertical Banks and Spirals will be explained in the next chapter of Plane Talk).

ELYRIA, O., Nov. 21.—Formal inquest into the cause of the blast at the Timms Spring Co., plant here Nov. 9, which took a toll of six lives and four injured, will be held Monday, Coroner M. E. Perry said today.

"BUILD it so well it will give its original perfect service as long as any one wants to use it"—an important Eveready principle. Evidenced in the wonderful care given to every detail of the new Eveready Screen-Grid chassis. Uses a welded steel box girder as foundation, to preserve all parts forever in proper alignment. Insulation insulates only, and metal (usually steel) takes all weight; thus the insulation can warp with the weather without distorting parts and spoiling reception. Built like a battleship, the new Eveready Screen-Grid Receiver will give you true musical enjoyment for as long as you want to listen. See for yourself how wonderful it is. COTTON STOCKINGS

BY ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY — Author of "THE FLAT TIRE"

Copyright, 1929, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, secures a position at the hosiery counter of a store through the kindness of Kenessa Du Barry, actress. She is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, the corner newsie. Rosalie discovers a run in her only pair of silk stockings. She wears an old cotton pair to the store, much to the amusement of the salesgirls. In desperation, she decides to take a silk pair from stock and make good for them payday. She drops them and is observed by Alberto Martino, the store detective, who threatens to arrest her unless she agrees to hide some suitcases in her room for him. Rosalie is frightened and agrees. In the meantime Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the owner of the store, falls in love with Rosalie and asks her to marry him. Rosalie is called to the phone.

Rosalie and Roy are tricked to a flying field, where Roy is kidnaped.

Rosalie is released by the gang after being cautioned to say nothing. She finally gets on a street car.

Rosalie is afraid to say anything about Roy's disappearance. Ann Shultz, salesgirl, questions her.

CHAPTER XXVIII

"I wonder where Roy Andrews is keepin' himself these days. He must be off on a bat."

Ann said it nonchalantly, but she was watching Rosalie out of the corner of her eye.

Rosalie answered her faintly.

"I suppose he—he's on a vacation."

"I don't see how you get through the day without him comin' up to gab a little with you." Ann sounded envious.

She was amazed at the pallor that spread over Rosalie's face. When she clutched at the counter and swayed Ann caught her.

"Listen, Angel Face, you're sick. You gotta see a doctor. Something is wrong with you."

"Oh, I'll be all right." Rosalie felt cold, and tried to keep her teeth from chattering. "I—I just have a headache."

"Well, you been looking terrible all week, and I don't like to see you breakin' down on me. You better go home."

"There's no use," Rosalie's voice sounded tired and old. "I'd be just as sick there."

Ann watched her furtively the rest of the afternoon, and was more and more mystified at her strange actions. There was certainly something the matter. Did it have anything to do with Roy's absence? Perhaps they were lovers—and had quarreled.

That was hard for Ann to believe. But, she looked at Rosalie, pretty and sweet, and found herself believing that must be the trouble. Rosalie had hooked Roy Andrews. Still water was running deep again. It was the little angel-faced babies that landed the big catches.

Tim was watching, feverish with excitement, when Rosalie got off the car. He walked down to meet her, and held the paper that had just come to his stand up to her. He must find out if she knew anything about it before someone else found it out.

She reeled, and the world went black before her.

"ROY CLARKE ANDREWS MISSING

"Believed Victim of Foul Play."

The headlines danced before her crazily. She grasped faintly at Tim and, before he could catch her, dropped at his feet.

He carried her into the delicatessen store in front of his stand, and when she came to he was bending over her, tears rolling down his cheeks, and his face was twisted with worry.

"Aw, gee, Queen, what's the matter?"

She tried to stand up.

"I—I want to go home."

"I'll carry you." He started to lift her from the chair. "You're light as a feather."

She pulled herself to her feet and, with one arm around his shoulder walked slowly home. He took her up to her room and she sunk on the bed.

Then he burst out at her frantically!

"Lissen, Queen. You gotta tell me what this is about. I'm not goin' to keep my mouth shut another minute. You'll get into some terrible trouble—"

She began to cry miserably and to plead with him.

"Tim, please, please don't ask me. Trust me. It's—it's nothing, really. I—I guess Roy just went on a vacation—"

But Tim went on doggedly.

"It says here the last he was seen was last Tuesday night. That was the night you went out on a date with him. Aw, gee, Queen, I know you didn't do nothin' wrong—but, you got to tell me about it. That rat Martino has somethin' to do with all this funny business—"

Even in her excitement and grief Rosalie marveled at Tim's reasoning powers, as he went on explaining to her all the reasons he had for believing that if she would just tell him about it he knew he could fix everything up so it would be all right.

"You'll have to wait a little while, Tim," she begged. "I can't tell you just now. I'll tell you in a few days."

He reached under the pillow and felt the gun.

"Well, I'm glad you got the gat," he told her, when he had plead to no avail for several minutes. "And if you got to shoot, shoot to kill."

"I—I couldn't" she shuddered. "I couldn't touch the awful thing."

He took it then, and compelled her to hold it in her hand. Again he showed her about the safety catch. His face was white with his effort to impress his earnestness on her.

"You think I won't tell the cops if you don't take that gat and take care of yourself with it, don't you? Well, you just wait and see. I'll tell the whole town—"

Tim, raised on a street where firearms were common weapons of defense, was of the firm belief that almost anything could be accomplished with a threat from a black, threatening muzzle.

Rosalie believed that he would tell someone if she did not firmly convince him that she would shoot and shoot to kill if anyone tried to annoy her.

He looked at the open window and the fire escape beyond again with trepidation. Suppose someone slipped up on it when Queen was asleep, and made off with her—or killed her.

Tim left with a grim determination again to find some way to solve the mystery. It almost broke his heart that his idol would not put her trust in him. Was there anyone in the world he could tell what he knew to, who wouldn't get Queen into trouble—and who would help him.

He had left the paper on Rosalie's bed and she tried to read the story of Roy's disappearance, but the tears blurred her eyes so that it was impossible. She sat, almost unable to breathe for the pain in her breast, and the throbbing of her tired, confused brain.

All around were black, high walls of misery and fear. And there was no one to save her. No place she could turn.

The door flew open, and Martino came in and closed it quickly. His evil eyes seemed to blaze at her.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

LIFT GOLD EMBARGO

TOKIO, Nov. 21.—The Japanese embargo on gold exports will be lifted on January 11, 1930, it was announced officially today. The removal of the embargo will be a prelude to Japan's return to the gold standard of currency.

CHEST DRIVE PASSES QUARTER MARK HERE IN PARTIAL REPORTS

ance served to spur the army of 140 workers despite the fact that the fund goal is still a goodly distance off.

This factor is the knowledge that no reports have been received from seven district chairmen. It goes without saying that if the amount of their collections for the first two days of the drive was available, the fund total to date would be substantialy greater than the present figure shows.

With Thursday dawning cold and clear the spirits of the entire organization bounded upward and there was considerable stir about the fund headquarters.

Workers started out on their rounds with a new determination, born of the fact that they are at least getting a break from the weather man.

Summing up the results of the campaign to date, Chairman Galloway said Thursday:

"The amount subscribed so far is probably satisfactory but our solicitors must remember that two of the seven selling days now are past and not quite three-tenths of the goal has been reached.

"After checking the results, it is apparent that much more intensive work must be done by our solicitors during the balance of this week if we are to be successful in raising the needed $10,000 by next Tuesday.

"We are satisfied now, beyond question, that the citizens of Xenia are in sympathy with our plans for operation of the fund and that they will support it liberally, if our solicitors reach them in time."

One of the finest showings of any of the teams is being made by the group headed by Mrs. Charles Weaver as regional chairman of the second district, serving as an inspiration for the other groups to redouble their efforts.

Mrs. Weaver's group turned in $692.50 on the opening day and $5 more Wednesday for a total of $697.50, the largest collection total reported by any of the chest teams among which a spirit of rivalry exists. The best showing Wednesday, however, was made by the sixth district, of which Mrs. L. C. Landaker, is chairman. This group reported $621 as compared with $16 on the first day, a total of $637.

Other encouraging collections were also reported by Emil Eichman, chairman of the first district whose group turned in $452.75 Wednesday, and the committee on factories and shops headed by Frank McCurran. The latter committee reported $275 collected from the city's industries.

The report of A. V. Miller, chairman of the third district, was also gratifying. This group collected $167 Wednesday, giving it a total of $320.85 for the two days. Mrs. Agnes Hurley, chairman of the twelfth district, reported $10 and S. N. McClellan, heading the tenth district, added $3.06 Wednesday.

No reports have been received either of the first two days from the following: Glenn Reed, of the fifth district; Miss Helen Graham, of the seventh district; Mrs. V. H. Moll, of the eighth district; Miss Stella Tuhey of the ninth district, Carl Ervin of the eleventh district; and the Rev. A. L. Dooley, of the East Side district. The special gifts committee, which is depended upon to bring in the larger individual gifts, also has not reported what progress it has been making.

the curtailment suggested by fear or pessimism as to the general business outlook that Mr. Hoover seeks to guard against. Hence his summoning to Washington today the men who directly control the employment strings of the country.

The president is more concerned about maintaining employment at a high level than with any other single feature of the present situation. The only thing that can disturb the basic strength and soundness of the business structure, in his opinion, is a severe drop in employment figures. Unemployment means breadlines and the complete loss of purchasing power.

From the railroads of the country, the president already has assurances of continued high employment — even greater employment than now exists. The railroads are going to spend approximately a billion dolars on equipment and expanston during the next year, and that means a substantial increase in employment.

But it remained today for the industrial leaders to give similar assurances, in order for Mr. Hoover to hold up to hesitant credit and business a most roseate picture of the national business situation.

In addition to those named above the president's conferees today included Walter Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey; Clarence M. Woolley, Pres. of the American Radiator Co.; Eugene Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Co.; Pierre DuPont, chairman of DuPont and Co.; William Butterworth, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce; E. H. Kulas, president of the Otis Steel Co.; A. W. Robertson of the Westinghouse Electric Co.; Redfield Proctor, president of the New England Council; Ernest T. Trigg, Philadelphia manufacturer; Henry M. Robinson, California banker; Julius Barnes, chairman of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, and Philip H. Gadsden, presiden of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Following this industrial conference, the president will receive this afternoon a group of labor leaders representing many trades and crafts, with whom he will discus employment conditions. He hoped to be able to assure labor that it has no cause for trepidation in the present situation.

BRINGING UP FATHER — By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

Julian Street is the author of a short story in last week's Saturday Evening Post called "Chamelon," which deals with an actress who so lived the roles she portrayed that she underwent a complete change of personality with each succeeding part.

Her husband, who fell in love with and married her during the first play he wrote for her, in which she had a particularly sweet part, was quite distraught when she changed her personality with the second part he wrote for her and began to take on weight because that was the role she played. Subsequently, and in turn, she became a hard-boiled lady of the streets and an affected Spanish type before he wrote a matronly type for her and she settled down to the type he desired.

Street's character was a creature of fiction but Paul Muni, the new screen actor, is the human chameleon of the screen,—a youthful Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Muni is a recent celluloid recruit from the stage and in his latest piece, "Seven Faces", a Fox film, he portrays seven individuals: the aged Poppa Chibu, Napoleon, Schubert, Joe Gans, Diablero, Don Juan and a costermonger.

* * *

"When I play a murderer I feel like a murderer", says Muni. "I work up a mental situation until I feel that I am the character I am portraying. After all, we all seem to be a little of everything. We all have a bit of Napoleon in us, a little of this and a little of that. There is nobody who hasn't a little of the universal in him. In the core, we are all pretty much alike. There is a lot about acting I cannot figure out. It is like electricity—there it is. I do not try to copy character. That would not be creative but merely mimeographing. I say the role in my own way and leave it to my instinct."

Muni pointed out that when he played the character of a condemned prisoner in "The Valiant" he began to believe he really had killed a man and conceived how he did it and that he was right in doing it. "I even had a vision of the man I killed and could even see the man in the agony of death" he said. Then he confessed he always felt more at ease portraying another character than when he was interpreting himself.

Muni's real name is Muni Weisenfreund. He was born thirty-two years ago at Vienna and came to America with his parents when four years old. At the age of 11 he played his first character role and wore a beard. "It was a stage beard', he explains.

He gave up study of the violin to go on the stage for good, much to his parents' disappointment. He played in stock and trouped through the middlewest, calling Chicago his home. Then he came to Broadway and made an enviable reputation. He married Bella Finkle, Philadelphia actress, eight years ago. He leaves feminine roles to his wife because "woman is a great mystery" to him.

When his director can't find "Sunny Jim" (Lawrence McKeen) he hastens to the sound control apparatus and usually finds the youngster there with the head phones fastened to his ears. Above, "Sunny Jim" is indulging in his favorite pastime.

MAC DONALD PRAISES MISSIONARY WORK

In view of the recent visit of J. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, to this country, his glowing tribute to the work of the missionaries in Africa has a special timeliness. While speaking at the Congo Jubilee Exhibition, he said:

"As soon as the missionary appears, slavery is doomed. I do not say that it is doomed to twenty-four hours; but I do say that the presence of the missionary has this effect, explain it as you may, that from the moment he becomes a part of the atmosphere of the race, slavery dwindles and education begins. Men whose lives have been long lived in the atmosphere of ignorant superstition and mortal terror are enabled to lift up their heads and to discover that there is something giving them power, enabling them to walk about with their heads uplifted, obedient to law, but not victims of the law, enabling them not only to look out on the world but within themselves. There begins responsible care, which last emerges into a conception of the responsibilities of usefulness, lending them the idea of responsibility to the universe. I think the missionary requires no further justification. We, who have been called to the secular affairs of life rather than the spiritual will never fail to be grateful, I hope, to the missionaries, who have carried into effect the Gospel of human justice as well as of spiritual power."
